Board Also Raps Kimmel, Short, Hull for Disaster

The army board's charges against Marshall, to which Stimson and Truman objected, said he "failed in his relations" with the Hawaiian department on four counts:

1. He failed to keep Short "fully advised on the growing tenseness of the Japanese situation which indicated an increasing necessity for better preparation. Marshall, the board said, had an abundance of such information while Short had little."

2. He failed to send additional instructions to Short Nov. 28, 1941, when U. S.-Japanese relations were deteriorating rapidly, and "evidently failed to realize the import" of a message from Short on Nov. 27 which indicated the Hawaiian commander "had misunderstood and misconstrued" a previous message from Marshall.

3. He failed to provide Short on the evening of Dec. 6 and the early morning of Dec. 7, 1941, with "critical information indicating an almost immediate break with Japan, though there was ample time to have accomplished this."

4. He failed to "investigate and determine the state of readiness of the Hawaiian command (army) between Nov. 27 and Dec. 7, 1941, despite the impending threat of war."

Under "responsibilities," the army board listed Hull, Marshall, Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, former chief of the war plans division of the war department general staff, and Short.

The board said Hull's counter-proposals to the Japanese during the tense American-Japanese diplomatic dueling of November, 1941, were "in conflict with the efforts of the war and navy departments to gain time for preparations for war."

The board emphasized in referring to Hull, however, "war with Japan was inevitable and imminent because of irreconcilable disagreements between the Japanese empire and the American government."

Hull's counter-proposals to the Japanese on Nov. 26, 1941, the board said, were "used by the Japanese as a signal to begin the war by the attack on Pearl Harbor."

The report described relations between Kimmel and Short at Pearl Harbor as "cordial" and said they tried honestly and earnestly to weld the two services into one protective unit.

The interchange of information between the war and state departments at that time was apparently complete, the army board added, and the army was kept "in close touch with international developments." The state department, it added, knew of the army's progress and its preparations for war.

The army board found that Short failed to place his command "in a state of readiness for war and in the face of a war warning by adopting an alert against sabotage."

Short also failed "to reach or attempt to reach" an agreement with Kimmel to implement joint army-navy plans, the board said, and he failed to keep informed of the effectiveness of the navy's long-range reconnaissance.

Short also failed to replace inefficient staff officers in his command, the army board said.

PIN-WORMS GO! New Treatment Gets Real Results

People don't like to talk about Pin-Worm infection. Sometimes they are too embarrassed to mention the tormenting, irritating itching. And in many cases they have not known of any effective way to deal with this pest that lives inside the human body.

Today, thanks to a special, medically recognized drug (gentian violet), a highly effective treatment has been made possible. This drug is the vital ingredient in P.W., the Pin-Worm tablets developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. J. Jaffe & Son.

The small, easy-to-take P.W. tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. So if you suspect Pin-Worms in your child or yourself, ask your druggist for a package of JAFFE'S P.W. right away, and follow the directions. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back. It's easy to remember: P.W. for Pin-Worms!

Atomic Bomb Still Takes Toll Among Japanese Injured

By NORMAN MONTELLIER SAN FRANCISCO, August 29 (UP) — Radio Tokyo said today atomic activity from the atomic bomb raids on Japan three weeks ago still is killing persons who had suffered only "minor injuries" in the initial explosions.

The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, declared the death list had already stretched beyond the originally announced 90,000. Radio Tokyo opened its broadcast with the mysterious statement the atomic bombs which shattered Hiroshima and Nagasaki continued to take their toll among those who "are far from being injured."

Not Hungry Dr. Masao Suzuki, noted surgical authority at the Tokyo Imperial university, was quoted on the case of a young lady who died 18 days after receiving a minor bruise at Hiroshima.

"The lady in question is 29 and exceptionally healthy," the broadcast said. "She was hospitalized exactly 10 days after the bombing, when she complained of a lack of appetite."

The broadcast added: "At the time of the disaster she had escaped with a slight bruise on her back, when the two-story house in which she lived collapsed. She had suffered no burns or concussion."

Her resistance was exceptionally weak. Four days after hospitalization, and exactly two weeks after the Hiroshima disaster her hair started falling out, and the bruise on her back took a turn for the worse. A blood transfusion was carried out, and despite the patient's courageous fight, the condition worsened and she succumbed on the 19th day."

Radio Tokyo said a post mortem examination disclosed striking changes in the woman's liver, spleen, kidneys, lymph glands and marrow, which revealed "the same effect as if they had been exposed to a high-powered radio and... beam."

Under "responsibilities," the army board listed Hull, Marshall, Maj. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, former chief of the war plans division of the war department general staff, and Short.
