OUR MEN IN SERVICE

Cpl. Florence J. Marsh arrived in New York yesterday from France, and will call her mother, Mrs. J. R. Dickerson, today from California. She entered the service three years ago, and has served 23 months overseas. She attended local grade and high schools before joining the WAC in Bend, and received her training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Westover Field, Mass. During her overseas service she was stationed first near London, and later near Paris.

M. Sgt. Daniel E. Turbeville, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Turbeville, 120 McQueen street, Sumter, S. C., has joined the "Ringmaster" P-38 squadron of Brig. Gen. Earl W. Barnes' 13th fighter command.

Arriving overseas in June, 1945, Turbeville was assigned to this well-known unit of the "Jungle Air Force," which spearheaded the advance of MacArthur's forces from the Solomons to the Philippines. He is sergeant-major of the outfit.

He was graduated from Turbeville high school and also attended the Citadel. He was employed by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture at Sumter.

Sergeant Turbeville's wife, the former Dorothy L. Cole, La Grande, and infant son, Daniel E., III, are living here.

Fisist Lt. Kathleen Peare, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Peare, La Grande, considers the air transport command's air evacuation service for wounded and injured veterans one of the most welcome services afforded to army men, according to an interview received during a stop-over of an air evacuation C-47 at Rosecrans field, St. Joseph, Mo.

"It's fast. That's the principal reason why men are so pleased with the ATC service. But they often express their appreciation, too, for the hospitality shown them during the flights and at the stop-over stations," said Lieutenant Peare. Asked how the men feel about flying home, the attractive brunette, who is a veteran of domestic air evacuation, replied, "Practically all of them like the idea of flying. Once in a while we run across one who objects a little, but when the trip's over, flying usually has a new convert." Lieutenant Peare's patients were all evacuees from the south Pacific, being ferried to New York City.

Charles Snyder, who has been stationed at Camp Croft, S. C., is in La Grande for a 10-day furlough before reporting at Camp Adair for foreign service. Snyder, a high school student here before entering the army April 8, 1944, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Goss.

Sgt. Tex Salkeld Is Leaving Army

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Oct. 10 (UP)—Sgt. Alfred J. "Tex" Salkeld, Portland's most unusual GI is leaving the army Oct. 11, with an honorable discharge.

Salkeld, former baseball third baseman and long time Pacific coast boxing promoter and manager was rejected by the army for an old leg injury during World War II. At the outbreak of World War II, he tried again and made it.

Now, just on the other side of 50, he is accepting his discharge after 37 months duty to rejoin his partner Joe Waterman in the operation of the national boxing club of Portland.

Assigned to special services at Torney general hospital, Palm Springs shortly after his enlistment, the veteran sports promoter soon gained a record as a good friend of the average GI.
