Grand Worthy Advisor Honored By Rainbow

A reception was held for Carolyn Parson, Grand Worthy Advisor for Rainbow Girls in Oregon, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 3, in the Masonic hall. There were about 140 persons attending. The hall was decorated with large baskets of summer flowers, carrying out the color scheme of pink, blue and white. The cake was iced in the same colors and served from a table centered with pink and white roses, in a silver bowl.

Miss Patsy Evans, at the organ, played the background music before and during the reception. There were Grand Deputies, Grand Officers, and some visitors from around the state as well as local persons attending.

Miss Barbara Evans was in charge of decorations and assisted by Mrs. Elma Eckley, Mrs. Alice Morehead, and Mrs. Lela Harris. Mrs. Virginia Kubler and Mrs. Ava Gregory were in charge of the refreshments, and Mrs. Joan Driskell was in charge of the guest book.

The program for the afternoon included a solo by Miss Kathy Quaintance, accompanied at the piano by Joan Deihl, and accordion solos by Miss Patsy Parker. Miss Elaine Ricker gave a modern dance number.

There were 20 Rainbow Girls performing a drill honoring Carolyn Parson, and they presented her with a gift.

Miss Marie Thomas, Worthy Advisor of the local assembly, presided during the afternoon affair.

Several of the farmers have begun harvesting operations. Much of the grain is found to be damaged by various things. Some are debating the advisability of even cutting it. Extra men have been added to the North Powder M. and M. crew for the harvest rush.

Guy Smith was taken to La Grande on August 3, for medical attention. While attending the Baker county grange picnic he got a piece of chicken bone in his throat.

Around The House

By Dolores Uri, Your Home Extension Agent

Head your weekly shopping list with melons. They're plentiful, high in quality and low-priced.

advise Oregon State College home economics extension agents. Succulent cantaloupe, cran-shaws, casabas and watermelons have been on many food markets, and honeydews, persians and pears are on the way. Combined harvest from several supply areas make a shopper's paradise in building menu variety and low prices. Hints on selection, care and use are provided.

Fresh, crisp Oregon watermelons arrive on markets by the first of August and continue into September. High quality melons are firm, symmetrical, have a velvety "bloom" on rind, yellowish on underside and have a green outer skin that peels easily. Store in a cool place.

Coarse, corky, netted rind, and light green background casted with gray or yellow are skin and color guides to good cantaloupe. A slightly sunken calloused scar at the stem end indicates the melon was mature when picked. For home storage, rinse melon, dry, and store in airtight container in refrigerator.

Cranshaws, casabas, honeydews and persians appearing on markets will continue through September. Spears, a fairly new melon variety, have a shorter season—usually late August to late September.

Combine aromatic and subtle colors of melon varieties, suggest home economists. Cut melon balls or chunks, sprinkle with sugar and marachino cherry juice, chill and serve in sherbert glasses.

Make melons a part of outdoor meals. Chill slices and serve as salads or dessert. Combine other seasonal fruit with melon. Seedless grapes and melon balls, seasoned with fresh lemon juice...
