Act Grown Up When Looking For First Job

By RUTH MILLETT

Tips for the high school graduates looking for his first real job: Remember that you are a job hunter, not a professional teenager. So dress and act like an adult; heels instead of socks and loafers for girls, suits instead of dungarees for boys.

Go alone when you go job hunting. It may bolster your courage to take a friend along, but you'll have better luck if you job hunt by yourself.

Sit up straight when you are talking to a prospective employer. Don't lounge around.

If you are asked to fill out a form, do it neatly and give some thought to the answers you write down.

Give a lot of thought to what you have to offer a prospective employer. He isn't interested in what he can do for you, but what you can do for him.

If you really want a job don't look disinterested if the hours seem long, or if the pay isn't as much as you've heard some other graduates are getting. The important thing is: will you have a chance to move up if you work hard and prove that you are reliable and trustworthy?

Don't get discouraged if the answer is, "We don't have anything right now, but we may need someone later." Go back later so that you won't be forgotten. If you give anyone's name as a reference be sure to tell the person about it. And don't forget to thank any person who goes to the trouble of writing a recommendation for you.

Let good manners and a straightforward approach help you sell yourself to any person who interviews you for a job.

Try to learn something from every interview so that you will have a better idea of what is expected of a young person looking for a job.

Frequently the simplest recipes are the preferred ones. "Lemon Frosted Peaches" will become a favorite. Simply fill chilled golden canned cling peach halves with lemon sherbet and garnish with coarsely grated lemon rind. Serve as a refreshing dessert or an exotic accompaniment to a main course such as chicken or duck.

Janice Lorenzen Takes Part In 22 Day Tour Of Mexico

Janice Lorenzen, La Grande, is participating in a 22-day tour of Mexico with other youth of the Disciples of Christ (Christian) churches of 14 states. She is a member of the First Christian Church of La Grande.

The youth gathered in San Antonio, Texas, to visit Mexican Christian Institute, Disciple-supported service center. Their first main objective in Mexico was a four-day visit at San Luis Potosi. For two days they collaborated with Mexican church youth in a work project, painting church chairs and tables and redecorating.

Moving over to Aguascalientes for five days, they will round out two weeks visiting Disciple missionaries, national church pastors and other leaders. They will stop at the Mountain of Light farm and conference grounds. A side trip will take them 150 miles up

In And Around Town

Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Alderman of Chehalis, Wash. and granddaughter, Sandra Locke of Spokane, were visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Zumwalt. They are returning to Spokane following a trip through the red woods and along the Oregon Coast. They left La Grande this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Phillips, now of Bend, arrived Monday and spent some time visiting friends in and around La Grande. They are former residents of La Grande. He was circulation manager for the Observer among other enterprises.
