VILLIAM EWALD SAYS:

Gary Moore Has Most Improved New TV Show

The Moore hour started some-hat uncertainty last fall, but oft-r a switch in production brains. Moore show — a sprawl of franks innards began to coogeal. Per-aps more important, the show ewed out an identity of its own. Next season, Moore will return champagne in a beer glass.

His hour will gun for more hu-Tuesday night's closer managed mor and it will shift from a live homogenize some fairly sophis- show to a taped one. More hueated material in a solution of mor, I welcome. Tape, I dunno. Tape will make it possible to ring refully. The hour opened with a in guests who otherwise could not epeat of its medieval pageantry appear at night, but it also will make it possible to erase boo-boos. That means no more hot dogs on the dance floor. And frankly, I shall miss them.

> Short Shots: The NBC-TV Jim-mie Rodgers Show seems a little confused about its own character. It started out as a show pitched at the teen-age set and is now in a rather muddled state—somewhere between Pablum and Geri-tol. Tuesday night's guests, for example, were Carmel Quinn and Tedi Thurman, the girl who does the sexy weather reports on NBC's Monitor, a rather weird new approach in bookings.

star Ronald When opened Tuesday night's CBS-TV Spotlight Playhouse with: "There was one word for our situation-desperate:" It turned out he was talking about being surrounded by Irdians. For one wild moment, I thought he was talking about summer TV.

The Channel Swim: "The Rivalry." a play about the Lincoln-Douglas debates which was seen this past season on Broadway, is under consideration by CBS-TV as a special for next season. Pat Carroll, recently dropped from the panel of CBS-TV's Keep Talking, returns to the show July 8 to July 29.

There's a report floating around that NBC-TV's Jack Paar is drop-ping his friend of some 16 years. Chris Carroll, from his backstage staff — Carroll books in many of the feature acts seen on the show.

Jack Benny will do three specials for CBS-TV next season.

Tuesday Weld, the young actress recently described by Danny Kaye as "15, going on 27." has been signed in for "Secret Island," as activated for the season of the seaso land," an episode scheduled for ABC-TV's 77 Sunset Strip next semester Carl Reiner will check out of the emcee job on CBS-TV's Keep Talking after July 15 to make a movie — Vincent Price will spell him on July 22.
