Price, Young Wed In Washington, D.C.

Margaret Grace Price, daughter of Major and Mrs. Thomas L. Price of Scott Air Force Base, Belleville, Ill., and Dale L. Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Young of La Grande, were married June 7.

Chaplain, Lt. Col. Rory Terry performed the ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base Chapel, Washington, D. C.

Martha Thomas sang "Of Perfect Love," "The Lord's Prayer," and "I Love Thee." The chapel was decorated with white gladiolus on the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white tulle dress, ballerina length gown. Her veil was shoulder length and made of tulle. She carried a bouquet of

Women Return From Session Of Sorority

Mrs. Wayne Drummond and Mrs. Jerry Binger returned Sunday from Portland where they spent the weekend attending the 12th annual International Convention of Epsilon Sigma Alpha.

The First General Assembly was held recently with Governor Mark Hatfield welcoming the Convention delegates. Workshops followed in the afternoon. A salmon barbecue was held at Jantzen Beach park to end the day's activities.

Saturday saw the election of officers for the coming year, the second general assembly, and the installation banquet, followed by two dances: "Night in Bagdad," and "Mardi Gras."

The officers for the coming year are: Wilhelmina Herbin, North Carolina, president; Myre Starr, Oklahoma, first vice president; Becky Rogers, Louisiana, second vice president; Francis Bridges, North Carolina, corresponding secretary; Dorothy Landry, Oregon, recording secretary; Kay McLaughlin, Colorado, treasurer; and Naomi Roberts, Washington, parliamentarian.

After the Sunday morning brunch the new officers were introduced and awards were presented to those chapters doing the most outstanding work for the past year.

Many states were represented at the convention and our 49th state, Alaska, had five representatives at the meeting.

Supermarket Boss Lets Wife Shop

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Wives of supermarket managers say their husbands DON'T bring home the bacon.

They leave grocery shopping chores to the staff side. And like most husbands, they rarely have an answer to the age-old question, "What would you like for dinner, dear?"

This was disclosed in an informal survey of family shopping habits by the National Association of Food Chains.

Wives of the nine national winners of the association's annual good citizenship awards for community service also indicated that their husbands were little or no help in meal preparation.

Like any smart homemaker, the supermarket manager's wife asks herself four questions as she makes out her shopping list:

—Will the family like each item? Is it nutritious? Is the price right? Is it in season?

Convenience is also important. One out of the nine wives said she did not stop at her husband's store.

Movement From America Helps Revitalize Church

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Staff Writer

LONDON (UPI)—A movement imported from America is helping to revitalize the Church of England.

This ancient institution, which is the parent body of U.S. Episcopalians and Methodists, has long suffered from a conspicuous lack of popular support.

Of the 40 million people who live in England, 27 million, or two thirds, are nominally members of the established church. But only one-tenth of them attend worship services on Easter Sunday, the day of the biggest turnout.

Public apathy is particularly evident in church finances. Even if you count only the Easter communicants as church members, the average rec-will contribution from the man in the pew figures out to less than 35 cents per member per week.

U.S. Averages $1.20 Weekly

These figures may sound shocking in America, where more than 50 per cent of the church members attend worship services each

Sunday, and where the average financial contribution (counting even the nominal members) is about $1.20 a week.

But to English churchmen, they are not surprising. This country has experienced a religious revival since World War II, but its impact has been felt primarily among intellectuals, particularly at the great Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and in the upper economic groups. The majority of working people, far more class conscious here than in America, tend to identify the church with landlords and managers, and they are not easily persuaded that its religion is relevant to their embattled lives.

The church is trying in many different ways to break through this inherited barrier of disaffection. It is learning to speak out boldly on issues of popular concern, from birth control to nuclear tests. It is sending specially-trained industrial chaplains into the factory areas of South London, Sheffield, Bristol and Birmingham, to make friends with workers at their jobs and in their homes. It is appealing to young people through a growing network of youth clubs that sponsor every kind of activity from rock-and-roll music sessions to week-end religious retreats. It is trying to make worship more meaningful, by soft-pedaling the unctuous sermon and restoring the sacrament of Holy Communion to the central place at the Sunday morning service.

Bear Fruit Noticeable

All of these things have begun to bear fruit, not in a spectacular way, but noticeably. The most important change that has taken place, according to church leaders, stems from an idea that was quite frankly borrowed from America.

About five years ago, parishes in several parts of England began to experiment with the Christian stewardship movement which has long been the mainstay of church finance in America.

Stewardship is based on the recognition that a Christian cannot "give" in the ordinary sense of the word, because everything he "owns" already belongs to God.

Huntington were visitors in La Grande Thursday. They also visited her mother here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winter and three sons, Russell, Cricky and Brian, have been in La Grande for about three weeks visiting friends and relatives. Mrs. Winter is the former Nancy Bohnenkamp. While here they stayed in the home of her sister, Betty Bohnenkamp. They left Thursday by car for their home in Manhattan, Kan.

A Drivers License Examiner will be on duty in La Grande Tuesday at 108 Depot street, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. according to announcement by the Department of Motor Vehicles of Oregon. Persons wishing original licenses or permits to drive are asked to file applications well ahead of the closing hour to assure time for completion of the required license test.

The La Grande Senior High School pep club will hold an important meeting on Monday evening at 5:30, in front of the Junior High School. All members are being asked to attend.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann: What am I going to do with my wife? Innocently I fell in love with a sweet young girl and I can't get over it.

I've decided to stay with my wife and four kids because we used to get along fine before this love affair hit, and I think we can manage again.

But my wife is not at all understanding, Ann. She keeps asking me if I still love her. I tell her not to push me, that I've decided to stay with her and that should be enough.

I see the other girl occasionally and my wife knows it. She doesn't mention it often, but when she does I want to pack up and leave. I can't stand that hurt look in her eyes. Why can't she act like everything is normal and give me a chance to get hold of my emotions? After all, I'm trying my best and I'm not a machine.—All Shook Up.

Dear Shook: So you're not a machine and you're "trying your best." Well—I've got news — your wife's not a machine either and she's probably trying HER best, too. You expect a great deal of a woman when you ask her to act like everything is normal when she knows her husband is seeing a sweet young thing on the side. If you're serious about wanting to make a go of your marriage cut all ties with this girl and let your wife know you've finished with it.

Dear Ann: My wife and I find your replies sensible and practical. We'd like your opinion on the following: Should a young person (boy or girl) after finishing school and securing a well-paying position, continue to live with parents and not pay for room and board?

We know of cases where the young people live at home free, buy themselves expensive clothes, cars and take trips while their parents struggle to make ends meet. Is this the modern way of doing things?—Molly and Bill.

Dear Molly and Bill: People who struggle to put their children through school, then permit them to live at home free while they spend money on luxuries, are not modern, they're stupid. Even if parents do not need financial help they should accept some compensation so their children can maintain their self-respect. Employed sons and daughters living at home should contribute between 25 and 30 per cent of their paychecks to parents who need a financial lift. This is much less than it would cost them to live elsewhere.

Chemical Firm Buys Fire Flies

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Need a second income? You might try catching fire flies and selling them to a chemical company here which is willing to pay 25 cents for 100 of the live insects.

The firm wants to collect a million fire flies because they are good sources of two chemicals called luciferase and luciferin, which combine to put the on-and-off glow into the bug's tail.

Scientists of the Sigma Chemical Co. will use the luciferase and luciferin to measure the amount of adenosine triphosphate in human tissue. This compound is the source of energy for many reactions of the human body.
