ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My fiancé plans to give me a ring on my 18th birthday. He's 19 and we are both high school graduates. He insists this is one of the biggest moments of our entire lives. He wants his young brother to be on hand taking moving pictures of him putting the ring on my finger, the kiss to seal it, and our folks congratulating us. He claims we will be very glad we have this film for posterity.

I am violently against this idea and have said so. I think this sacred moment should be between two people. The idea of having his kid brother hanging around with a moving picture camera makes me sick. I don't want his parents or mine looking on either. He feels so strongly about this that he says either I agree or the engagement is off.

I thought I loved him but now I'm not so sure. Neither of us has ever dated anyone else. We've lived next door since we were 7. I'd like your opinion before I turn over the apple cart in haste.—Wanting Privacy.

Dear Wanting: If all the engagement means to him is something to take pictures of—then you'd better tip over the apple cart and pronto. In my opinion, you are both too young for marriage. And he's an immature 19-year-old as evidenced by his notion of what an engagement ring presentation should be. I suggest you call off the engagement and both date others. If after a year or so you two think you were meant for each other, pick up the loose ends and go together again. You both remind me of the worm in horse radish. He thought it was the sweetest place in the world—because that was the only place he'd ever been.

Dear Ann: I'm so confused I don't know what to do. Two years ago I divorced my husband against the violent protests of my three daughters. He begged me to reconsider, but my pride was hurt and I went through with it. I began dating a European man and was quite thrilled with his fine manners and his warm attitude toward my daughters. Now I feel as if the bottom has dropped out of my world. He is a different person entirely.

He became very strict with the girls and they've soured on him. He made me quit work and sell my car. He had the telephone removed and insists on opening all the mail. He stopped the daily paper and I have to buy it on the stand.

Yesterday he struck the eldest girl and she threatened to tell her father. If she does tell he'll try to take all the girls from me. I know now my first husband was more of a man than this one well ever be. I shouldn't have divorced him. I'm miserable and heart sick. What shall I do? —M. M. M.

Dear M. M. M.: This problem should be discussed with your clergyman. Sounds like you jumped from the frying pan into the fire. Maybe with luck you can get back into the frying pan.

4-H Members Hold Camp

The Union County annual 4-H Camp was held July 9 through 11, at Mt. Emily Logging Camp. There were 35 boys and girls attending this camp.

James Huber was in charge of the group. Members received instructions in forestry, wild life, fishing, photography, hand-craft, rope halter making, safety and how to read a compass.

The La Grande National Guard took the members to the Rifle Range where they all got a chance to use fire arms.

On the final day they went to Lehman Hot Springs for swimming. This is one of the largest pools in this area and is located 15 miles from the Mt. Emily Camp.

4-H Club News

Kay Griffith called the meeting of the Wa-du-ke, 4-H Club, to order. She was acting president.

Gloria Gray and Lora Murdock brought action pictures to show. The group played games.

There were eight members and one visitor present. They all participated in a club yell.

Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned. The next meeting will be held at the grange hall.

Shakespearean Festival Increases Concert Series

Richard Dyer-Bennet, noted tenor and guitarist, will augment the Oregon Shakespearean Festival's 19th season with a series of concerts the afternoons of August 5, 6, and 7 in Ashland.

Currently on his annual American concert tour under the management of S. Hurok, the well-known singer of folk and art songs will celebrate the 15th anniversary of his first Manhattan Town Hall recital. In his recital at Ashland Dyer-Bennet will present some of the more than 600 examples of folk songs in his repertoire, including many of particular interest to Festival visitors such as the song of victory sung by the conquering English soldiers after the battle of Agincourt, tunes which delighted Queen Elizabeth and her court, and haunting sea chanteys.

Born in England, Dyer-Bennet grew up in Berkeley, Calif. He was preparing for a concert career when, on a trip to Sweden, he heard the famed old troubadour Sven Scholander, and was so impressed he set about collecting his own repertoire in the virtually undeveloped field of American and English folk-songs. Since his Town Hall debut in 1944 he has given 17 major New York concerts, and has become a favorite with audiences from coast to coast.

Dyer-Bennet will appear in three different recitals in Ashland at 2:30 p.m. each afternoon at the Varsity theater. Ticket prices for this special Festival are priced at $2.40 and $1.80 and are available at all Festival Ticket Agencies, as well as at the box office in Ashland.

Other special concert events on the Oregon Shakespearean Festival agenda for this 1959 season will include a return engagement of the popular ballet Celeste, San Francisco's famous young classical ballet company, who will present matinee performances daily from Saturday, Aug. 15.

A series of classic motion picture films will also provide additional afternoon entertainment for the thousands of Festival visitors. Films chosen for artistic merit and popular appeal will be shown daily at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the American Legion hall across from Lathia park.

The extended events calendar rounds out the 19th Oregon Shakespearean Festival which will open its new $275,000 theater on July 28 with the first performance of The Masque of the Red Death and Twelfth Night. "King John," "Measure for Measure," and "Anthony and Cleopatra" round out the schedule of plays which permits the patron to Stay Four Days, See Four Plays. For any ticket or reservation information, write "Shakespeare," Ashland.

Indians To Hunt, Fish For Free

OLD TOWN, Maine (UPI) — Descendants of the Indians who taught the white man how to hunt and fish will save wampum under the new law recently passed by the Maine legislature.

The act permits members of the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy tribes to obtain free hunting and fishing licenses for the first time since the state established hunting and fishing regulations.

Under the new law Indians will save $2.75 a year for hunting licenses and $2.75 for fishing permits. The act affects some 1,200 Indians, about half in each tribe. Most of the Penobscots live in their own village at Old Town.

conditioned ward and 75 in a ward that wasn't.

Ebersman said "air conditioning eliminated sweating, fostered a calm and quiet atmosphere, improved morale of both patients and attending personnel, removed allergens from the environment and increased the tolerance of enforced bed rest."

As for cardiac patients, Ebersman said the heart did not have to work as hard in an air-conditioned room as it did when the atmosphere was warm and humid.

We are often asked, "What causes a garment to change in size or shape?" In other words, what makes it shrink or stretch? Many fabrics, by virtue of their fiber content, weave and the finishing treatment given them, have a certain amount of potential shrinkage. Wool fibers, for example, are extremely sensitive to high temperatures. The weave of a fabric is responsible for the greatest shrinkage factor. Most woollens today are pre-shrunk. But even so, your cleaner must take great care to determine and maintain as far as possible a garment's original size and shape.

Crepe weaves have a marked tendency to shrink or stretch. The crepe effect is formed by tightly twisted threads running in one direction. How much a crepe fabric will shrink or stretch depends on whether the fibers have been over-stretched during the finishing process. If over-stretched the fabric is almost certain to shrink. If to little stretching has taken place to give a heavy creped effect, the fabric will most likely stretch from ordinary wear and cleaning.

Sizing a garment is one of the many "extras" in our cleaning service. We try to return each article you send us thoroughly cleaned and "sized" to its proper measurement. For extra care and extra value at no extra cost.

REMEMBER

Inspect
The garment after wearing—if it is too soiled for the next wearing, it is too soiled to hang back in the closet!
