

OJT OUR WAY

By J. R. Williams

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

With Major Hoople

WILLIAM EWALD SAYS:

Less Enthusiasm For Golf Than Stomach Commercials

NEW YORK (UPI)—My enthusiasm for televised golf is somewhat less than that for stomach acid commercials, but there's little doubt that the principal drama of the week end was manufactured by the pro golf tournament on CBS-TV.

CBS-TV devoted an hour on Saturday and 90 minutes Sunday to portions of the 72-hole competition from Minneapolis and from this mass of play there issued two moments of medium sublimity.

The first took place at the close of hostilities Saturday when Jerry Barber, a wee fellow who had never won a major tourney in 20 years of competition, potted a 35-foot putt on the last hole of the third round. The putt pitched Barber ahead of the whole field and when the TV camera zoomed in on the little California pro, the screen lit up with a study in controlled ecstasy.

Sunday, the drama turned back upon itself. Barber gooted on the penultimate hole and then failed to dunk a 14-footer on the final hole that would have given him a tourney tie. This time, the TV camera caught Barber in a different pose—body slumped, face slack and awash with color before he recovered and unleashed a forced smile.

It was the sort of thing TV does best—drama caught on the wing, an event happening in the now, uncluttered, bare-boned, extravagantly raw. It put to shame all of the waxen, counterfeited reformed filmed drivel that littered the channels all week end.

CBS-TV's Stripe Playhouse trotted out on Friday a number called "A Ballad to Die For," a pilot film for a projected Western series filmed by Jack Webb's Mark VII firm.

It was another one of those things about a wandering cowboy hero of moderately grotesque habits—he plays guitar for his horse, shoots villains by ricocheting bullets off gravestones, kisses girls and skedaddles off—and is neither worse nor better than dozens of its kind jumbling the airwaves.

Its most noteworthy feature was some of its camerawork which struck me as offset for a Western—zoomar shots, pore-searching closeups, express-speed pans.

The Channel Swim: Masquerade Party, which gets the ax at NBC-TV on Sept. 24, may wind up in a Wednesday night spot this fall on ABC-TV. Jack Lemmon turned down the lead in "What Makes Sammy Run," the two-part NBC-TV special set for Sept. 27 and Oct. 4, because of other commitments. The female lead in the Budd Schulberg drama is being pitched at Martha Hyer.

Claudette Colbert and Robert Preston will star in "The Bells of St. Mary's," the 90-minute CBS-TV spec slated for Oct. 27. Dick Clark's upcoming ABC-TV panel show, World of Talent, having signed on Jack E. Leonard as a permanent panelist, is now looking for a female plank siter—the third panelist on the show will be a swing guest.

George Scott has joined Geraldine Page and Jason Robards Jr. in the cast of "People Kill People Sometimes," the NBC-TV drama special scheduled for Sept. 20. Fred Astaire and Johnny Mercer have written a tune, "The Afterbeat," which Astaire will introduce on his Nov. 4 NBC-TV special. Roger Hirsom's "The Boss," a drama about a political reformer who turns into a machine boss, is one of the properties set for NBC-TV's new Sunday showcase series.

Side Glances

"Do you realize Bobby has a steady girl and you haven't taught him a thing about cooking?"

Steven Rockefeller To Wed In Rustic Norwegian Church

KRISTIANSAND, Norway (UPI)—Steven Rockefeller expects his "whole family" to attend his Aug. 22 wedding to pretty Anne Marie Rasmussen, the Rockefeller's former maid.

That included the prospective father-in-law, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who said he and his wife were "delighted" with the match. The governor, who is attending a governors' conference in San Juan, Puerto Rico, smilingly told a news conference he soon might be making a non-political trip to Scandinavia.

In announcing their engagement, Steven, 23, and Anne Marie, 21, said they planned to be married in the rustic, wooden church in Miss Rasmussen's nearby hometown of Sogne, take a brief honeymoon, and then set up housekeeping in a New York apartment.

Steven said Sunday he expects the whole Rockefeller family to be on hand for his wedding if it is at all possible.

Steven said that after the marriage and honeymoon he plans to go into "the family business" which gave him a rather wide choice of job possibilities.

Although Anne Marie once worked as a maid in the Rockefeller home while visiting the United States to learn English, her marriage to a Rockefeller did not exactly depict a rags-to-riches romance. Her father, now retired, was a well-to-do grocer in Sogne.

However, the marriage does mean a drastic change for blonde-haired, blue-eyed Anne Marie. It will take her from Norway to the United States, and from one of the world's smaller communities to its largest.

Anne Marie said she is aware that her life will be changed when she marries Steven, but she added, "whatever happens and whatever my station in life will be, I

Rifle Shot Fatally Wounds 4-Year-Old

CAVE JUNCTION (UPI)—A 4-year-old Bridgeview boy, Daniel Clinton Smith, was fatally wounded Saturday while playing with a .22 caliber rifle in the back of a pickup truck when the weapon accidentally discharged.

Daniel and a 9-year-old companion found the loaded rifle in the parked truck near the Smith boy's home near here, according to Virgil Hull, coroner for Josephine county.

Hull said Daniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Smith, was dead on arrival at a physician's office here.

NAPLES OFF BOTTLE

NAPLES, Italy (UPI)—Normal water service was restored to this port city Sunday after a dry week that put some 600,000 Neapolitans on the bottle. The water supplies were cut off last Sunday when a landslide blocked a main aqueduct leading from the mountains, and many residents had to resort to beer, wine and soft drinks to quench their thirst.

THE STORY OF MARTHA WAYNE

By Wilson Scruggs

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Merrill Blosser

CAPTAIN EASY

By Leslie Turner

ALLEY OOP

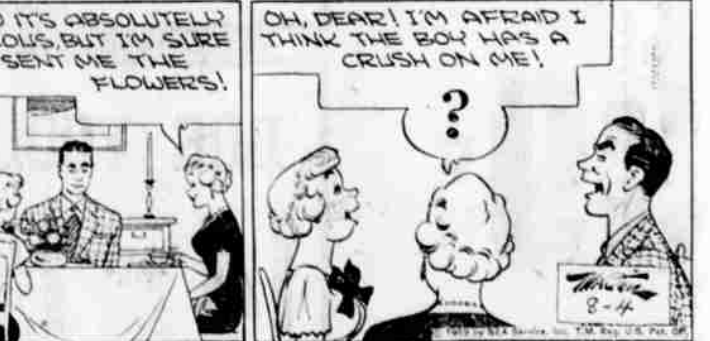

By V. T. Hamlin

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

By Edgar Martin

PRISCILLA'S POP

By Al Vermeer

BUGS BUNNY

By Al Vermeer

Advertisement for MOEN plumbing fixtures. Text: 'Be modern with MOEN insist on convenient single-handle faucet... when you buy a new home... when you remodel'. Includes an illustration of a faucet and contact information for Wm. Bohnenkamp Plumbing-Heating-Sheet Metal.

DAILY TV LOG table with columns for MONDAY and TUESDAY, listing programs and times for stations KREM, KXLY, and KHQ.

Scottish Poet crossword puzzle and Answer to Previous Puzzle. Includes a grid for the crossword and a list of answers for the previous puzzle.