

Shrine Team To Work Under Lights Tonight

The East Shrine team went through the second day of drills and the competition for eleven starting berths grew hotter.

Head coach Al Keck sent the team through pass offense and protection drills during the morning session. The 24 all-stars also bumped heads in a light scrimmage.

Coaches are still looking for a field general to guide the team. Del Hall, Umatilla, and Bill Ransome, Culver, are the two leading candidates for the quarterback spot.

Coaches also had the players trying their kicking ability in an attempt to find a punter and place kicker. The biggest part of the days work consisted of line drills and pass offense.

Dick Ruhl, Heppner, Bud Maupin, Merrill and Gary Marr. Entrance, lead the backs during the second day of drills. A pair of ends, Dave Hockett, Joseph, and Charles Roller, Merrill were singled out for praise for their showing during yesterday's drills.

Marr also has been doing some work at the quarterback spot. Bob Ball, Huntington, and Gerald Carlson, Culver were the first casualties of the training period. Ball suffered a sprained elbow in practice and Carlson sprained an ankle.

Bird Hunters May Find Poor Fall Gunning

PORTLAND (UPI)—Upland bird hunters may find only fair gunning this fall in many parts of Oregon despite the high carry-over of adult birds this spring, the State Game Commission said today.

The commission said the optimistic outlook during its spring breeding survey had turned to one of concern following incomplete brood counts in several key upland bird areas.

Field reports indicated nesting conditions in eastern Oregon have been the poorest in years, and brood counts on pheasants, quail and partridge appear to be considerably below the counts of last year. Production in the Willamette valley and in Jackson and Klamath counties seems to be about normal.

In Umatilla county, pheasant production appears to be critical, the commission said, with reports showing only 40 per cent of the hens with broods. It also noted that these broods are small, averaging only three chicks per brood. Last year during the mid-July counts, 81 per cent of the hens were with broods which averaged 5.7 chicks per brood.

Valley quail and Hungarian partridge production in Umatilla county is also low, and the chukar partridge observed to date show only 17 per cent of the hens with broods compared to 80 per cent last year.

Pheasant production appears to be low in Malheur county with incomplete returns showing 53 per cent of the hens having broods averaging 4.6 chicks per brood compared to 71 per cent average or 7 chicks last year. Other upland bird species in Malheur county show poor production, particularly chukars and sage grouse.

The statewide inventory of upland game bird production was expected to be completed today to provide the latest information for a Friday 14 hearing when the seasons and bag limits for 1959 will be set.

he thought the two boys would be ready to go at top speed again in a few days.

The team was scheduled for a light workout this morning and a brief contact drill under the lights tonight.

Reports from Pendleton indicate that this year's East team will go into the game with a big weight advantage.

The West team took the day off today and visited the Lee Foster ranch near town for a barbecue and swim.

Pittsburgh Nabs 34-20 Victory

The Pittsburgh Steelers, packing a goal-line punch, are set to renew the 1958 surge that made them the hottest team in the National Football League at the tail-end of the season.

Pittsburgh opened its exhibition swing Tuesday night by scoring four touchdowns from inside the 10-yard line, two with less than two minutes remaining, to defeat the Cleveland Browns, 34-20.

The Steelers, undefeated in their final seven games last season, broke the game apart when halfback Ray Mathews cut over from right guard from the eight-yard line to put Pittsburgh in front, 27-20. With six seconds to go, linebacker Vic Lasse intercepted Kim Ninoski's pass and ran to the one, where rookie halfback Jim Smith scored.

Jim Krutko, former West Virginia star, went over from the two in the first period to open the scoring. Cleveland tied it at 7-7 on Jimmy Brown's 74-yard run and went ahead, 10-7, on a 37-yard field goal by Lou Groza.

Bobby Layne culminated a 75-yard march with a touchdown sneak from the one-yard line to make it 14-10 at the half, but Brown sent Cleveland ahead again with a seven-yard plunge in the third period. Tom Miner found the range with a 23-yard field goal to tie the game and put Pittsburgh ahead 20-17 with one from the 14 at the start of the final period.

Groza retaliated with a 21-yard boot which set the stage for Mathews' game winning score and coach Buddy Parker's first victory over Cleveland as a Steeler coach.

The game was the first of five exhibitions to be played this week. The Baltimore Colts meet the College All-Stars Friday night while three Saturday night clashes find the New York Giants playing the Philadelphia Eagles at Hershey, Pa., the Detroit Lions meeting the Chicago Cardinals at Norman, Okla., and the Green Bay Packers playing the Chicago Bears at Milwaukee.

GRAHAM WON'T PREDICT
EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—College All-Star coach Otto Graham refused Tuesday to predict the outcome of Friday night's clash with the Baltimore Colts at Chicago's Soldier Field. Graham, promising an interesting game against the National Football League champions, said he hoped the result would be the same as last year. The stars beat the Detroit Lions, 35-19 last August.

California's climate ranges from subtropical to frigid and its annual rainfall varies from less than two inches a year in the southeast desert to more than 100 inches on the northwest coast.

Reporter Skips Press Table Gossip Session To Pen Book

By FRANK ELEAZER UPI Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although there is nothing in the Guild contract to actually require it, every self-respecting congressional correspondent is expected to spend some part of each working day acting wise at the table reserved for the press in the senators' dining room.

There he will exchange lofty thoughts with his peers and otherwise manifest his grasp of the legislative slowdown. Later it is considered appropriate to transfer these intellectual exercises to the National Press Club, where "what really happened" is generally divulged not later than midnight.

Now it comes out through what one sneaky fellow has been doing for most of the past 15 years. In clear violation of the unwritten rules of repartorial conduct, Allen Drury, former United Press International reporter and since 1954 Senate correspondent of the New York Times, has been keeping his mouth shut and his eyes and ears open, acting on his occasional stops at the press table as if all he knew was what he wrote for the papers. Nights he mostly went home.

Drury Wrote Book
Instead of regaling us with his findings, Drury saw fit to jot down what he learned on wads of the yellow paper that is the hall mark of congressional reporters. We were left to the son. David and a daughter, Laura. They will make their home at 1308 4th street.

charitable assumption he was engaged merely in preparing his exclusive for Monday.

The results of this eccentric behavior were published Monday by Doubleday & Co. in the form of a novel called "Advise and Consent." It is probably the biggest, fattest volume since "Gone With the Wind," and the critics seem almost as happy with it.

I'm no critic, but I sat up with an advance copy for several nights, until my arms were paralyzed, and I am as astounded at what Allen Drury has perceived through the years as at his ability to tell us about it.

I just never figured Drury as the gossip type. But it's all right there in the book and for $5.75 you get 616 powerful pages of fiction built around a considerable body of truth about the way things sometimes are done here.

Critics Are Favorable

As the title suggests, the story is about a controversial nomination to the office of Secretary of State, and what this does to the Senate. Although the book hits the stores in the wake of Lewis L. Strauss' rejection by the Senate as Secretary of Commerce, it was conceived and mostly finished before President Eisenhower even thought of naming Strauss to this post. Strauss in fact is one of several people in official Washington who will not be able to find themselves in the book anywhere.

Another figure suggested nowhere in the book, as far as I could see, is Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.) and the Washington Post-Times Herald got him to review it. McCarthy in Sunday's paper called it a fine novel, and went to some lengths, I thought, to point out that a novel, after all, is all it is.

Mary McGory, a reviewer for the Washington Star, gave Drury's book a rave notice. Tom Donnelly of the Washington Daily News called it "the best novel about Washington anyone has written," although, as befits a story about the Senate, a little too windy.

The Book of the Month Club selected "Advise and Consent" for August. The Reader's Digest Condensed Book Club has picked it for October. It's being published also in England. Both Hollywood and Broadway are nibbling.

For this, Drury passed up his chance to limnence at the press table. It's hard to figure some people.
