'Blasting Dirt Off Dishes' May Be Seen In Near Future

By ELMER C. WALZER UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ladies, it won't be long now before you'll be able literally to blast the dirt off your dishes with millions of the silent explosions you never heard.

riad purposes. It's a product of the Narda Ultrasonic Corp. Present uses include removal of dirt, grime and grease from jet engine nozzles and oil filters which until now had to be discarded and replaced with new ones.

One Lucky Housewife

There is only one lady in all the world who has one of those machines. She is Mrs. Mabel Welden, Boca Raton, Fla. She won it on a quiz show. Hers is an ultrasonic silverware and jewelry cleaner which up to now had been made only for industrial cleaning.

Niki Likes Talk Better Than Bomb

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG UPI Staff Writer

GENEVA (UPI)—The Berlin showdown has been postponed for months—perhaps for years. A nuclear third world war over the divided city is less likely now than at any time since Nov. 27, 1958, when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev rocked the West with his ultimatum to get out of Berlin in six months.

Platzman explains how the principle which saves the jet nozzles is working in a thousand and one ways on other applications. "It's being used," he says, "in the manufacture of delicate contact lenses and in cleaning fine jewelry, in insuring accurate performance of rockets and missiles and in guarding against inaccurate electric power bills by cleaning meters so that they function properly."

Sound Waves Do Work

As Platzman explains it, the ultrasonic cleaner operates with what he calls a transducer, a kind of electronic tuning fork which converts high frequency electrical energy into high frequency sound waves and introduces them into a tank full of cleaning solution.

In the opinion of informed and responsible Western diplomats, easing of the Berlin crisis was the main achievement of the Big Four foreign ministers conference which ended here last Wednesday.

Crisis "Talked Out"

The Berlin crisis, and the Khrushchev time-bomb were "talked out" in Geneva, in the belief of Western diplomats. And the 10-week deadlock of the Western and Soviet foreign ministers led indirectly to the exchange of visits between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

The sound waves alternately compress and decompress the solution, which may be nothing more than detergent and water. 40,000 times a second, creating a swirling sea of sub-microscopic vacuum bubbles.

As millions of these bubbles form swiftly and collapse violently, the action blasts loose dirt, grease and other contaminants. The solution may seem to come to a light boil, but it does not heat up. Hence the expression, cold boiling.

When Khrushchev sprang his ultimatum last November, the West was caught by surprise. Worse still, it was caught without any agreed policy.

The North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) Allies at their Christmas meeting in Paris talked tough about never being driven out of Berlin. But there was a lack of conviction in their tough talk.

It became pretty obvious to West that Khrushchev himself preferred talks to H-bombs.

The hectic "peace missions" of Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Moscow, Paris, Bonn and Washington in the spring merely pointed up the Western state of jitters without achieving much in the way of a United Western policy.

But the Geneva foreign ministers talks, which opened May 11, ushered in a new phase in East-West relations.

It became pretty obvious to West that Khrushchev himself preferred talks to H-bombs.

ASTAIRE, KELLY DISCUSS THE STATE OF THE DANCE

By VERNON SCOTT UPI Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The nation's two favorite dancers—Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly—made their first appearance together in more than ten years this week, but neither danced a step.

The hoofers spent an hour discussing the state of the dance on a local TV panel show. "Hollywood Diary" (KTLA) and concluded there is nothing for dancers to click their heels about.

Preparing an hour-long TV show takes as much thought and planning as a movie," said Astaire. "My second show, 'Another Evening With Fred Astaire,' is in the works right now. We expect to spend eight weeks working out the choreography and specialty numbers."

Kelly chuckled. "I just wrapped up my second one. This time with Donald O'Connor, but it won't be seen until late this year," he said.

While Kelly and Astaire are not close friends, they have tremendous respect for one another's ability.

"Fred is the best dancer I've ever seen," Gene averred. "I don't know about that," Astaire countered. "I'm never quite sure what I'm going to do. The toughest part about dancing is dreaming up the routines. Executing them is simple by comparison."

Asked why this country hasn't come up with top-flight dance troupes such as Russia's Moiseyev and Bolshoi groups, the dancers had ready answers.
