Building Fear That Visits May Lead To Asian Letdown

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
UPI Staff Writer

TOKYO (UPI) — There is a building fear in the minds of many Americans that the Eisenhower - Khrushchev visits may lead to a terrific letdown in Asia. And that means literally as well as figuratively. But mostly literally.

It must be understood that just as the West, for all its best efforts, is lacking in insight into the ways of Asia, so Asia is unsophisticated in its understanding of the doings of the great powers of Europe and North America.

Asia has all the cohesive qualities of quicksilver. But soundings made by United Press International throughout the vast area indicate that, at least from the American point of view, too much is being expected of these historic visits of the two most powerful leaders in the world today.

The danger is, again from the American standpoint, that the sweetness and light will cut the ground from under the strong preparedness stand taken by our allies in Asia; weaken the pro-Western stand of government leaders in such countries as Japan and the Philippines; and strengthen the hand of the Communists in the so-called neutralist nations of Asia.

Plainly, the fear is that the visits have been "oversold."

Diplomat Gives Views

Not long ago, this correspondent talked at length with one of the top American diplomats in Asia, one with long experience in East-West affairs, and one who long has been advocating "summit conferences" as often as the Russians want to hold them.

"The big fear," he said, "is got in meeting with the Russians—but in giving the world the idea that something might result from such meetings."

Ultimately, he reasoned, we must meet with the Russians. But if we keep on insisting we won't meet with them unless concrete results are assured, then we are in danger of building up for the letdown when "ultimately" we do get together.
