Sam Levenson Show Dies Next Month; Arthur Due

By FRED DANZIG
UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Term ends Sept. 25." This chalked notice on the blackboard that Sam Levenson uses during his morning CBS-TV show is Sam's subtle way of saying, "We're dead, folks."

The show that replaced Arthur Godfrey last April is scheduled to die next month and it is doubtful that even the last-minute letter-writing flurry can change things.

The shackled message serves as the handwriting on the wall insofar as improved standards for daytime TV are concerned. The mild bits of rocking chair wisdom and dinner table deep-thinking that were passed along by Levenson and his predecessor, Godfrey, are finished. The daytime "talk show" is clamping up.

Despite high-sounding statements from networks, it seems that the daytime viewer still is regarded, basically, as a creature who prefers the formula shows—the ones that give away prizes or deal with broken hearts and broken dreams. If this is not the case, why does a common sense show lose its toe-hold in daytime TV after only a five-month run?

The final insult of course, is in the choice of a replacement for Levenson: Remains of the silly December Bride series, with all its uncanny mediocrity and canned laughter.

Now, I'm not suggesting that Levenson's is TV's finest half-hour (although it looks great next to December Bride). But he has attempted to deal with some aspects of American life that need discussion. And, despite a woeful start, in which Levenson tried too hard to be funny and gave his guests very little time to talk, he has made the right moves and developed his talents and come up with a tight fast-moving little show.

The show has room for improvement, of course, and I would like to see him dump the classroom props and get a kitchen or living room set for his gab-fests. The apple on teacher's desk is a mite too precious and teacher's desk seems to me to be a talk-preventer instead of a talk-encourager.

But it's too late now, I suppose. Let's make way for December Bride.

The Channel Swim: June Graham has replaced Joan Hotchkiss as Myra in CBS-TV's soap opera, "The Secret Storm," effective this week. Ginger Rogers will star in a forthcoming episode of CBS-TV's June Allyson Show called, "The Tender Shoot."

Merv Griffin is the new permanent emcee of the Keep Talking show starting this Wednesday. He replaces Carl Reiner, who has

Political Parties Feuding Over Leadership In Sicily

By WILLIAM J. FOX
UPI Staff Writer

From the foreign editor's notebook: Sicily Struggle

The political battle for control of Sicily apparently has just started. Thus far, it has been a rough, no-holds-barred fight in which the anti-Communists have suffered repeated defeats and undermined their own prestige through a series of grave mistakes. But they are reported determined to fight on against the Reds with every available weapon of political obstructionism and sabotage. The Communists scored last week with their machiavellian masterpiece when they joined to elect a regional government of "Christian Socials" and right wing turncoats under Silvia Milazzo. In return, Milazzo gave the Communists and left wing Socialists the support they needed to pack the seven legislative committees of the regional assembly. The catch is that Milazzo's government has only a one-vote margin in the assembly and can be overthrown by the Communists at any time. The Communists and Socialists, on the other hand, cannot be dislodged from the legislative committees which are elected for four-year terms, and thus control the real law-making power of Sicily.

Japan And Korea
Japan and the Republic of Korea, two of the United States' principal allies in Asia, still are deadlocked over resumption of diplomatic relations — and no early conclusion of current negotiations on that point appears in sight. Korea is angered over Tokyo's decision to repatriate Korean residents from Japan to Communist-run North Korea. And Japan feels just as strongly about Korea's establishment of President Syngman Rhee's fishery line. Korea is delaying lifting its ban on trade with Japan as a negotiating weapon, but observers feel this kind of pressure is likely to have little influence on Tokyo.

Diplomatic sources in Taipei are wondering what the Nationalist Chinese would do if Communist China should offer relief supplies to Formosa's flood and earthquake victims. Red China, also stricken with floods, rejected just such an offer from the Nationalists a few weeks ago, causing Taipei to say that Peiping felt no compassion for its needy citizens.

After President Charles de Gaulle visits Algeria on Aug. 27, the French are expected to make new efforts to arrange a meeting between "le grand Charlie" and King Mohammed V of Morocco in an effort to arrange some kind of Algerian settlement. Such a meeting appeared imminent less than a month ago when Mohammed was in Paris for medical treatment. But he left for home suddenly without seeing De Gaulle.

Agreement with The Philippines over the long-tangled issue of U.S. military bases now seems farther away than ever. U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen reportedly does not expect to reach any kind of agreement. And certain influential Filipinos apparently are determined to prevent agreement at all costs so the issue can be kept alive for future troublesome use.

moved to Hollywood. English actor Jack Hawkins has landed the leading male role in "The Fallen Idol," which will be seen on Oct. 14 over CBS-TV as the DuPont Show of the Month.

Jose Melis guests on NBC-TV's Jimmie Rodgers Show Tuesday, Sept. 1. Cliff Arquette, or Charlie Weaver to "his people," has signed a three-year contract with Don Feddersen Productions for a live comedy-interview series based on the old "Hobby Lobby" radio show.
