old and my little brother is 7. Our (ather travels and is hardly ever is he gets quite drunk occasionat home. Our mother is sick with ally (about twice a week) and he cancer and I overheard some relations is like a different person. tives say she probably won't live

Yesterday I got a letter from a boy who is a junior counselor at a Boy Scout camp. This woman op-ened the letter before I got it. I ened the letter before I got it. called me a sassy brat and hit me on the back with a frying pan. almost passed out from the pain. Today I can hardly walk.

Mom has a very nice sister but she's so busy going to the hospital every day I hate to bother her my troubles. I'm afraid after Mom passes on this woman will be in charge of us forever. What shall do?-Need a Friend.

Dear Need a Friend: Telephone or visit your aunt imme-diately and tell her of the frying pan incident. The woman should not be in charge of children I'm certain if your aunt knew the facts she would make different arrangements for you and you brother at once.

Dear Ann: I'm 29, single and have been seeing a let of a man 38. He is divorced. I never was a popular girl and to be perfectly nest, this is the first man who has suggested marriage.

My girl friend tells me there's ne such thing as a perfect mandidn't think she had any right to that I'm childish and short sighted to this and I told her so. She She says I'll regret being so fussy one day. Advise me, please-and remember, there's no one else in sight and I'm crowding 30.-Sorely Dear Sorely: A man who gets "quite drunk" twice a week is not my idea of a red-hot candiare "happy" when you're with him because he is a man, and to use your words "the only one in sight." But when reality sets in, you see him as he isplete with severely neurotic tendencies. Tell Jonathan you won't marry a man with an unresolved drinking problem but you are willing to give him a chance to dry out. If he proves he can stay off the sauce (with or without outside help) for six months, then consider marriage. But not until.
