Exemption Degree
Bothers Church Man
By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should U.S. churches voluntarily give up some of the tax exemptions they now enjoy?
The very idea may sound like heresy to hard-pressed church boards struggling with red-ink budgets. But the question has been raised by a man who can hardly be called irreligious or unsympathetic.
He is the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church and past president of the National Council of Churches.
Writing in the Protestant journal Christianity Friday, Dr. Blake warns that American churches will jeopardize their future effectiveness if they cling indefinitely to their present tax exemptions.
Tax Degree Bothers
He does not argue — as some people do — that any special tax treatment of churches is a violation of the constitutional principle which forbids an establishment of religion. On the contrary, he points out that the courts have often upheld the government's legal right to encourage "socially desirable undertakings" through tax policies favorable to such institutions as hospitals, schools and churches.
"It is the degree of tax exemption now accorded to churches that bothers Dr. Blake.
"Tax exemptions which are proper when churches are small, poor and weak may have highly unfortunate results to the churches and to society when the churches have grown large and rich," he says.
U.S. churches are now exempt from all property and income taxes. A recent act of Congress exempts them from paying federal excise taxes on purchases.
Moreover — and this is of particular concern to Dr. Blake — churches may own and operate profit-making businesses without
