Camp David Guarded By Fierce Sentries

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI Staff Writer

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: The Russian security agents being stationed at nearby Camp David for the week end meeting between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev would be well advised to take care if they feel like walking in the woods.

Patrolling the perimeter of the highly guarded camp are some snappish members of the K-9 corps, trained sentry dogs who're friendly only to the Marines who handle them.

Camp David is a Navy establishment and a small complement of sailors and Marines are stationed there the year around. For their benefit, the U.S. government has one mysterious piece of armed services equipment that may stop Khrushchev's claims that Russia has everything.

In fact, this piece of equipment may be something Khrushchev has never seen in his life—a bowling alley with electric, automatic pin-setters.

What happens this Sunday if the President invites the Russian boss to church — and Khrushchev accepts? How does a country parson preach to a publicly avowed atheist? Would Khrushchev's interpreter keep mumbling to the premier during the prayers?

These are some of the more interesting questions that have popped up in planning sessions preparatory to the Camp David meetings.

The Russian idea of equal treatment was demonstrated rather vividly the night the President went to dinner with Khrushchev at the Russian Embassy in Washington.

The night before, at the White House dinner, the office of Press

American Legion Post, Auxiliary Hold First Meet

Secretary James C. Hagerly put out the toasts of both the President and the premier in their entirety — every word uttered by the President in his toast, and every word of reply from Khrushchev, as relayed through his own interpreter.

Yet, when Eisenhower was the guest of the Russian Embassy, the Khrushchev party gave reporters a verbatim report of the premier's remarks, but only some abbreviated notes on what Eisenhower said, and very brief notes at that.

The Russians knew the White House had no way of getting the President's transcript at their embassy, but they didn't seem to give a hoot just so the reporters got a full count on what Khrushchev said.

Galloway Chapter Studies Africa

The September meeting of the Galloway Chapter of the Nazarene foreign Missionary Society was at the home of Mrs. Don Smith. Devotions were by Mrs. Marvin Fager. "Bringing Law and Order," chapter five of the study book, "Africa Emerging," was given by Mrs. Wendell Martin.

Mrs. William G. Blakeney, prayer and fasting secretary, presented the prayer requests. Among these, was requested prayer for Danny York, young son of the Leonard Yorks, who has been stricken with polio. His parents are Nazarene Missionaries to British Honduras. Mrs. Charles Zerby and Mrs. Wendell Martin led in prayer.

In the business meeting, membership pledges were taken for the Prayer and Fasting League. Also members were asked to renew subscriptions to the "Other Sheep," missionary magazine of the Church of the Nazarene.

Visitors introduced were Mrs. Joe Stercks and Mrs. Marvin Smith. Also present was Mrs. Gordon Martin, president of the local Nazarene Missionary Society. Others present were Mrs. Ed Alexander, Mrs. Orville Wilcox, Mrs. Lawrence Abla, Mrs. Don Hasse, Mrs. William Blakeney, Mrs. Everett Photen, Mrs. Charles Zerby, Mrs. Phil Martin, Mrs. Marvin Fager, Mrs. Wendell Martin, and the hostess, Mrs. Don Smith.

Idaho Couple Show Slides Of Gladioli

The Eastern Oregon Gladiolus Club held a potluck dinner in the Garden Clubhouse, Monday, with 28 members attending. The women served the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun from Caldwell, Idaho, showed slides of their prize winning gladioli, they raised this year.

Mrs. Florence Reeves and Elma Tovrea also showed slides taken at the local gladioli show and also the Portland State show, held out at the Centennial grounds.

Oscar Poarch was awarded the prize for the evening.

The attendance scores were counted and it ended in a tie, so instead of the intended dinner by the losing side, there will be a potluck for all.

Eastern Star Of Union Holds First Fall Meeting

UNION (Special)—The Order of Eastern Star held its first meeting of the fall recently in the Masonic Hall with a family potluck and business meeting.

Emma Bell, worthy matron, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Neil Morrison, worthy patron, assisted. There were about 40 members in attendance at the meeting with all officers present.

The business of the evening included the installation of officers. Standing committees for the year were appointed.

Plans for the school instruction Sept. 29 were discussed.

The group is planning a reception honoring Grande Adah, Oct. 3. Plans for the district meeting here Oct. 14 were also considered.

MAIDEN FLIGHT—Man's first step toward space flight was taken at Edwards A.F.B., Calif., as the Air Force's X-15 rocket ship successfully completed its first powered flight. The X-15, piloted by Scott Crossfield, was released from a B-52 bomber at 38,000 feet and reached an altitude above 50,000 feet with speeds in excess of 1000 miles per hour. The X-15 landed 10 minutes after launching.

'This Is Your Life' Master Of Ceremonies Sneaky Fellow

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Ralph Edwards, beginning his eighth year of "This Is Your Life" is getting sneaky.

With the improvement in video tape processes, the genial emcee can appear unexpectedly at any time of the day in any locality to pre-tape his top-rated program.

During the past seven years it became increasingly difficult to lure celebrities to the Hollywood NBC-TV studios on Wednesday nights without having them suspect they would be the subject of "This Is Your Life." Now Edwards has a new lease on "life."

"We also have the added element of 'Where's It Going To Be' as well as 'Who's It Going To Be,'" Edwards grinned.

"Our first show goes on the air Sept. 30 from New York. Of course, the guest's name can't be revealed, but I will say we'll have the most distinguished show in our history. The guests include Vice President Nixon, Aly Khan, the Premier of Iran and Bernard Baruch."

Last year Edwards experimented with taping his show in advance, then publicizing who the principal subject would be. In the case of Dick Clark, popular Philadelphia disc jockey, the ratings jumped impressively.

"The idea has its advantages and drawbacks," he explained.

"Many people like to know in advance so they can tune in to watch a favorite. Others feel the surprise element will be missing. 'We'll try it five or six times this season to see how it works out. But we have no fears of running out of principal subjects. The population keeps growing, and so does our list of potential subjects.'"

Thus far Edwards and his 75 employees have aired the lives of some 299 celebrities and ordinary citizens. His appeal for funds — both for individuals appearing on the show and for various charities—have brought in more than 10 million dollars.

"If the ratings hold up, and we aren't shooting for the No. 1 slot, we should be on the air indefinitely. Last season was the third best since we've been doing the show. And the future looks brighter than ever."

Bit Parts: Ray Milland, who has talked about retiring from the movies, has signed to play the title role in "Captain Cook Discovers Hawaii" . . . Marilyn Monroe, who arrived in town to see Khrushchev, will stick around a few days to talk about starring in "The Billionaire" for 20th Century-Fox . . . Robert Mitchum this week will tour six cities plugging his new picture, "The Wonderful Country."
