

Nikita Departs Washington Scene, But He's Remembered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be gone but he's not forgotten at the President's gesture house. In fact, he and his entourage won't be for some time.

Adlai Thinks 'K' Gave In On Controls

NEW YORK (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson revealed today that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev apparently has abandoned his opposition to step-by-step control and inspection of disarmament by an international control body.

In a copyrighted article in the New York Times, the former Democratic presidential candidate described Khrushchev's "fantastic" visit to the United States as a "hopeful omen" for world peace. He said conversations with Khrushchev during the day they spent together in Iowa indicated a sharp reversal in some of the Soviet Premier's attitudes.

"I asked if he thought he could satisfy our insistence on adequate and simultaneous inspection and control if we agreed to his proposal for complete step-by-step disarmament," Stevenson said. "His reply was that he thought international control and inspection adequate for each of the phases envisaged by his United Nations speech could be achieved."

"The replies left me with the clear understanding that in their view an international control body should have the power and facilities to control and inspect each step of the disarmament process to the extent necessary to insure compliance with that step, such powers and facilities to vary according to the needs of each phase."
