TELEVISION IN REVIEW:

'Fallen Idol' Receives Top Support From French Boy

By FRED DANZIG UPI Staff Writer NEW YORK (UPI) — Thanks to late TV movies, the "Fallen Idol" has become as much a part of the TV screen as the test pattern.

And this familiarity apparently led to its taking its place in CBS-TV's DuPont Show of the Month drama anthology.

Since comparisons to the movie are going to be made all over the place, I'll say at the start that the 1930 British-made film was better. The TV version of Graham Greene's suspense story was not as subtle as the film, nor did it slide across the bumper seams in the plot very gracefully.

It was the third day of fierce clashes between the Lulu and Baluba tribes. Reports reaching the Congolese capital 600 miles away said at least 200 natives were dead.

More than 200 Africans of the warring tribes have been arrested, most of them because they carried machettas, the most common weapon used in the rioting that began Monday.

Europeans in the area have taken refuge in the town of Luluabourg, on the Lulu river. The police have sealed off the European section of the city with its population of 2,000. Only Europeans fleeing the riot-torn countryside were allowed past guards armed with machine-guns.

nestly wife. The lad becomes involved in the butler's side romance with a secretary and, when Mrs. Baines is killed, tells enough lies to put Scotland Yard on Baines' trail. Since this is, after all, a suspense vehicle, there are numerous overheard conversations, snooping, big lies and little lies to help the plot along.

A distinguishing feature in the teleplay was the performance of Master Hirschler, an 8-year-old who, we are told, never acted before. The youngster has one of those appealing little faces that is old and wise, sad and mischievous all at the same time.

Occasionally, his inexperience showed. He would steal quick sidelong glances off-camera; he was sometimes inaudible; some of his reactions seemed too flabby. Yet, he came across as a most appealing little guy, a sturdy performer in a difficult role and a definite asset to the show.

Jack Hawkins, as Baines, was excellent. The more difficult the scene, the better he seemed to be. I was especially impressed with his discipline in a tea-room scene, where he was talking to his sweetheart while the boy listened.

In trying to get his meaning across without putting the boy wise, Hawkins displayed his love, pain and desperation superbly. Again, as he sought to explain his innocence to Scotland Yard, he was impeccably bumbling, proper and tortured.

Dina Merrill played the part of the sweetheart and did her blossoming career a lot of good. Jessica Tandy was properly hateful as Mrs. Baines, and with a few exceptions all others were suitable. I can't say as much for the sets. They were obviously phony and served only as a distraction.

The Channel Swim: The heroes of two new ABC-TV shows, Anthony Eisley of Hawaiian Eye, and Gardner McKay of Adventures in Paradise, are reported to be on the way out of their respective shows.

Dinah Shore's NBC-TV hour for Oct. 25 will feature performers from Hong Kong, Japan, the Philippines, Korea and the Fiji Islands. Speaking of the Orient, CBS-TV and William Holden are collaborating on a special to be filmed in Hong Kong. Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby and Dean Martin will preview their forthcoming movie roles as the team of Clayton, Jackson and Durante during Frankie's ABC-TV special next Monday.

Margaret Truman has snared the hostess role in "The Marriage That Failed," third in CBS-TV's Daytime Woman! Specials set for Monday, Nov. 9. Ed Wynn will be a special guest star on Art Linkletter's NBC-TV special, "The Secret World of Kids," Tuesday, Oct. 27. Eli Wallach has been signed to portray Sancho Panza opposite Lee J. Cobb's Don Quixote in the CBS-TV Show of the Month production, "I, Don Quixote," Monday, Nov. 9.

Rival Tribesmen In New Clashes

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (UPI)—Rival tribesmen clashed today in another round of fights "to the death" near the town of Luluabourg where terrified European residents have taken refuge.

It was the third day of fierce clashes between the Lulu and Baluba tribes. Reports reaching the Congolese capital 600 miles away said at least 200 natives were dead.

More than 200 Africans of the warring tribes have been arrested, most of them because they carried machettas, the most common weapon used in the rioting that began Monday.

Europeans in the area have taken refuge in the town of Luluabourg, on the Lulu river. The police have sealed off the European section of the city with its population of 2,000. Only Europeans fleeing the riot-torn countryside were allowed past guards armed with machine-guns.

Washington (UPI) — America's newest satellite, Explorer VII, seems to be settling into an orbit a bit flatter than its launchers wanted.

Scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration hastened to say, however, that this will not seriously hamper any of the seven scientific experiments being performed by the 91.5-pound artificial moon.

Santa Monica, Calif. (UPI) — Comedian Jerry Lewis became a father for the fifth time Wednesday when his wife gave birth to a six-pound eleven-ounce boy.

The boy, named Anthony Joseph, and mother were reported in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

'I Love Lucy' Cast Going Separate Ways After Dive

By VERNON SCOTT UPI Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — For nine years Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance were a set — you rarely saw one without the other on TV, but with "I Love Lucy" taking a dive the girls are going their separate ways.

With Lucy it's easy. She can sit back and clip coupons from the profitable Desilu Corp. Which she and Desi Arnaz own.

Red-haired Vivian is well off too. Residuals from reruns of more than 200 "Lucy" shows bring her a tidy income. Still, TV's Ethel Mertz wants to continue her career on her own.

Different From Ethel

To lose her identity as the wacky, scatter-brained Ethel, Vivian has just completed a dramatic SWITCH TO BUSES

CHICAGO (UPI) — Commuters on the Illinois Central Line had to resort to buses chartered by the railroad Tuesday when a freight train derailed tore down electric lines servicing the commuter line.

role in a horse opera, "The Deputy." "The role is a far cry from that biddy Ethel," Vivian laughed. "The woman I portray is a strong individualist who rides horses and drives buggies. It's given me a new lease on life.

"In all the nine years I was with 'Lucy' I never appeared in a movie or TV show. Toward the end I thought I was getting tired of acting, but I was just weary of the same role. From now on I hope never to be seen wearing a Marcel and house dress."

Vivian wasn't being disloyal to the show. She happily admits the program has made her financially independent for life.

"You'd think after all those years people would call me Ethel, but I'm seldom recognized. Off screen I look entirely different," she smiled. "However, I'll be delighted when audiences realize I'm not really married to Bill Frawley, who played Fred Mertz on the show."

A close friend of Lucille off-screen, Vivian and her madcap buddy are planning an hour-long TV musical with Vivian playing second banana.

"I learned my comedy early in life on the stage working with such greats as Ed Wynn, Victor Moore, Bob Hope, Jimmy Durante and Bill Gaxton," Vivian said. "I think it's the most difficult part of acting."

"Right now I'm hoping to star in my own series. The pilot already has been filmed. It's the story of a couple who open a dude ranch in New Mexico. We've titled it 'Guestward Ho' with Leif Erickson co-starring."

So Vivian Vance is back in circulation, free of Ethel Mertz forever — or almost, anyhow. She has one more hour-long "Lucy" show to go and then she is on her own.
