I didn't know him a bit better the day school closed.

My girl friend has guys trailing after her constantly. Fellows start conversations with her in the halls, and ask for help with school work, although she nearly flunked everything. I'm an A student yet no one asks me for help. Why does she succeed and where do I fail?—Flo.

Dear Flop: Your girl friend has learned the secret of making boys feel comfortable in her presence. Watch her operate and ask her for clues. She'll be flattered and you may learn something.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann: Last night our small child became violently ill. I asked my husband to go to the store for medicine which the doctor prescribed. His face fell and he moaned, "Something always happens when I want to go to the lights."

This is typical of him. When I was in a car accident last year and the doctor phoned my husband from the hospital, he was playing poker and he sent my brother. His excuse was the doctor said it was only a broken collarbone, and since he was stuck $40, he thought he'd better stay in the game and make the hospital bill.

When my favorite aunt died, he went on a hunting trip and missed the funeral. I was ashamed to attend the funeral without him but I had no choice.

Am I too demanding, as he says, or is there something wrong with him?—Bottom of The List.

Dear Bottom: Of course there's something wrong with him—his immature and flees from responsibility. You're not going to change the guy now, so accept the fact that you've got an additional child on your hands.

P.S. Welcome to the sorority. Your club sisters are many.

Dear Ann: I'm having a family problem which requires an outsider's unbiased opinion. Can you help?

We took Mom and Dad in to live with us and we were happy to have them since we are career
