The pup, which belonged to one of the persons arrested, refused to talk and police were forced to book him as "Dopey."

Rockefeller Runs Hard For Presidential Nomination

EDITOR'S NOTE: Is Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York going to try for the GOP presidential nomination against Vice President Nixon? Following is the first of three dispatches giving the pros and cons of the subject and spotlighting his activities to date.

By JACK V. FOX
UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation is just warming up to the great duelling game called "presidential candidates," but no one is giving it more earnest attention than Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Almost everyone takes it for granted the personable New York governor is trying to beat out Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the 1960 Republican nomination.

The 51-year-old Rockefeller acts like a candidate. He speaks like a candidate. And he travels like a candidate. Next week he flies into California, Nixon's home ground, and it is difficult to regard the visit as anything but a challenge.

But the more you talk to the top men around Rockefeller the more you come to the conclusion that he has not yet made up his own mind.

Millers Plan Arizona Move

COVE (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. Gary Miller have sold their place and have left for Flagstaff, Ariz. Mr. and Mrs. B. Curley of Vancouver, Wash., have bought the place and are moving this week.

The next PTA meeting will be held Nov. 12. The 4-H achievement night will be held after the meeting.

The Cove PTA ham dinner was a big success. There was a music variety act and an auction sale. They cleared $192. There was a big attendance with many out of town people.

Bloody Battle In World's Last Frontier By Natives And Whites

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Staff Writer

Stanleyville, a Belgian Congo city named after a explorer who helped open Africa to the white man, lately witnessed a bloody demonstration by African nationalists determined to drive the white man out.

It was another example of the rear guard action being fought by the former colonial powers of Europe to maintain a semblance of their former position on one of the world's last great frontiers.

The largest foreign holdings in Africa are those of Great Britain, France and Belgium.

Great Britain most recently granted independence to Ghana but retained it as a member of the Commonwealth.

France granted total independence to Guinea but is attempting to hold other of its former colonies inside a French "community" modelled after the commonwealth.

Nationalist Demand Grows
But whether community or commonwealth, the move in each case was dictated by a growing demand that Africa be governed by Africans.

Abetted by the Communists, it still was a part of a world-wide growth of nationalism after World War II.

Last January, the fever struck the Belgian Congo, for years regarded as a model of colonial administration. Seventy-six persons, both black and white, were killed in the January uprising in Leopoldville, the colonial capital. In succeeding months, others died in Luluyaborg and in Matadi.

Ironically, the Belgians already had promised independence to the Belgian Congo and the machinery was in motion to hold the first elections early in 1960, with complete independence set for 1961.

It was in 1877 that the Englishman, Henry Morton Stanley, reached his way up the Congo River and established an outpost which later came to be Stanleyville.

Stanley's Exploits A Legend
Stanley's exploits are legendary now, as explorer, adventurer and one of the great newspaper reporters of his time.

He fought in the American Civil War on the Confederate side and was captured in the battle of Shiloh.

But it was in 1871 that occurred the exploit for which he is most popularly known. Under contract to James Gordon Bennett of the New York Herald he travelled to Africa and found Dr. David Livingstone and, according to legend, introduced himself with the inquiry: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?"

It was under orders from King Leopold II of Belgium that he undertook the explorations that led to establishment of the Congo Free State, later the Belgian Congo, an area covering nearly a million square miles and rich in uranium and diamonds.

In its early days, Stanleyville had to fight off Arab slave traders. Today it is the scene of new violence—the violent upward surge of a people determined to rule themselves, ready or not.

Wallowa Church Circle Has Meeting At Dougherty Home

WALLOWA (Special)—Mrs. C. C. Wyckoff left for Portland recently to be with her husband who was operated on at the Veterans Hospital. Mrs. E. A. Scarle drove down with her.

Westminster Circle of the Wallowa Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. Hugh Dougherty. Mrs. Everett Dixon and Mrs. Jennie Conklin were assistant hostesses. Twenty-eight members and guests were present.

Stranded Duo And Pet Dog Are Rescued

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—The Navy and Coast Guard rushed to the rescue of a couple and their dog stranded in a small boat only 75 yards from Main Street.

But it wasn't the Navy nor Coast Guard that actually brought them home Tuesday.

The stranded couple, who spent Monday night lost in a tricky maze of waterways and marshes, finally gave up waiting for help and paddled out for themselves. Their boat had run out of gas.

John Battles, 31, and his wife and their dog, a Chinese pug, left on a fishing trip in a 14-foot motorboat Monday morning. They lost their way in the marshes west of the city, and spent the night only a short distance from the city's main street, also U.S. 17.

"We could see the cars driving by," said Battles. "But when I tried to walk to the highway, I sank up to my belt buckle."

When the Battles failed to return, the Coast Guard dispatched a boat and the Navy sent a helicopter to hunt for them.

While the search was in progress, the Battles made their way out.

the next year to a new record high. It said the number of hogs to be fed would be up four per cent.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Farm Bureau-Federation has protested to the Agriculture Department against low-price imports of extra-long staple cotton.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department today tightened up its regulations governing sales of surplus farm crops overseas for foreign currency.

One of the new regulations under the so-called Public Law 480 program repeals a 90-day limitation on the period during which the Agriculture Department can claim refunds from exporters in the program.

This repeal is aimed at exporters who sell commodities for foreign currency at unreasonably high prices. These exporters then trade the foreign funds for dollars at the Agriculture Department.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department said today a European drought had done more damage to grassland and the late hay crop in most of Europe north of the Alps than any other dry spell in this century.

As a result, the department predicted there would be a sharp upswing in European imports of feed grains and protein foods.

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Feed Survey Committee of the American Feed Manufacturers Association predicted today that livestock numbers will continue to increase during the next 12 months, but at a slower rate.

The committee said beef cattle would increase eight per cent in
