

Some Republicans Doubt Nixon Has What It Takes For Victory

By WILLIAM THEIS

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Does Vice President Richard M. Nixon have what it takes to win—and to fill—the presidency of the United States in 1960?

There are some Republicans who question whether he could win if nominated. This is what makes Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York view Nixon as a tempting prospect for himself.

There are few professionals in either party, however, who would challenge Nixon's training for the office or his capacity to administer it.

It is generally acknowledged that no vice president has been better trained for promotion. And Nixon's ability is highly respected, even by Democratic critics. Most think he would be a "strong" president if elected.

President Eisenhower, himself, made much of this training possible by directing Nixon to be a "working" partner from the day he took office in 1953.

Holds No Grudges

Those who most bitterly oppose Nixon charge that he lacks principle, that some of his past actions show a willingness to employ half-truth if it served his purpose. A term used by his political enemies—"Tricky Dick"—still plagues Nixon on occasion.

Nixon advocates answer such charges this way:

"Here is a whole man, not perfect, more complex than most, who does not fear controversy but holds no grudges; who has profited by some mistakes and rest while traveling as a goodwill ambassador.

Nixon has thrived on crises. Each time, he kept his head.

His most severe tests came with President Eisenhower's three major illnesses. The President's September, 1955, heart attack stunned Washington—and Nixon was no exception.

But, within hours, the vice-president had joined in establishing a business-as-usual atmosphere in the administration. He was painstaking in avoiding action which might indicate he was too eager to "move in."

Achieves A Balance

Less than a year later, in June, 1956, the man who is just a heartbeat away from the presidency went through the same ordeal when Eisenhower was operated upon. His third test came in 1957 when the Chief Executive suffered a mild stroke.

Politically, Nixon has been able to balance his GOP popularity between the right wing Republicans, who first spotted him in the Alger Hiss investigation when he was a "House member, and the more liberal Republicans whose causes he has championed.

With all of this, Nixon doesn't brood over critics. He often tells audiences he shares Truman's belief that "if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen."

The vice president has been pretty much his own press relations man until the past year, but doesn't worry about news notices, good or bad. Unlike such colleagues as Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, who is sensitive about his press relations, Nixon lets even unfair criticism go unchallenged. Nixon, incidentally, has considerable admiration for Johnson. The Texan reciprocates that feeling.

A Tireless Traveler

Political observers believe that many Democrats—and some Republicans—have underestimated Nixon's political appeal. Nixon was credited in 1956, for example, with making telling inroads for the GOP in the ranks of college, independent and Negro voters.

He concentrated campaigning with many such groups.

He is at his best in face-to-face, informal contacts. And he is tireless in covering him in travels to more than 30 countries and most of the 50 states.

Immediately ahead for Nixon is the problem of holding California intact if there is any serious Rockefeller challenge there. Nixon is confident he can do so.

If the Rockefeller forces make their move in Nixon's territory, the vice president's associates say, "we might not be able to hold back our own people in New York."

Producers planning to consign their cattle to the special sale would do well to have their cattle sorted at home and bring them in that way as they will be able to take more time and do a better job.

The sale committee will have another chute to use that day to unload and lead so that should speed up operations a great deal.

Four-H and FFA members should be getting calves on feed if they intend showing next spring and fall, also there is still a good selection in the county for calves.

Among Valley Farmers

A number of our farmers are planting grass and legumes during the fall season.

We have had good luck, in most cases, with these fall seedings if they are not seeded too early. If they are seeded while the soil is warm, usually the seed will germinate and winter kill. Seed sown now or later will usually lay in the soil until spring when the soil warms, germinate and produce a good crop.

With the advent of winter coming on, now is a good time to catch up on some of the things you have been planning to do such as build a loading chute or cereals or machinery or leafing sheds.

We have here in the office, plans for about any type of construction that you might want to do and if we don't have the specific one you want we will get it for you.

Remember, the more you prune the more the tree will grow. Broken, dead and interfering limbs make up the main pruning needed.

Two kinds of corn rot, common on gladioli, can be largely eliminated by drying and curing the cobs as quickly as possible after digging. This prevents development of the root and corn rotting fungi called Fusarium and Botrytis.

Hold cobs for three weeks at room temperature (70° F.) for adequate drying. If special drying equipment is available, the drying period can be reduced to two days at a temperature of 95° F. and 30 per cent relative humidity.

Adequate air circulation is required during the drying period. Where the drying temperature is below 95° F., more time is needed for proper curing.

Store bulbs through the winter in a cool, well ventilated place.

Many home orchard and garden diseases in shrubs, ornamentals, and annuals are carried over from year to year on dead leaves. Rake up the leaves and dispose of them this fall instead of waiting until spring.

Rose diseases such as rust and leaf spot overwinter on old leaves, either on plants or on the ground. Apple and pear scab, camellia blight, and several other diseases are reproduced from year to year on leaves or old flower petals.

By raking and cleaning up this fall, a good start can be made on disease control for next year. Leaves may be burned or buried.

Block Soviet Try To Buy U.S. Steel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Commerce Department has blocked an effort by the Soviet Union to buy $15,526,207 worth of American stainless steel.

The department said Wednesday night the applications were disapproved under regulations prohibiting shipment to Communist countries of materials having strategic value in wartime.

In addition to the stainless steel sheet, plate and tubing, the department turned down requests to ship Russia $176,455 worth of chemicals, plastics and synthetic rubber.

The department would not identify the U. S. firms involved.

Officials said they felt the export license requests indicated the Soviets were serious about doing business with the U. S. firms and were not merely putting out feelers to test possible changes in U. S. export controls.

Wife Claims She Not Aware Tot On The Way

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Michael J. Kotun Jr., 39, was positive today that his wife really was pregnant the past several months.

He had a 7 pound, 6½-ounce son to prove it.

His wife Audrey, 33, fondling the child at St. Joseph's Hospital where both mother and baby were taken after the impromptu delivery, was quite sure herself.

But up until Thursday—when the baby was born—Mrs. Kotun would have denied a pregnancy emphatically. And deny it she did when her husband asked her a few times.

"She was getting heavy and I kidded her about it," said Kotun, a television cameraman at KDKA-TV. "I asked her a couple of times if she was pregnant. She told me, 'If I am, I don't know anything about it.'"

She found out Thursday.

She awakened feeling ill and went to the bathroom where she delivered the child.

A Pittsburgh obstetrician, a bit skeptical of Mrs. Kotun's story, said that the possibilities of a woman going through pregnancy without recognizing any symptoms was "very rare."

The Kotuns have one other child, Richard, 6.

FACES JAIL TERM

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI)—Thomas J. Dyke Jr., 19, faces a possible 15-year jail term for allegedly trying to stretch a dollar bill too far.

Police said Dyke took four $20 bills, lopped off the corners and pasted the corners to dollar bills. He had cashed three of the doctored one-spots and was trying to cash the remains of a real $20 bill when he was arrested, officers said.
