

The Blushes Over Kiss From Girl

MADRID, Spain (UPI)—President Eisenhower kept a blind date with a little Spanish miss Tuesday which made him late for breakfast with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The date was 7-year-old Rosa Maria Jimenez Calvo, who planted a kiss smack on Eisenhower's lips in a burst of affection. The President blushed noticeably.

It all began last Sept. 3 when tiny dark-eyed Rosita wrote to President "Esinyaguer"—which is how his name sounded to her—and asked to see him when he visited Spain.

U. S. Ambassador John Davis Lodge learned of the letter from the little girl, who referred to Eisenhower as "the good-looking grandpa."

Lodge arranged for the meeting this morning as Eisenhower left the palace where he spent the night to drive to El Pardo palace for breakfast with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Rosa, scrubbed to shining cleanliness and wearing a prim blue dress and white stockings, was waiting at the bottom of the broad stairway of Moncloa Palace at 7:40 a.m. when the president came down.

Lodge and Rosa's parents, Mario and Ann Jimenez, were with her.

The President, natty in a freshly-pressed gray business suit and carrying his topcoat over one arm, smiled broadly when Lodge introduced Rosa.

The President posed for pictures with the child, telling her "let's wait until the pictures are over and we can talk."

Then he led her to a chair and sat down, but she decided she'd stand. Placing a hand affectionately on her shoulder, Eisenhower asked if she liked dolls.

She whispered back "Si." An aide handed Eisenhower a long box in Christmas holiday wrappings. The box was as big as Rosa, herself.

"That will be your doll," Eisenhower said. Whereupon Rosa clutched at the shoulder of his coat and kissed him smack on the lips.

Luke's Nativity Story Is Most Beloved Of All Literary Works

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Staff Writer

His name was Luke, and he was a physician by trade. But history knows him best as an author.

He wrote the most beloved story in all literature.

It is called the Nativity story, and it is found in the first 29 verses of the second chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke.

It is only 416 words from the beginning to end. But it has had a greater impact on the minds and hearts of men than any long novel, play or poem you can name.

From it have come great masterpieces of art to fill hundred galleries.

It has inspired a whole library of music, ranging from familiar carols like "Silent Night" to majestic oratorios like Handel's "Messiah."

For more than 1,900 years it has been read, and cherished, by all sorts and conditions of men. It has moved Medieval monks—and atomic scientists; Roman charioteers—and New York taxi-drivers; Oxford dons—and African bushmen.

Many Translations
It has been translated into more than 1,200 languages and dialects, and its poetic beauty always seems to come through.

This week, as always at Christmas time, it will be read aloud in millions of churches and homes. And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be taxed. . . . Luke goes on to tell how Joseph and Mary left their home at Nazareth and went on to Bethlehem, the home of their ancestors, to be enrolled for the Roman census. It must have been a hard journey for Mary, since, the physician notes, she was "great with child."

"And so it was that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered."

"And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn."

Christmas In Autumn
How many millions of sermons have been preached on that one text?

The first Christmas did not fall on Dec. 25. That date was picked arbitrarily many centuries later. It must have been some time in the autumn, when the weather was still mild in Palestine, for Luke records that "there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night."

"And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid."

"And the angel said unto them, fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people."

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a savior, which is Christ the Lord."

"And this shall be a sign unto you; ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men of good will.'"

Whether Luke meant his story to be read as literal history, or dramatic poetry, is a question for Biblical scholars to debate.

Some modern scholars, having never heard a choir of angels, assume that no one else has either.

Others point out that critical studies have established Luke as a reliable reporter, who carefully researched his facts.

Perhaps if Luke could join in the debate, he would say that the herald angels' song was audible, then as now, only to those willing to hear it.

Russians React Strongly On Film Of World's End

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Gregory Peck, who just returned from a Moscow trip, says Russians feel the same as Americans do about a motion picture showing atomic destruction of the world.

"There was no essential difference in their reactions to 'On The Beach' when it premiered here," Peck said.

The picture shows the end of the world as the result of an atomic war.

Peck travelled to Moscow for the Dec. 17 premiere of the film in which he co-stars with Ava Gardner, Fred Astaire and Tony Perkins.

"The Russians I talked to said it was a serious film, that it was good it was made," he said.

"One Russian motion picture director told me, 'this counteracts some of the feeling I've had that Hollywood is only interested in films that have to do with gangsterism, violence and sex. We respect it.'"

"The most surprising thing, and most gratifying, is that they did not quarrel with the message in the film," Peck said.

"They accepted it in the spirit in which it was made and didn't feel it was aimed at them 'any more than anybody else.'"

Nikita Enters East-West Talks As Fifth Man Behind The Scenes

By United Press

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev made himself the fifth man at a four-man conference this week.

Khrushchev, although sitting behind the walls of the Kremlin, still managed to inject himself into the Big Four Western summit conference just concluded by President Eisenhower and the heads of government of Great Britain, France and West Germany.

The publicity-minded Khrushchev managed it in two ways. In Geneva, a Soviet diplomat sought out Western newsmen to impress upon them the Soviet Union's concern and embarrassment over Red China's seizure of territory traditionally considered Indian.

To Re-impress West

Since Soviet diplomats act only upon instruction from Moscow, it may be assured that this was a message straight from the horse's mouth, and designed to re-impress upon the West Russia's desire for world peace.

Then, during the week end, the Soviet Foreign Ministry released the contents of a letter written last Oct. 15 by Khrushchev to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

It dealt directly with a question high on the agenda of the Western powers' Paris meeting—disarmament and the matter of a final agreement on Germany.

In the letter, Khrushchev made it clear that one price for settlement of the German question will be a Communist demand for total disarmament of West Germany.

So far as the West is concerned, Khrushchev put the cart before the horse.

Negotiate From Strength
On his arrival in France last week end, Eisenhower, made it clear the West would negotiate with the Soviets only from a position of strength.

The Western leaders reinforced this position in Paris when they said that political settlements must go hand in hand with disarmament.

Therefore, no disarmament until the Russians have proven the sincerity of their desire for peace on such questions as a German peace treaty and guarantees for the continued freedom of West Berlin.

Thus it would appear that in the areas of disarmament and political settlements, battle lines already are drawn for the East-West summit meeting now expected in the spring.
