Casey will remain at Oregon State as a senior associate athletic director and special assistant to athletic director Scott Barnes.

"I have no oceans to sail, I have no mountains to climb, I have no hobbies, I don't know what the hell I'm going to do," Casey joked.

Oregon State associate head coach Pat Bailev will serve as interim coach of the Beavers. The team will conduct a national search for a replacement following the next season. Barnes said the new right field deck at Goss Stadium on campus would be named "Casey's Corner."

"As you can tell by his opening comments, this is a guy who worries about what other people need, what other people expect, whether he's letting people down or not letting them down," Oregon State President Ed Ray said. "He has just been everything that we ever could have imagined in a baseball coach here."

The winningest coach in Oregon State history, Casey won league coach of the year five times, and was Baseball America's national Coach of the Year in 2006.

Many of Casey's players went on to major league careers, notably Tigers pitcher Matt Boyd, Yankees outfielder Jacoby Ellsbury and Mets outfielder Michael Conforto.

EOU

man class was in the '90s." The freshmen, in fact, were among the strongest athletes in the team time trial. Katie Jo Gebhardt, Michelle Herbes and Molly Gulden were three of the top four athletes for the Mountaineers, with Gebhardt winning the event. Calista Van Delden also ranked highly in the time trial. "(That) is a pretty good indicator that you're ready to run," Welch said of Gebhardt's time trial win. Welch said Faith Homer, Megan Boals and Amanda Welch are leading the pack for EOU returners.

Homer is returning to the cross country course after redshirting in the sport last fall.

"The freshmen class is looking really good. They came in super motivated," the senior said. "A lot of our returners came back really fit, had really good (summer) training." There's also some motivation for Homer and the Mountaineers after taking sixth in the Cascade Collegiate Conference a year ago, just 10 points behind fifthplace Northwest. The top five from the CCC all qualified for nationals last fall. Homer said she's additionally driven because she missed last season due to redshirting. "I'm definitely a lot more motivated," Homer said. "Going to a lot of the meets last year and seeing the girls team miss out on going to nationals was hard because I feel I could have made that difference. That has been motivation. I want to set a good example and help the girls team get to nationals."

EOU was ranked just seventh in the CCC preseason poll, but Welch believes the team should be in the mix for the top four in the conference, which could also mean a potential national berth. "Kind of baffling," Welch said of the ranking. "We've got a better core back. But I don't care. Just kind of adds fuel to the fire for the ladies." The EOU women open the season today at the College of Southern Idaho Classic in Twin Falls. Both teams compete at the EOU Invitational Sept. 21, and the CCC championships are Nov. 3 in Issaquah, Washington.
