MASTERS

Mickelson said. "And then when I got to the holes that I could birdie, I took advantage of it with some good shots."
Tiger Woods missed all the action. He played earlier in the round and methodically scored a solid 70. It was a good start for Woods in his quest to end 11 years without a major, and he was atop the leaderboard briefly until a late bogey. He sounded satisfied.

"I've shot this number and won four coats, so hopefully, I can do it again," said Woods, who slightly miscalculated. The last green jacket he won in 2005 began with a 74. The goal was to not fall too far behind early, and he is just four shots behind.

Rory McIlroy's bid for the last leg of the career Grand Slam began with a 73, which featured six bogeys.
"I made five birdies — that wasn't the problem," McIlroy said. "I just made too many mistakes." ■

York Knicks following the trade deadline and signed by Portland for the rest of the season. Kanter, supposed to be Nurki's backup for the playoff push, is averaging 13.1 points and 8.6 rebounds in 23 games with the Blazers, including eight starts.
"Look, we'll miss Nurk. I mean, that's obvious," Blazers coach Terry Stotts said. "Nurk's a big part of what we've done all season. But we don't have him so we'll figure something else out. Enes has got to keep doing what he's doing."
Last season Portland seemed confounded by New Orleans point guard Jrue Holiday, who upped his game against the Blazers and averaged 27.8 points in the first round. No sixth seed had ever swept a No. 3 in a best-of-seven series.

New Orleans, which missed the playoffs this season, in turn slowed Lillard, who averaged 18.5 points during the series — down from 26.9 per game during the regular season.
"I'm sure it had an impact on us," Stotts said Wednesday night about last season's first-round series. "I'm sure that having to hear about being swept and consecutive losses and all those things certainly shaped our mentality. Like we've said since the beginning of the season, we have to own it but we can't dwell on it."
This season's playoff series appears to again be a guard-dominated battle, this time between Lillard and Russell Westbrook, who have had some heated Northwest Division duels. In their last meeting Lillard had 51 points while Westbrook finished with 37. ■

BECKMAN

in a club run by his uncle Matt McDowell, a two-time national champion for Southern Oregon.
"You're from a little school, but that won't stop you from achieving anything. You can compete with anyone," Beckman said.

He's taken that mindset, too, when people downplay his success because he was wrestling against athletes from small schools.
"It's not looked upon as much as a (larger school)," he said, adding he intended to use the slight as fuel.

"We put in the same work everyone else does. We're at practice every day. We go the same tournaments. There might be (fewer competitors), but they're just as good of wrestlers. In the long run, it doesn't come down to the school — it comes down to the kid." ■
