“Margaret Atwood: A Word after a Word is Power”

The Canadian poet and author responsible for such works as “Cat’s Eye” and “The Handmaid’s Tale” discusses her life and her work in this 2019 documentary from directors Nancy Lang (“Where the Universe Sings”) and Peter Raymont (“The Border”).

“Movie: The Biggest Little Farm”

John Chester chronicled his own journey with this 2018 documentary that follows him and wife Molly as they chuck the city life in favor of buying and running a farm outside of Los Angeles, complete with all the lessons they learned along the way about the planet, life and their cycles.

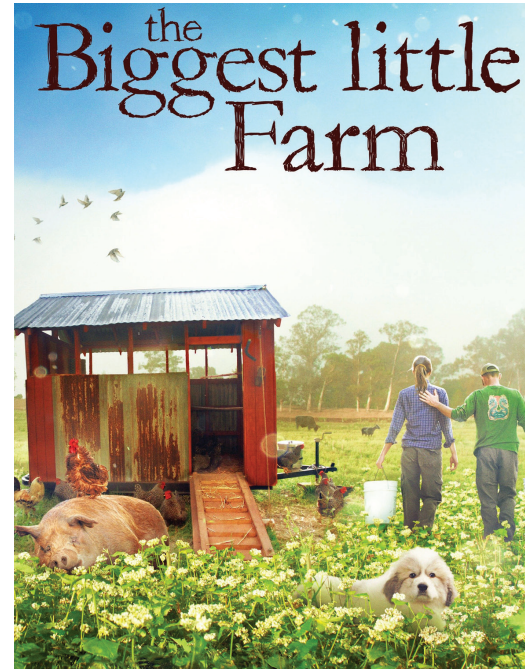

“Movie: Long Time Coming: A 1955 Baseball Story”

Jon Strong wrote and directed this superb 2017 documentary about two groups of Florida Little Leaguers — an all-white team from Orlando and an all-black squad from Pensacola — who took to the field for a playoff game in an act of cultural defiance in the racially segregated South of 1955.
