Lucy Worsley's Royal Myths & Secrets
 Historian Lucy Worsley travels across Great Britain and Europe to visit great palaces, gardens, battlefields and other locations where royal history was made over the ages in this three-part, three-hour weekly miniseries. In the course of her travels, Worsley explores how royal history typically is a combination of facts, embellishment, manipulation and mythology. The premiere, "Elizabeth I: The Warrior Queen," examines this facet of the British queen's image, facilitated by myths and secrets about her victory over the Spanish Armada. This reputation shaped British national identity for centuries.

9 p.m. on HBO
Perry Mason
 Viewers who associate "Perry Mason" with the 1957-66 TV series of that title starring Raymond Burr should prepare themselves for a jolt with this new limited series. Set in 1931 Los Angeles, this reboot stars Matthew Rhys as a younger Mason, who makes his living as an unconventional detective even as he shows signs of the legal eagle he eventually will become. Juliet Rylance ("The Knick") and Chris Chalk ("Gotham") co-star as Della Street and Paul Drake.

10 p.m. on AMC, BBCA NOS4A2
 This hit series adaptation of a novel by Joe Hill returns for a sophomore season that picks up eight years after the events of Season 1. Despite the passage of time, the formidable Vic McQueen (Ashleigh Cummings) is still hellbent on destroying Charlie Manx (Zachary Quinto), who schemes to get revenge on Vic by using her 8-year-old son Wayne as a pawn. Those clashing obsessions set the pair on a fateful collision course that will determine a little boy's destiny.
