EOU colloquium series returns

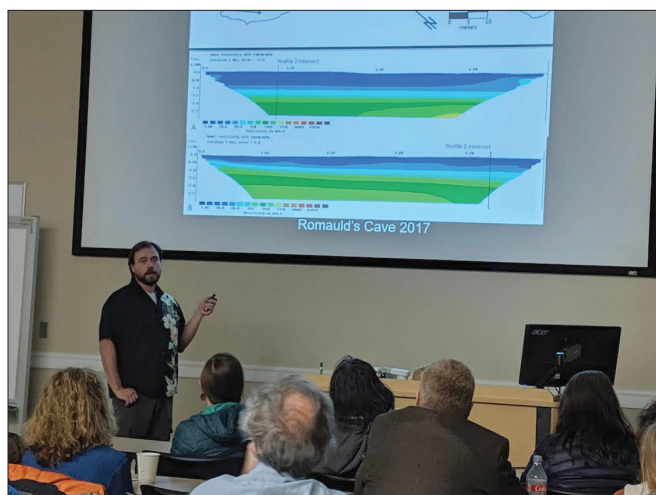

By Sabrina Thompson

The Observer
LA GRANDE — Eastern Oregon University professors are opening their lectures to the public in a newly reinstated colloquium series. Wilson Zehr, a business administration professor at the university, will present the first of 11 lectures beginning Thursday, Nov. 12, at 4 p.m. via Zoom.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for other faculty and staff, as well as the community, to get a glimpse of the research being done at EOU," colloquium coordinator Kelly McNeil said. "We all teach classes but not often do we get to see and hear about the unique and inspiring research that EOU faculty are participating in. I think it's a great opportunity for the community to see the high-end projects and research that is being done in their community."

Zehr will lecture about his research on how organizations use different forms of innovation to establish market leadership.

"Research on innovation has traditionally focused on technology applied to product or process innovation. Yet, we can see examples where the best technology does not prevail," Zehr said about his presentation. "If our goal is market leadership, then which forms of innovation should we consider? Which forms of innovation have the highest likelihood of success? How does this change over time as the market evolves?"

Zehr said he is happy to open his lecture to the community.

"In this type of forum, a colloquium, there is an initial presentation," Zehr said. "This is required for level-setting as we do not all have the same training or specialties. However, there is time for questions and discussion here too. In an ideal world, the conversation does not end when people leave the room. It should just serve as a starting point for further discussion, discovery, and application moving forward."

The colloquium series will continue on the second Thursday of each month.

Enterprise school bond, Joseph marijuana pass

Wallowa County Chieftain

ENTERPRISE — Enterprise School District voters passed a $4 million levy Tuesday, Nov. 3, approving the funds to conduct repairs at the school district — funds that will be matched.

"I am incredibly grateful for our community's support and their investment in their schools," Superintendent Erika Pinkerton said.

The bond won with nearly 57% of the vote with 1,222 yes votes to 927 no votes.

The money raised through a bond will pay for what Pinkerton called a much-needed roof as well as other repairs to make the school more accessible and safer for students, staff and visitors. The bond also will pay for asbestos abatement, remodeled locker rooms and updates to the science rooms. Much of the work will begin as early as next summer.

The city of Joseph overwhelmingly passed ballot measure 32-004, placing a 3% tax on marijuana sales within the city.

The initial count saw the measure winning with about 73% of the vote, 575-211.

The county voted with the state in supporting Measures 107 and 108, and voted against the rest of the state in voting down Measures 109 and 110. All four measures passed the state.
