

tonight's best

Andy Samberg

8 p.m. on NBC
Brooklyn Nine-Nine

The Emmy-winning cult comedy hit returns for its eighth and final season, which will see loose-cannon Detective Jake Peralta (Golden Globe winner Andy Samberg) and his colleagues of New York's 99th Precinct trying to navigate a strange new world for police personnel, especially in the aftermath of a pandemic. Not exactly standard comedy fodder, but the show's writers seem up to the task. Andre Braugher, Joe Lo Truglio, Terry Crews, Melissa Fumero and Stephanie Beatriz are among the other returning regulars.

8 p.m. on CW
Walker

Coming off a 15-season run on "Supernatural," Jared Padalecki proved he's got the star power to go it alone as a TV leading man in this reimagining of an old Chuck Norris action series. This makeover boldly emphasizes Walker's role as a family man more than a villain-kicking lawman, but the results clicked resoundingly with the actor's fan base. Season 1 ends tonight with the finale "Drive," in which Walker receives some shocking news that leaves his world shattered.

8 p.m. on FREE
grown-ish

Zoey (Yara Shahidi) and her crew hit the Los Angeles streets to raise their voice in support of racial justice and equality in the new episode "Put Your Hands Where My Eyes Could See." Meanwhile, Nomi (Emily Arlook) confronts her own feelings of "white fragility," while Ana and Javi's (Franca Raisa, Henri Esteve) relationship reaches the boiling point.

9:33 p.m. on HIST
Alone

As their environment continues to attack any remaining sense of resolve among the survivalists, the final four are reaching advance stages of extreme fatigue and malnutrition in the new episode "All In." Some participants simply hunker down and struggle to power through any way they can, while others search for calories anywhere they're available. As the challenges grow ever more severe, however, everyone still in the competition faces the possibility they'll be forcibly extracted by the show's production team.
