“Movie: Unsane”

Claire Foy continues to prove her versatility in this quirky Steven Soderbergh-directed 2018 psychological horror film in which she plays Sawyer Valentini, a woman who seeks therapy after a traumatic experience with a stalker. When she appears for her appointment, however, she inadvertently signs a release voluntarily committing herself to a 24-hour stay at the behavioral center. Joshua Leonard and Juno Temple also star.

“Movie: The Marijuana Conspiracy”

Based on a true story, this 2020 drama from writer/director Craig Pryce (“Good Witch”) is set in 1972 and tells the tale of five women who endured 98 days of captivity to participate in an experiment studying the effects of marijuana on the female body and psyche. Brittany Bristow, Morgan Kohan and Julia Stone head the cast of the Canadian production.

“Nine Perfect Strangers”

Author Liane Moriarty’s bestseller served as the basis for this David E. Kelley-produced dramedy series set at a boutique health-and-wellness resort that promises healing and transformation to its stressed-out city dweller clientele. Nicole Kidman stars as the head of the place, in a talented cast that also includes Melissa McCarthy, Michael Shannon, Samara Weaving, Luke Evans and Bobby Cannavale. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: Jungleland”

By day, former pro boxer Walter “Lion” Kaminski (Jack O’Connell) and his ex-con brother and manager Stanley (Charlie Hunnam) work menial jobs in a factory, but at night they shoot for a bigger payday in underground boxing matches. After they have a falling out over a covert bet Stanley has placed on Lion, a gangster (Jonathan Majors) tries to exploit their tensions for profit.
