concert on Saturday, Oct. 30, at the Union County Fairgrounds. The music starts at 1 p.m.

The free, public "Bend Not Break" suicide awareness concert will also include an opener by magician/motivational speaker Brad Barton.

Cassy Kellogg was the local resident who saw Boyé on social media and reached out to see about him coming to La Grande. To fund the concert, she found an "angel" who donated $50,000. Her husband, Don Kellogg, is raising another $15,000 to pay for Barton and the rest of the event.

Exhibitors will have booths at the concert to provide mental health resources and the Kelloggs also are working with the La Grande Lions Club to sell hamburgers. The concert will strive to follow all COVID-19 mandates, including masks and social distancing.

Attendees are urged to bring blankets and folding chairs to the concert.

Boyé is a former member of the European boy-band Awe-some and of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. His professional career has included recording religious and Latter-day Saints music. He also appeared on "America's Got Talent" and was named the 2017 artist of the year and grand prize winner in a music contest sponsored by Pepsi and Hard Rock Cafe. This past December in Miami, he performed a halftime show for NFL's Monday Night Football.
