pieces of equipment to the show, Hall said, as most of the 15 museums at Antique Powerland participate.

"The show is a good way for the museums to promote themselves," Hall said.

Pam Vorachek, executive director of the Antique Powerland Museum Association, said that in addition to using the event as a promotional event, the Powerland museum volunteers find the show enjoyable.

"They enjoy the camaraderie of visiting with fellow farmers, as well as the opportunity to showcase the historical equipment they take up there," Vorachek said.

The Antique Powerland Museum Association also participates in the show each year, Vorachek said, using it as an opportunity to promote their offerings.

"We use it as a promotional event to entice people to come to Antique Powerland," Vorachek said, "and to participate in the Great Oregon Steam-Up."

The Great Oregon Steam-Up is held the final weekend of July and the first weekend of August each year. This year it is July 30-31 and Aug. 6-7.

Antique Powerland is open on weekends in March and October and Wednesday through Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April through September.

Housed among the different museums' antique equipment is the oldest operating steam tractor in the nation, a Case built in 1880, and other highlights for historical buffs, including the first truck iconic grocer Fred Meyer used to deliver groceries.
