Compared to Feb. 3: All classes traded steady with moderate demand. According to the U.S. Drought Monitor, this week saw a very active pattern in parts of the western U.S. as a series of Pacific storms brought significant rain to coastal areas of central and northern California, Oregon, and Washington while heavy snows blanketed higher elevations of the Sierra, Cascades, and northern Rockies. Continued snowfall this week across the Sierra is making a positive impact on the overall drought situation where the snowpack statewide is 176 percent of normal according to the California Cooperative Snow Surveys.

Cattle Market Reports

Compiled by USDA Market News Service • Oklahoma City-Des Moines-St. Joseph, Mo.-Moses Lake, Wash.

Cattle prices in dollars per hundredweight (cwt.) except some replacement animals per pair Oregon head as indicated.

NATIONAL FEEDER AND STOCKER CATTLE
(Federal-State Market News)
St. Joseph, Mo.
Feb. 10

This week	Last week	Last year
273,200	349,800	254,900

Compared to Feb. 3: Steer and heifer calves sold $4 to $10 higher. Feeder steers and heifers traded steady to $5 higher. In the southeast, steers and heifers were steady to $3 higher.

Auction receipts were lighter due to the downturn in prices last week. Trade was active with the best demand for stocker cattle.

The cattle market saw some optimism after the previous week's rough go-round in the sale barns. Feeder cattle futures have been up and down this week, with the biggest moves coming mid to late in the week. Despite the roller coaster ride, cattle buyers were aggressive on the light to middle weight calves, as spring is approaching fast and buyers are thinking of green pastures ahead.

Replacement type heifers are also in good demand and are bringing about the same or more than steers within the same weight categories.

In Bassett, Neb., a few loads of good quality replacement heifers weighing between 650-685 lbs. sold from $152-166 and 700 lb. heifers brought up to $163. That's roughly a $20-30 premium per hundred weight, as compared to heifers of comparable weight ranges and from the same sale, going to the feed yard.

Other locations have also seen a spike in prices for replacements.

The temperature swings across the Plains and Midwest have been extreme this week. In Billings, Mont., and parts of the northern plains, some cattle auctions saw light receipts as the winter storm moved in, causing road closures due to poor road and travel conditions. Across the midsection of the country, temperatures plummeted with highs only in the teens and 20s.

However, unseasonably warm weather is expected going into the weekend. Several areas are expecting to warm up in the 60s and 70s, with some locations in the southern plains reaching up to 80 degrees.

Feedlot trading materialized on Feb. 8 with live sales in Nebraska selling steady to $1 higher, mostly from $119-120 and dressed sales steady at $190, with a few up to $191 on a light test. Colorado live sales were $1 higher at $120.

In the southern plains trading was moderate on moderate demand. Live sales sold $1 higher at $120, with a few at $120.50. Iowa and Minnesota dressed sales were mostly steady at $190, with a few at $191. Live sales were lightly tested at $118.

The Fed Cattle Exchange on Feb. 8 sold 3,615 head. Prices reported in Texas and Kansas were mostly from $119.75-120.50 and in Nebraska mostly from $115-117, with a few from $118-119.

Pen conditions in the northern feedlots remain muddy as the snow melts. This is creating havoc for feed yards as outgoing cattle are carrying too much tag, which is affecting yields.

Choice boxed beef closed the week at $187.63, down $3.77 and Select at 185.65, down $4.28 from the Feb. 3 close. Auction volume this week included 58 percent weighing over 600 lbs. and 40 percent heifers.

Dairy Report

FLUID MILK AND CREAM REVIEW – WEST
(USDA Market News)
Madison, Wis.
Feb. 9

In California, milk production at the farm level has plateaued, as weather has been mostly mild, similar to Feb. 2. Presently, milk intakes are more than suitable for manufacturing purposes. Consequently, balancing plants are running at full capacity, clearing large intakes of milk.

After the Super Bowl weekend, Class 1 requests from retailers and food service have dipped slightly. Demand for Class 2 is steady this week.

Overall, dairy feed supplies are plentiful for late winter and early spring needs.

Manufacturing milk intakes into Class I and Class III are higher this week as many processors are cooperating in clearing milk volumes. According to the National Agricultural Statistics Service, hay and roughage supplies are adequate.

Milk production in the Pacific Northwest is following normal seasonal patterns. Steady bottling demand and active manufacturing are keeping any extra milk volumes from building beyond area plant capacities.

Milk intakes are generally in pretty good balance with processing needs, but some industry contacts report getting inquiries from cheese makers within the region who are looking for extra milk.

Unfavorable winter weather is creating some milk production headaches in the mountain states of Idaho, Colorado and Utah. The region received heavy snows and cold temperatures followed by some thawing, localized flooding, and mud.

Industry contacts report some farmers are dealing with cow health issues and lameness. Contacts further state milk intakes are noticeably lower. Milk supplies are adequate for many processors, but some processors are looking for extra loads of milk.

Western condensed skim processing is active, encouraged by higher seasonal farm milk output. Abundant supplies are mostly clearing into dryers for NDM/SMP production, albeit some intakes are moving into cheese processing.

There is currently an oversupply of cream in the West region. Some of the cream is being churned into butter while the remaining cream is clearing at lower multiples, ranging .91-1.18. Most cream buyers are making bulk butter.

Due to an unsettled cheese market, some Class III processors are pushing back their cream after separating. Canada has once again re-entered the market as a buyer of U.S. cream, but Mexico has not. Mexico cream is readily available.

According to the NASS Dairy Products report, hard ice cream production in the West region for December 2016 is 11.1 million gallons, 24.9 percent lower than a year ago, and 4.4 percent lower than the previous month.
