Washington-Oregon (Columbia Basin) Weekly Hay Report Feb. 1

This Week	Last Week	Last Year
4050	1800	2250

Compared to Jan. 25: Domestic and Export Alfalfa steady in a light test. Trade slow. Demand excellent as remaining supplies are in firm hands. Exporters expect new crop Timothy to be steady to lower than in 2018 due to larger carryover supplies and Alfalfa to be stronger than 2018. Some dairies have chosen to go out of state to contract cheaper 1st cutting new crop Alfalfa. Retail/Feed store steady. All prices are dollars per ton and FOB the farm or ranch unless otherwise stated. Delivered prices include freight, commissions and other expenses.

California Hay Report Feb. 1

Compared to Jan. 25: All classes traded steady with moderate demand. Rain and snow has impacted areas of California and the southern part of the state has had issues with getting enough time between storms to cure hay, or in some cases getting rain damage to hay that has been laid down. Multiple sources have had some weather that has impacted their hay crop, with more rain likely.

Dairy Report

Compiled by USDA Market News Service • Madison, Wis.

Fluid Milk and Cream — Western U.S. Jan. 31

In California, fluid milk production is flat, and milk sales through diverse channels are strong. Class I requests are back to normal in Southern California after last week's incident that prompted the closing of some schools.

Milk clearing activities remain lively with handlers securing new balancing agreements to offset the closing of a plant in Hughson.

Anzoma milk yield is unchanged from a week ago, but remains strong. Milk clearing is not as challenging this year due to smaller volumes produced compared to last year. There are currently more than enough loads of milk to meet all requests within the state. Class I demand is stable. Class IV usages are efficient, and some processors prefer to make more butter instead of selling their cream at a discount.

Class III sales are up because of rampant cheese output ahead of the Super Bowl. Farm milk output is at the expected seasonal level in New Mexico. Components in milk are steadily increasing. Some processing facilities are running more whole milk this week. The football season is also calling for more cheese production. However, bottled milk quantities are steady.

Milk production in the Pacific Northwest is slowly growing. Manufacturers report having plenty of milk from their usual sources to keep facilities near capacity. Forays into neighboring states for extra loads of milk are not needed. Bottling demand is steady.

In the mountain states of Idaho, Utah and Colorado, milk production is generally steady. A few industry contacts report production had backed off a bit, but so too have fluid milk sales into processors. Many manufacturers are still running near full schedules, but there is such a close balance between supply and demand that any little disruption pushes a few extra loads into neighboring states.

Condensed skim continues to clear into nonfat dry milk. Supplies are ample in the West. The cream market is mixed. Spot loads are easily accessible to buyers/end users. Churning activities are ongoing as processors build butter stocks. Cream multiples for all Classes are 1.00-1.17.
