The Manager, Agronomy Western US leads a team of Agronomists in the Western US region in accordance with the North America Agriculture Strategic Plan. This position will be responsible for the deployment of new agriculture technologies and the development and management of technical solutions that result in step-change productivity improvement, sustainable cost advantage, quality improvement, disease management and risk reduction to the Western region. Essential Duties and Responsibilities include the following:

- Develop deep understanding of the growers within assigned region, deliver technical solutions and successfully transfer those solutions and best practices.
- Develop and lead the agronomy strategic plan for assigned region ensuring best practices while maximizing crop year.
- Develop and deploy regional and individual grower yield improvement plans and annual performance goals that drive the breakthrough results necessary to increase yield and decrease cost.
- Support companies activities to influence government policy on commodities and resources initiatives.
- Tailor communication of plans to staff and stakeholders to secure their commitment to the plan implementation. Ensure compliance with McCain technical standards and methodologies.
- Lead analysis and reporting of the in-season yield and quality assessment program and link crop development with potential financial impact. Make timely recommendations to influence business decisions.
- Manage the commercialization of higher yields/low cost varieties. Participate in the annual North America agronomy variety review process and assure ongoing agronomists' support of variety development.
- Research, evaluate and extend new technologies and influence grower adoption of new technologies. Seek partnership through work with public research institutions and private companies to leverage regional agricultural expertise.

Qualifications:

- BS degree required/ Master's degree preferred in Agronomy, Plant Science or equivalent technical field.
- Minimum of 5 years' experience in agronomy, technical sales, or a technical role within the agricultural industry.
- Minimum of 3 years' experience managing a technical team, providing technical leadership, coaching and mentoring.
- Demonstrated success building and driving the strategic direction and long term planning for a technical team to drive long-term success and continuous improvement.
- Proven success in establishing and leveraging networks within the agricultural community.
- Experience with commercialization, scale up and applied research trials, ideally within the agriculture industry.
- Capable research statistical analysis training and experience.
