have acquired elite females, mass producing them through ET work.

“We like the Red Angus-Simmental cross and we like composites. Our cattle are about 90% red, with a few black bulls available as well,” he said.

“The team we’ve assembled (Seth, myself and our families) is great, with help from Brad and Karen Gleason. Brad is head cowman/herdsman,” said Dykes.

Brad and Karen were operating 9 Mile Ranch when Dykes bought it. Their extensive knowledge of the country and commitment to raising good cattle has been a great benefit, he said.

The cattle that come out of this program do well. “Very few purebred breeders turn their AI and ET calves out on a mountain with cougars and wolves. Our commitment is to make sure that a 9 Mile Ranch-raised bull can thrive in the real world.”

9 Mile Ranch

Josh Dykes with Jackson. Dykes and Seth Leachman partnered to run the historic 9 Mile Ranch.
