Demand for grazing calves was good as backgrounders are looking to get their orders filled early. These ranchers want to get those flyweight calves into their pens early so the health regimen can be gone through and those calves will be ready when turnout time gets here this spring.

Feed conversion of any calf in the feedyard this coming week will be drastically changed from where it has been up to this point in the winter. The feed bunks will get their daily fills like normal from the feed trucks, however, with bitter cold comes the time when cattle are just trying to survive. They are burning Mega-calories just for maintenance, not for growing and gaining weight.

Feb. 1-2

Total Receipts: 770 HD, 216 cattle Patrons of Woodburn Livestock Exchange: It is with a heavy heart we are announcing after 80 years in business the Livestock Auction will be closing its doors. This has been an agonizing decision for us to make as we have enjoyed your patronage and friendship over the past many years. Our last sheep, goat and hog auction will be held on Monday, Feb. 15, and our last cattle and poultry auction will be Tuesday, Feb. 23. In recent months there have been various rumors of us selling the property and shutting down. The property is for sale but is not sold at this time. However, due to continual declining head counts and rising costs of doing business, the livestock portion of our business is no longer viable. Woodburn Auction Yard will remain in business doing online-only machinery sales. Our current auction runs through Feb. 6.
