Fluid Milk and Cream — Western U.S. Aug. 12

Contacts say California milk output is slightly lower than forecast, but production is steady. Milk is available for all dairy manufacturing needs. Bottling orders are higher. Class II demand is level. Class III sales are steady to increasing. Some contacts anticipate dairy farmers may face higher feed costs as lack of irrigation due to water cuts could prevent a final cutting of alfalfa in some areas, potentially adding additional transportation costs if local Arizona milk output is decreasing. School is back in session, driving higher Class I demand. Class II and Class III sales are steady. Milk production in New Mexico is dropping. A surge in driver turnover has exacerbated existing hauling challenges, leading to some delayed pickups and deliveries. Holdover numbers are manageable. Balancing plants have available capacity for more milk. However, with

August is historically a good time to sell yearlings and this year is no exception as very good demand remains for yearling steers and neifers, especially those coming right off grass Grass yearlings continue to come to town and the market is very active as these long strings are very desirable as buyers can fill their pens or whole yards of green, easy gaining yearling cattle. The heavier fleshed cattle that are backgrounded in a feedyard setting are also highly sought after as the winter and spring months of the CME Live Cattle contracts are latest WASDE report updated supply and demand estimates on Thursday. For corn, several changes were noted on both sides of the balance sheet. A larger than expected reduction was made to the corn yield estimate, dropping the estimate by almost 5 bushels per acre to 174.6. The reduction in yield estimate resulted in a 415 million bushel decrease in production to 14.75 billion bushels and making feedstuffs more of a possible issue moving forward. One question that remains is: "Will the good crops in the East be able to compensate for the poor condition crops in the West?" Boxed beef values have shot up like a rocket in the past couple weeks as demand continues
