Clipperton, Whose Ownerskip E Been Claimed by Four Countrice, at Last Desattely

Much attention has been given of late what we may call the strange case Clipperton island. It is not more than three miles in circumference, and it lies in the western Pacific something It lies in the western Pacific something like 800 miles west of Mexico. In the wide expanse of the Pacific ocean it shows like a mere speck, so small as to be of no value, seemingly, save as a refuge for a few of the army of beach sombers "who have burst all bounds at habit and have wandered far away" in the course of their downward progress. But the ownership of Clipperton island has of late-been claimed by no fewer than four countries—Mexico, the United States, France and Great Britalin; and when it is allded that the island is a favorite haunt of see birds, ain; and when it is ended that he had land is a favorite haunt of sea birds, and that many tons of valuable guano are waiting to be picked up, the reason for this unwonted solicitude, even in an era of land-grabbing, will be ap-

Clipperton island is of interest in another direction. It is one of those numidst of the seas, sunny and otherwise, which, after their first discovery, for wanny years elude all endeavors to lo-cate them again. It has now been, as it were, nailed down in one particular spot in the ocean—that is to say, its exact position has been finally deter-mined by warships sent out for the express purpose of searching for it and settling all doubts as to its existence and the only thing remaining now is that the question of ownership abould be settled. It happens that there is another island about 400 miles southwest of Clipperton, and rich in the same deposits that make that place worth possessing, for which adventur-ous miners are at this moment looking.

As late as July last a vessel named Moonlight left Altata, Mexico, on a royage in search of this latest mysterious island, and spent'52 days of fruities labor toward this end. Her captain failed to find the place, and, fearing that his provisions and water would run short, returned home to report that takes the recent charts of old Carl. sither the rough charts of old Capt. Martin and his associates were in er-ror or else that some strange seismic phenomenon had caused the lost isle to disappear years ago, perhaps, for all that mortal soul knows. Spice is add-ed to this romance by the fact that another 'Frisco captain located the place definitely a year or two before, and found a small colony there, which colnoy is still on the island, shipping colnoy is still on the island, snipping guano in their own schooners, manned by numbers of their own party, to the leading ports on the Pacific slope of North and South America.

Quite a number of expeditions have of late been made with the object of swig tless 10 agres sold and 8 acres for of late been made with the object of wresting this valuable secret from the handful of men in whose possession it is, and of participating in the spoils; and one of these days we will, no doubt, hear of a sanguinary fight for the supremacy between the present colonists and a party of marauders. Although the stories told about the unknown island vary considerably, they all agree that it exists somewhere about 400 or 500 miles southwest of Clipperton, in a low coral stoll covered with the richcat phosphates. The place also has its legends of pirates' treasures, which may or may not have had any founda-tion in fact. One of the expeditions of recent date, which have been fitted out to look for the island, was the Vine expedition. That vessel's owner claims to have secured his knowledge of the place from the old sea captain named lartin, above referred to, who died some years ago, and who left an old chart among his belongings, which told of a small island in the south Pacific, not down on the regular charts, enormously rich in guano,-New Zealand Herald.

When Victoria Went Visiting.

It is difficult to imagine Queen Vic toria as a window cleaner; but little princesses, like other little girls, enjoy "keeping house," and this incident is nove land true: When a little child Princess Victoria went with her mother to visit Queen Adelaide. The duchess of Kent was obliged to le ve the little one alone with the queen for some time, and the latter, to make the princess feel at home, said: "Now, my dear, you have an hour to spend with me, and you shall do exactly as you like." "Exactly as I like?" said the little princess, doubtfully. "Yes," replied the queen, little imagining what was to follow. "Then, dear Aunt Adelaide," said the child, "may I be allowed to clean the windows?" Queen Adelaide was starttled, but the little one had her way, setting to work with sieeves carefully rolled up and an apron tied round her waist.—Golden Penny. alone with the queen for some time waist .- Golden Penny.

Funsion Avenged His Horse,

Col. Funston sat on his horse, watching his Kansas boys fire at the enemy at Caloocan, when an orderly came up with the commanding general's compliments, and an order to stop firing. 'Cease firing!" shouted the colone Only a few of the nearest men heard and the firing kept on. "Cease this time the bugle gave forth the peal and the firing, after scattering, stopped altogether. Just then a ball from the insurgents drilled the neck of the colonel's pony. Quick as a flash Funs-ton whirled around, fire in his eyes. "Commence firing!" he shouted, at the top of his voice. "Give 'em — at 900 top of his voice. "Give 'em — at 900 | w 40 cns to org, twp says and sim's Mary E, lots of ammunition all along the line to avenge that horse, though the colonel settle rides it.—Leslic's Weekly. still rides it,-Leslie's Weekly.
