SUBSCRIPTION $1.50 PER YEAR

Entered in the Postoffice at Medford, Oregon as Second-Class Mail Matter.

SALEM people are taking the census returns for that city in a jocular sense. The returns give the city a population of 4258, but this is considered a big error, unintentionally made by the officials at Washington. The fact that Astoria, Baker City and Pendleton each have more people than Salem is fairly good evidence that the figures have been mixed.

TILLAMOOK County owns a sawmill and the county commissioners have recently leased the mill to the county judge for four months, during which time he agrees to furnish all the bridge timber the county needs at $4 per thousand feet. If Jackson County owned a sawmill would Judge Prim rent it, under conditions as above stated? If so, the commissioners could well afford to buy one.

INASMUCH as Medford does not appear in the list of Oregon towns with 2000 and over population, we are, perforce, compelled to admit that we are not nearly the sized potatoes we thought ourselves to be. THE MAIL can hardly believe that we have not so many as 2000 people living within our incorporate limits, still we cannot believe that the census was anything but honestly taken. Mr. Taylor, the enumerator, is a man of integrity and if there has been an error or omission made it was purely unintentional on his part.

AN EASTERN subscriber to THE MAIL has asked us to explain the why of the long delinquent tax list which has been published in these columns. The list this year was probably the largest ever published in the county. There are a number of reasons for this, chief among them being the fact that heretofore the sheriff has been required to make a personal levy upon property upon which taxes have not been paid. When this levy was made the sheriff would post a notice of sale upon the premises to be sold. This would have a tendency to bring the owner to a realization that tax tolls, like unto the grim messenger which shuffles us all off, must be paid, and before the fixed date for publication came around he would have paid his pro rata of public expense into the sheriff's coffers. A new law has taken the task of personal levy from the shoulders of the sheriff, but many taxpayers did not know of this new law—and they waited for the usual annual visitations of the sheriff. The fact that the list has been reduced one quarter since its first publication will substantiate this statement. Another reason is that many owners of land advertised to be sold for taxes are non residents of the county, and most of them wait for the published notice of sale before paying their taxes. Another reason for the long list is the time at which taxes become delinquent and the small penalty which attaches for their non-payment at that time. They now become delinquent on April 1st, but are usually not sold until fall. The penalty fixed for their non-payment before becoming delinquent is only one per cent. This, in THE MAIL's opinion, is all wrong. Few people have money with which to pay taxes in the spring of the year and they can better afford to allow them to remain unpaid and pay an additional one per cent to the county than to hire money at eight per cent to pay them at that time. On the other hand the county cannot afford to pay six per cent on outstanding warrants and collect only one per cent on delinquent taxes. Taxes should become due in the fall of the year, when property owners as a rule are realizing money from the fruits of their season's labor. They should be made payable on October 1st of each year. Make them delinquent on the first day of the following November, and if not paid by that time add a ten per cent penalty, and sell the property upon which taxes have not been paid on or about the 15th of December.

UNITED STATES SENATORSHIP.

The Best Equipped Necessary to Meet Requirements.

As the time draws near for the meeting of the legislature, it is natural that the people of Oregon should feel more deeply interested in the matter of a United States senator. The changed condition of public affairs must inevitably have an important bearing on the interests of Oregon, and since all advantages to be reaped from a wise and careful control of possibilities will be shared in common by the public, it should be the purpose of all concerned to assist in placing the state in the best position possible to mould and direct events for the common welfare.

The United States has made history faster and of more far reaching consequences in the past eighteen months than can be credited to that of any other nation in the same length of time. From a provincial Utica pent up within a comparatively small area of North America the commonwealth has crossed the Pacific and planted its colors and authority on the soil of the Orient, and extended its jurisdiction to certain islands of the sea, and thus in a brief period become a world power with all the duties and responsibilities which such a position implies. To meet the new and complicated conditions which must necessarily arise out of the enlarged sphere, and which will come before congress for consideration and adjustment, will require the best talent of America. In the solution of all civic and commercial questions touching the new territory lately acquired in the East, the Pacific coast and Oregon are vitally interested. In view of this fact it is of the first importance to have an advocate at bar fully capable of handling any question which the new condition may unfold, and of turning it to account as far as public policy and the principles of justice and fair dealing will sanction. Constantly recurring facts prove that all sections are selfish in matters of business and make common cause for the control of such agencies as promote their interests. The people of Oregon should not do less.

It will be admitted that Hon. H. W. Corbett has no superior in the state as a business man, and that he is a statesman of recognized ability as well. His large experience in public and private affairs forces him in relief at this time as the one representative citizen especially needed in the formative period of the new era just dawning upon the coast, to shape and give direction to events as they arise in such a manner as shall best inure to the interests of the state. Too much care cannot be exercised in bringing about a satisfactory adjustment of the relations of the government with the new dependencies. Only upon such just and amicable settlement is it possible to reap the full fruits of the rich commerce which must sooner or later be established between the Pacific coast and the vast empires of the East. Mr. Corbett is honest, able, conservative and just the man specially fitted to meet the requirements of the hour. There should be no question about his election. The legislature could do itself no greater credit or the state a more timely and valued service.

G. L. WEBB.

OREGON NEEDS A MAN.

Next Senator Should Be One in All the Word Implies.

From Baker Republican.

There is a new conception of our duty in electing a United States senator for Oregon, and in it we see the augury of a better state of affairs than our state has heretofore known. The question which the state legislators should put before them is, what is absolutely and demonstrably the best reason to apply when selecting a man for a place in the Senate at Washington. In choosing men for this important and high trust, we inherit too much of the ill-advised, haphazard system, when men's place in the state for real merit was interpreted in every way—when authority ruled despotic in a political trickster or boss—and it swallowed that system whole, without inquiry of any kind as to its real merits or disadvantages.

The time has come when there should be a fundamental reconstruction of this system. And the great error of this method of parties selecting a senator, as it has existed and as it partially exists now, is that it depletes our influence in the halls of congress. The new conception, of which we have spoken, is growing among the journals of Oregon, and the people are being led to think less of political bosses and more of worthy, able men.

It is an acknowledged fact among all thinking men that Oregon must have a transformation in her senatorial representatives or she will soon meet with irreparable loss. Conditions demand this and here is one of them.

Silence can little longer secrete the fact that the mouth of the Columbia is fast filling up with the silt washed down the stream. This silt is taking place at the sea end of the jetties. Very soon the talk about an open river will be lost in the cry for an open mouth of the Columbia. Unless the jetties are extended the outgoing and incoming commerce of Oregon and southern Washington will be dependent upon railroads and Puget Sound.

Have we a United States Senator carrying sufficient influence, either in the commercial world, or in mental acumen, to secure the appropriation for this needed jetty extension? Judging from the past the question must be answered in the negative.

Viewing the situation from the standpoint that neither Senator Mitchell nor Binger Hermann are candidates, the man who would take up this work with a vigor that has characterized his whole life, is Senator H. W. Corbett of Portland. He is a man who has accomplished something in life, and possesses a lofty standing in the commercial world. He has done a thousand times more than all his calumniators combined to make Oregon what she is. On his name no dishonest act has fallen, and he is a broad-minded, capable gentleman. He would stand for something in the United States Senate. His education and never-failing perseverance, his wide acquaintance among men of large wealth and education would be of material assistance in carrying out measures to secure needed improvement.

Among the Churches.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.
Services will be held at the usual hour next Sunday evening. Everybody is invited to attend.

CHAS. BOOTH, Pastor.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
The usual services will be held next Sunday morning and evening. Subjects—"The Great Harvest Field," and "Lessons from the Resurrection of Christ." The church is being beautifully decorated this week under the management of H. B. Nye and will be finished Sunday. All invited.

—The Boston Concert Company gave the people of Medford a treat Wednesday evening. Mr. Walther, the Belgian violinist, came up to the highest expectations. His rendition of "Early Morning on the Farm," wherein he imitated the animals and fowls, captivated the audience. The "Scottish Bagpipes," "Last Rose of Summer" and "Robin Adair" were other favorite pieces. Miss Durrell is inimitable in her character representations. That she was recalled two or three times is proof that the audience was pleased. Miss Adelaide Roddy has a clear, pure and sweet voice. She, too, was recalled every time she sang. Miss Cummings is an artist on the piano. Her selection from Chopin pleased the audience so well that she was recalled. The concert was satisfactory in every way. The opera house was filled to the doors. This was the first entertainment in the Star lecture course. The second will be a lecture in two or three weeks.

MEDFORD'S POULTRY SHOW.

The first annual show of the Southern Oregon Poultry Association will open January 2, 1901. It will be held in some suitable building in Medford, and will be open to the public on January 3rd, the first day of the show will be devoted to scoring the fowls. For the benefit of those who fail to receive a copy of the premium list, the following is published and should be carefully read:

On all poultry, turkeys, geese, ducks, pigeons, hares, etc. An entry fee of 50 cents will be charged either for single specimens, pairs or pens. A pair consists of a male and female, a pen of a male and three females. If there are twelve or more entries of any breed of fowls or hares, $4.00 will be paid for 1st, and $2.00 for 2d. Eight or more entries, $2.50 for 1st and $1.50 for 2d. All fowls and hares should be in the hands of the superintendent by the evening of January 1st. The Association will furnish and charge, coops for all fowls, also food and water during the show. All exhibitors who can conveniently do so, are requested, however, to furnish their own coops, made as follows: Dimensions, 30 inches high, 24 inches long and 24 inches deep. A frame made of 1x1 inch stuff, with tight, thin board bottom, the back, top and two ends of cloth stretched tight (bouselling), and front of slats 1x4 inch, set perpendicular 2 inches apart, reaching to within two inches of the floor, the two center slats sliding upward to admit the fowl. For geese and turkeys the same as above, except the length, which is 42 inches. Persons sending fowls not in regulation coops, will be supplied by the Association free of charge. Exhibitors entering rabbits or pigeons shall provide their own coops, made in any neat way, not exceeding 24 inches high, nor 24 inches deep. In addition to the cash premiums offered on poultry, the following are special premiums offered by some of our townsmen:

E. S. Walter will light the exhibition hall with acetylene gas; value, $10.
Ray & Long, one cowhorn hatrack, for 1st premium on pair Toulouse geese.
