Since the Louisiana and Texas farmers learned to raise rice by irrigation they have invested $5,000,000 in 1500 miles of canals, capable of flooding 800,000 acres, and spent 700,000 in building thirty modern rice mills. Under the new system the rice lands pay a net profit of $15 an acre.

Two bridal couples had an interesting lunch at the Pan-American exposition the other day. The parties were the state treasurer of Florida and another official from that state, with brides. The Florida commissioner gave the lunch in the pavilion of that state. In order to add impressment to the occasion New York and California contributed wine to the feast, which was spread for several exposition people; Rhode Island gave clams, Missouri apples, Oregon a section of a big baked salmon. The music was supplied by a Tampa mocking bird.

A statement has just been issued by the director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington, showing the official estimated number of postage stamps distributed in the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901. According to this statement the issue of the year includes 1,300,000,000 1-cent stamps, 3,500,000,000 2-cent stamps and 303,236,000 of higher denominations. The total, including special delivery 10 cent stamps, is 5,116,660,000, against 4,377,727,000 for the previous fiscal year. The number of stamp books issued containing 12, 24 and 48 2-cent stamps is estimated at 3,400,000, 1,220,000 and 42,500 respectively, making an additional total of 48,720,000. The estimate shows the issue of postage due stamps to be 25,521,900, against 25,156,000 last year. The number of Pan-American stamps thus far issued is 259,500,000. The figures to show the face value of the postage stamps issued this year have not been completed, but the number produced exceeds all former records by over $1,500,000.

"Talk about your barometers, rheumatism, gourds, goosebones and corns as weather prognosticators," said the man who knows, "they are not in it when it comes to weather predictions, with the hair of my wife. I would rather have her promise as to weather any time than that of the best and luckiest weather bureau observer who ever engaged in the predicting or weather forecasting business. For years I have taken her advice as to what the weather would be during the day, and for years I have dressed and prepared myself accordingly. Long ago I found that my wife spoke truthfully when she told me rain would fall or that the day would be fine, and she never made a mistake once in a hundred time. The solution of her ability to forecast the weather is very simple. Like many other women, her hair is not curly, and like many other women she puts it up in curl papers, or kids, when she retires at night, and brushes it out curly in the morning. When her hair is taken from the curl papers damp, dank, sticky and heavy, she knows there will be rain, and plenty of it, before night; when it is a trifle damp, she knows there will be showers or some rainfall, but not a real rainy day; when she brushes out her hair and it is dry, light and fluffy, she knows to a certainty that the day will be a fine one; and then she makes her predictions with great assurance and earnestness, and I have seldom found her wrong. I suppose other men's wives can tell in advance the weather by the condition of their hair, but my wife's hair is better for this purpose than any barometer I have ever known."

Edouard Beaupre, the young Canadian giant, who is at present giving exhibitions in Montreal, is a most remarkable specimen of humanity. He is only twenty years old, but already measures seven feet eight inches, weighs 387 pounds and wears a No. 27 boot. This remarkable man was born at Willow Bunch, Assiniboia, N. W. T. His father, a farmer of that district, was only five feet eight inches in height and his mother's height was five feet four inches. While there was nothing remarkable about the parents, Beaupre has a brother who, while only eight years of age, measures at eady five feet, and it is believed he will in time exceed his

Is both an art and a science. An art in the beauty and symmetry of the finished work and a science in the exactness of the details which go to make up the finished whole. To do artistic printing requires good material, new type faces and careful, skillful workmanship. The Mart Job Printing Department turns out this class of work—no other. Up-to-Date brother's height. Beaupre since the age of ten years has been employed as a cowboy in the Northwest and Western states, and is proficient in the use of the lasso and a splendid shot. Medical men who have examined him are of the opinion that he will grow still taller. His great height is not at first very apparent, as he is very round-shouldered, but when he throws his shoulders back and draws himself up to his full height his appearance is remarkable. When he arrived at the hotel of Montreal it was impossible to find a bed large enough to accommodate him, and two mattresses had to be placed end to end for him to sleep on. He showed his great strength by having three men sit on his left arm and then raising them to a height of seven feet and replacing them on the ground. Beaupre was injured internally by being thrown from a horse in Kentucky last summer, and is in Montreal for medical treatment. He is giving exhibitions to defray his expenses.

She Didn't Wear a Mask.

But her beauty was completely hidden by sores, blotches and pimples till she used Bickel's Arniea Salve. Then they vanished as well all eruptions, fever sores, boils, ulcers, carbuncles and felons from its use. Infallible for cuts, corns, burns, scalds and piles. Cure guaranteed. 25c at Ohas. Strang's.

Scalp Bounty Warrants.

Under the provisions of the new scalp bounty law, the counties pay the scalp bounties in the first instance, and at each term of the county court send to the secretary of the state an account of the amount so expended, whereupon the secretary of state draws a warrant for two-thirds of the amount. Thus the county pays one third and the state two-thirds. Up to the present time the state has paid out by the issuance of warrants on this fund the sum of $9,425.29. This shows, therefore, that the counties and the state together have paid out $14,137.92. When the law went into effect there were already some coyote scalps in the hands of those who had killed the animals, and it is estimated that the amount expended thus far represents the bounties taken during a period of four and one-half months. At this rate the total for a year would be $37,701.12, of which the state's share would be $25,134.08. The state appropriation is $25,000 per annum, or $50,000 for a period of two years. In some of the counties court is not held every month, so there may be quite an accumulation of scalps that have not been reported. On the other hand, it may be that many of those presented soon after the law went into effect were taken early in the year. These figures indicate, however, that the demand upon the state scalp bounty fund under the new law promises to about equal the appropriation. The scalp bounty warrants issued under the old law are being paid off with the proceeds of the special 1-mill tax levied by the legislature for that purpose.
