Another evidence of the advantage of advertising in THE MEDFORD MAIL is found in the fact that last week I mentioned in my items that Rev. J. P. Moomaw had lost his watch. On Sunday it was returned to him by Charles Cingcade, who had seen the item in the paper. With the exception of the crystal being broken the watch was all right.

Mrs. Frank Tungate and two daughters, Mrs. Emma Baker and Miss Ollie, of Mt. Pitt precinct, stopped here last Saturday on their way home from Medford. They report that the school under the management of Prof. A. H. Peachey is a grand success and that it is growing in size and interest. Miss Ollie has been attending the Medford Academy.

From the Klamath Falls Republican.

As we go to press, we learn that the thorough and careful investigation now being made of the route proposed for the big irrigating canal, reveals to the engineers that the construction of the canal will be a much easier and less expensive work to do than has been anticipated. The prospect has no discouraging features and grows better every day.

From the Klamath Falls Express.

Jos. Montgomery who has been in the county for the past two months buying horses, left here Monday with seventy-eight head of as fine work horses as could be bought. He is taking this stock to Nome, Alaska, for construction work on a large irrigating canal.

A Real Friend.

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for fifteen years," says W. T. Sturdevant of Merry Oaks, N. C. "After I had tried many doctors and medicines to no avail one of my friends persuaded me to try Kodol. It gave immediate relief. I can eat almost anything I want now and my digestion is good. I cheerfully recommend Kodol." Don't try to cure stomach trouble by dieting. That only further weakens the system. You need wholesome, strengthening food. Kodol enables you to assimilate what you eat by digesting it without the stomach's aid. Chas. Strang.

MALARIA An Invisible Enemy to Health

Means bad air, and whether it comes from the low lands and marshes of the country, or the filthy sewers and drain pipes of the cities and towns, its effect upon the human system is the same.

These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to that invisible foe, Malaria. Noxious gases and unhealthy matter collect in the system because the liver and kidneys fail to act, and are poured into the blood current until it becomes so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of an indolent character appear, depleting the system, and threatening life itself. The germs and poisons that so oppress and weaken the body and destroy the life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.

S. S. S. does this and quickly produces an entire change in the blood, reaching every organ and stimulating them to vigorous, healthy action. S. S. S. possesses not only purifying but tonic properties, and the general health improves, and the appetite increases almost from the first dose. There is no Mercury, Potash, Arsenic or other mineral in S. S. S. It is strictly and entirely a vegetable remedy. Write us about your case, and our physicians will gladly help you by their advice to regain your health. Book on blood and skin diseases sent free.

Articles of incorporation of the Feather River Power company were filed recently with the secretary of state of California. The capital stock is $5,000,000. The company has been formed by Charles Webb Howard and other capitalists for the transmission of electricity from the Big Bend tunnel, on the Feather river, to San Francisco. The tunnel was built in 1883 by the Big Bend Tunnel and Mining company at a cost of $1,500,000, and the mining company has disposed of its interests to the new power company. At the point where the tunnel, which is 12,007 feet in length, emerges there is a fall of 450 feet to the river. It is this fall that will be utilized for generating electricity.

PEARY'S DISCOVERIES

Beneficial Results of the Explorer's Labors in the Arctic.

Detailed Account of His Trips into the Frozen North and His Great Service to Arctic Exploration.

The greatest credit is due to that indomitable explorer, Lieut. Peary, for his latest work in defining the geography of the arctic regions. Although he has not yet succeeded in reaching the north pole, or, indeed, in traveling as far north as did Nansen and Amundsen, he has made a contribution to our knowledge of the arctic regions which, in extent and usefulness, compares favorably with the work of any previous explorers, and may be regarded as an ample return for the risks and labors of his long season of exploration, says the Scientific American. As a result of his work around the northern coast of Greenland, the geographical boundaries of the great island of the northern hemisphere are now defined with scientific accuracy. The only break in the coast line consists of a short length of unsurveyed land between Independence Bay - so named by Peary at the time of his discovery, nine years ago - and Cape Hismarck, on the east coast of Greenland. Thus the explorations of Greenland, which have been in progress now for a thousand years past, are practically completed by Peary's arduous labors and thoroughly scientific methods. His work, stated in detail, consists of surveying that portion of the coast line of Melville bay on the west of Greenland; a survey of the entire northwestern, north and northeastern coast as far south as Independence Bay; and the accurate mapping out of the channel which extends through Smith's sound to the Arctic ocean on the north coast of Greenland. Peary has also traveled 2,400 miles on the great inland ice cap, and has located its extreme northern limits; twice he has crossed Grinnell Land, and he has also given us an accurate location of its western shore to a point considerably south of existing surveys. It is true that other explorers have traveled further north than he; but their work, although of great scientific interest, and carrying perhaps more of the elements of the spectacular, has not given to the world such a considerable increase in its geographical knowledge as results from Peary's latest travels.

Peary has also done great service to arctic exploration by proving that his theories as to the best method of traveling are correct. He set out on this last trip with the conviction that, if the north pole is ever to be reached, it must be done with the cooperation of the natives and with the extensive use of dogs and sledges. In his recent work he has given practical proof of the soundness of his theories. Early in the next spring it is his purpose to make a final "dash for the north pole" which, if successful, will add greatly to his well-earned fame. Should he succeed in reaching it, he will confer a double benefit upon arctic exploration, since he will at once settle a greatly overrated, but much considered question, and by so doing will divert the energy of subsequent explorers to the more useful work of mapping out the undiscovered regions within the arctic circle and rounding out to completeness our geographical knowledge of the northern hemisphere.

They Knew Him.

"Here's another story about the oldest inhabitant," he remarked, looking up from his paper. "Who is he?" she asked, although without displaying much interest. "I know," broke in the bright little girl.

"So do I," asserted the smart little boy.

"You know who the oldest inhabitant is," repeated the father in surprise. "Well, who is it, Ethel?"

"It's the man who dies so often," answered the bright little girl. "You're always reading about him in the paper."

"Huh!" ejaculated the smart little boy, scornfully. "I guess you don't know what you're talking about. It's the fellow that's always remembering about cold winters and hot summers when the weather's bad." - Chicago Post.

TREASURE FINDERS.

Various Forms of Scientific Apparatus for Locating Hidden Treasures and Precious Metals.

Magical devices for discovering deposits of precious metal are out of fashion nowadays. Their place has been taken by various contrivances of a more or less scientific nature, by means of which masses of gold and silver, or rich lodes, may be located. Most of these forms of apparatus are electrical, says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

One of them has two long and sharp iron staffs, which, being held apart at a distance of a couple of feet, are thrust down into the earth. Attached to them are a small battery and a telegraph key. If the ends of both of the staffs come in contact with a mass of metallic ore, the current readily passes between them, and a pressure of the key above ground completes the circuit, and causes a bell to ring. Another inventor combines the two staffs in one, separating them only by an insulator.

For use in mines, an apparatus of much simplicity has been devised, consisting of a little battery, a telephone receiver and two brushes that look exactly like shaving brushes, except that their bristles are made of wire. If ore is seen cropping out in two places on the face of the rock, and it is desired to ascertain whether a continuous vein connects them, one of the brushes is placed in contact with each of the spots. The operator then puts the telephone receiver to his ear, and, if there is such a vein, he can distinguish the fact by the sound, the circuit being complete.

David Hall, a colored man, who said he was a ship's cook on a deep-water "wind-jammer," was charged in Police Judge Mogan's court in San Francisco with carrying a concealed weapon - a big revolver. Hall said he used the weapon to shoot sharks with at sea. "Are you sure you did not want to shoot some land sharks?" inquired the court. He disclaimed having any such intention. "Perhaps it might be a little better for you sailors if a few land sharks were shot," mused the judge. "I'll let you go this time, but you must put that pistol away until your ship sails, and then be sure to use it on nothing but sharks."
