MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and doce bring bubies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of cardal gives women the health am strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar house of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

HE-SHE AND THE IMP

By A. C. ROWSEY

Copyright, 1801, by A. S. Richardson

He went to breakfast fully prepared and determined to speak about it. When half through the meal, he compromised with himself-he would just Yet the evening came. With It his laundry and the landlady, and the hint was not yet given.

Mrs. Haistead was the landlady, or "the mother of two, the relict of three," as the cheerful idiot in the hallroom epitomized her. "He was only a counter jumper," the landlady scornfully remarked before she fired him.

Mrs. Halstead had watched the old man all day. In her mind he had been construed and reconstrued into a possible fourth in the "also ran" class, whereby she should change her name—and later wear crape. For three months at one time she had flutterings around the heart because of an air of embarrassment about him when he looked at her. Finally he told her about some mice that had invaded his closet. In her eyes it was evidently only a hasty excuse when his courage failed him.

The "old chump," as she called him, had recently assumed mourning and remained in his room all day. These two things urged Mrs. Halstead to en-courage him to speak his mind, arguing quite accurately that some one had died and he had inherited.

So she plumped herself in a chair after laying the laundry on the bed. Grimly she waited.

Mr. Peters was rejoiced at her lingering.

The lean old man paced the floor. favoring her at every turn with a look of indecision. "Mrs. Halstend," he began besitatingly-he seemed to be talking to the rosebuds on the carpet-"I have-hem -wanted to speak to you about"- He flushed, closed his thin lips obstinately

"Was there ever such an old fool?" she said to herself under cover of her apron-her face had a habit of perspiring under mental pressure. "About?" she queried in her smoothest tone. Her supplemental toilet was finished.

'Yes, about"- His heart forsook him. "Well, I guess another time will do, Mrs. Halstead." He sat down, trembling.

In the glare that she threw at the back of his bald head the orange blossoms were drooping, drooping and go-

"Now, Mr. Peters," she coaxed, "hadn't you better get it off your mind once and for all? I know'd you wanted to say-something"—oh, the coy ways of forty-five years and 180 pounds-"and-and couldn't jest get the hang of it—how to say it, I mean."

Her words were very grateful to him. "Perhaps you are right; only thought-it might-be considered-er-eccentric-er-imbecilic-senile"-

"I'd like to see any one say so, sir," she bristled, like a porcupine, or as only a landlady can. "They would not stay in this house and say it. Be-sides, I think every—every one"—shyly-"rather expects it."

"Oh, indeed! Well, I am sureit is very gratifying-very, very," said the old man. "You see, the newspapers say there are 300 of them to choose from. Do you think you could get a nice, pretty one—for me?". She was bewildered, but not entirely nonplused. From experience she knew the old man had a habit of speaking "adjacent thoughts" aloud.

"You won't mind the children?" endeavoring to bring him round to the main chance and at the same time ascertain the future status of her two

"Why, bless you, no," he exclaimed. "I love children-always have er-good ones. Now that I feel financially able to care for one, I want to indulge myself. For, if the trut! be known, the old man had in his early youth been an item of public expense owing to the bibulous habits of his male progenitor.

A foriorn hope presented itself to her. "Why, Mr. Peters, why don't you get married and"— Her modesty would not allow her to proceed.

"Bless my soul!" And he scratched his bald head dubiously, then meditatively. Presently he gazed at her attentively. "I don't know-I-never thought of it." She fluttered with the quiet agitation of her weight, age and experience. "Hem! Well, I'll-it won't make any difference. I'll try the boy first."

It was a month later. He sat with his knees wide spread and his elbows resting on their bony knobs. His heels were booked in the rung of his chair, and his careworn old fuce rested in the palms of his upturned hands. In front of him, on another chair, was the youngster, Robbie, crying.

"What is the matter with him-now?" the old man asked himself wearily. The child yelled. The fos-ter father clawed his ears with his wrinkled hands and hoped, in a de-spairing fashion, that Mrs. Halstead would come to the rescue. Then he dreaded her look of disapproval at the mess around the child. every description-pictures and picture books, his watch, fancy bottle stoppers, about everything not nailed-was there. Still the imp cried: "Mamma! Mamma! Yobble wants mamma! Yell! Yell! Y-e-1-1!

The little spinster dressmaker who lived in the hall room passed the door just as Robbie achieved a brilliant chef d'œuvre of yells. She skipped by in a scared manner, hurrledly inserted the key in her door and vanished. Peters and she had never exchanged a word, although be had occupied his room ten years and she had been in hers a year before. He was prejudiced against her in those early days because she ran a sewing machine sometimes at night. The cause had censed to exist, but the prejudice still clung to him, although he never protested against her. She on her had grown to regard him as a gruff old ogre-past whose door she always This afternoon he actually yearned for her or Mrs. Halstead or any woman to soothe the youngster. He sat there wondering if she knew anything about children. He hesitated. Robbie began to take in air for another outburst. Peters darted into the hall and knocked timidly at her door.

A few minutes later the child was sobbing on her breast, pouring out his tale of woe in indistinguishable sylla-bles, while the distrusted Peters walked the floor, eying the imp ap-prehensively. Miss Robinson held the child tenderly, absorbed in her office. The foster father was entirely out of the picture. The little woman loved children dearly.

Mr. Peters read the letter and heaved a sigh of relief. It was from his niece and contained an invitation to make his home with her. He had never seen his niece until the executor of the estate introduced her at a meeting of the heirs.

Mrs. Halstead came in person make his bed. The signs displayed at the breakfast table had actually made her blush and the boarders stare. Such looks! Such smiles!

"Mrs. Halstead," he began briskly. Her portly form was bent with tuck-ing in the clothes. "I am thinking of making a change in my life—a great change." He paused for encouragement.

"Yes," sweetly. "Now - you see - Robble and this woman next door-Miss Robinson-she -I supposed women have-hem-great ways with children." Warclouds gathered on the widow's face. "And I' "Not Miss Robinson?" exclaimed the landlady. "Bless me, yes!" He looked at her in astonishment.

"Well, I declare!" Out of the door she flounced, with blood in her eye. "Now, what is the matter with her?" "Now, what is the matter with glasses he asked himself, rubbing his glasses he asked himself, rubbing his glasses and peering down the hall. "What strange creatures women are!" He had intended telling her that from

THE OLD WELL.

Story of Moss, Microbes and Medicine.

It is the office of the poet to idealize. He paints pretty and pathetic word pictures which touch the heart and dim the eyes. But he does this regardless of physiology or pathology. When he sings a song of the old well on the farm and of the moss grown bucket in which the water was drawn, he hasn't a thought of the bacteria which find a fertile breeding ground in many an old well. He pictures the hot, thirsty day, and the bucket beaded with trickling drops which shine like pearls against the It is the office of the poet to idealize mosa. But he doesn't paint the picture of the man whose tongue is parched with fever, who tumbles and tosses in his hot room and narrow bed while the his hot room and narrow bed while the bacilli of the bucket and the well are striving for his life. That wouldn't be a poetic theme, and he has nothing to do with a theme that is not poetic.

As a matter of fact the old well and its familiar bucket have been the means of diseasing whole neighborhoods. The microbe is everywhere, and the easiest whicle for its introduction into the body is perhaps the water we dripk. We is perhaps the water we drink. We can't keep the microbe out. We can prevent its harmfulness.

THE DANGER OF DISEASE

does not lie in the strength of the microbe but in the weakness of the body. When the blood is impure the microbe has a vantage ground from which to operate. When the blood is pure disease fails to find a breeding ground, and the microbe strives in vain against the man. Nobody can be healthy when the blood is impure. Taint the blood and every organ fed and nourished by blood must share the taint. Keep the blood pure and plentiful and the body is made strong to resist the assaults of disease.

"I nonestly believe that I would have been in my grave to-day had it not been for your medicine, and the mercy of the good Lord," writes Mrs. James R. Moss, of New London, Stanly Co., N. C. It bothered me all the time, but I did not think it was serious until the spring of 1893, when my health became so much impaired. My blood was all out of order, and I had to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine which helped me for a short time. In the winter of 1895 I got worse than I had ever bem. My tonsils were enlarged and riy neck swollen all out of shape; my throat was sore and I could not cure it. My husband went for the doctor, but he gave me no encouragement. twelve months, when I heard of a lady that was taking your medicine and was getting well. So I secured some of the medicine and began taking it. In one week I was able to do my cooking. When I began taking the medicine I could sit up only a few minates at a time, and I could rest or sleep only a little while at a time. My throat was sore, at times I could not even swallow sweet milk, and my tonsils were full of little eating sores. My left side was swollen out of shape and so sore I could not bear my clothes fastened, as I could hardly get my breath. My vituals would sour on my stomach before I could leave the table. My folks and friends had about given me up. The doctor said I would not live a month, but three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, three bottles of his 'Pellets,' three bottles of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy did the work and made me a well woman." THE BEST THING for impure blood is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It neutralizes the action of the poisons which corrupt the blood and discase the body. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands, thus increasing the supply of pure blood, rich in the red corpuscles of health. By these the body is built up and its vitality restored. "Golden Medical Discovery" is singularly effective in the cure of scrofulous diseases, enlarged glands, swellings, pimples, eczema and eruptive diseases in general. The forms of blood disease have yielded to the curative power of this great remedy.

THE BEST THING

"I feel it is my duty to write to you of the wonderful curative powers of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.'" writes Geo. S. Henderson, Esq., of Denaud, Lee Co., Fla. "I had a bad sore on my right ear, and my blood was badly out of order. I tried local doctors but with no good results. Finally I wrote you the particulars in my case and you advised your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which I began to feel better, and when I had taken eight bottles the sore was healed up. I wish you success."

"For about one year and a half my face was very badly broken out," writes Miss Carrie Adams, of 116 West Main Street, Battlecreek, Mich. "I spent a great deal of money with doctors and for different kinds of medicine, but received no benefit. At last I read one of your advertisements in a paper, and obtained a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before I had taken one bottle of this medicine I noticed a change, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured. I can well recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to any one similarly afflicted."

DON'T BE IMPOSED ON.

Sometimes a dealer for the sake of the little more profit paid on the sale of inferior preparations will try and sell a substitute as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery." The claim is false on its face. There is no similar medicine for the blood and stomach which can show such a record of cures as the "Discovery." Don't be imposed upou by substitutes without a record.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. "A PERFECT GUIDE
