

Honors Were Easy.

"In the church I attended as a boy," said a New York man, "there were frequent clashes between the minister and the choir. The minister thought the choir irreverent and unmusical. The choir thought him a back number. Each tried to give the other a dig on every possible occasion.

"One Sunday, I remember, there was a clash wherein the honors were about even. The minister, after the choir had sung the opening hymn, said with a significant smile, that his text would be from Acts xx. 'And after the uproar was ceased.' But the choir, at the sermon's end, retorted neatly with the anthem, 'It is Time to Awake From Sleep.'"

Only makes a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it but the fact must be apparent to every one that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old-fashioned pills only make a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25 cent bottle of them. For Sale by CHAS. STRANG.

The Stick Insect of Borneo.

The longest known insect is undoubtedly the stick insect of Borneo. Specimens thirteen inches in length have been captured. It is an interesting example of mimetic coloring, resembling in a remarkable manner a piece of rough stick. On the bough of a tree it is extremely difficult to distinguish between the insect and the bark. Borneo is also the home of one of the largest species of dragon fly. A specimen of the subfamily Aschnina measures six inches and a half from wing to wing and is endowed with a correspondingly strong body.

Not a Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what D. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C. writes. Only 50c, at CHAS. STRANG DRUGGIST.

Willful Woman.

After the old gentleman had invited the young one to be seated the latter coughed once or twice to clear his throat and then bluntly suggested that he wished to marry the old gentleman's daughter.

The old gentleman didn't wish to be too ready to give his consent, but he admitted after a few minutes he thought he had no objections.

"That's just the trouble," protested the young man disconsolately. "If you'd only oppose it and order me out of the house once or twice and buy a bulldog I'd have some show of getting her."—New York Press.

A Good Name.

From personal experience I testify that DeWitt's Little Early Risers are unequalled as a liver pill. They are rightly named because they give strength and energy and do their work with ease.—W. T. Easton, Boerne, Tex. Thousands of people are using these tiny little pills in preference to all others, because they are so pleasant and effectual. They cure biliousness, torpid liver, jaundice, sick headache, constipation, etc. They do not purge and weaken, but cleanse and strengthened. Sold by Chas. Strang, Druggist.

What It Really Lacked.

"I put in the French papers here and there," said the would be author, "to give the book an atmosphere of culture."

"H'm!" remarked the critic. "It would have helped a bit if you had put in a little good English in spots."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins, suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. I went to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and felt, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Mrs. Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

WINE OF CARDUI

A MUSICAL NATION

By RAYMOND RAYNE

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Among the many unpleasant tasks which fall to the lot of a concert agent not the least difficult is to decline the tempting offers of certain virtuosi without hurting their very sensitive feelings.

When Pan Ogle Trepanowski wrote to me from Poland in this sense, my first impulse was to indite a very firm refusal. Reading his letter a second time, however, I gathered from the mixture of English and what appeared to be Volapuk, in which his intentions were conveyed, that he was following on its heels with such truly artistic impetuosity that no reply could possibly reach him in time to prevent his departure.

All his qualifications were duly set forth. Of course his hair (he inclosed a photograph) and his names were unexceptional; the rest I did not go into. It was quite out of the question for me to run any pianoforte virtuoso on my own account, unless indeed it had been the Paderewski himself.

On the morning of the 14th I received a telegram couched in these terms: "Locomotive twelve hours permit that one encounters me to the station Trepanowski." On solving this—he had evidently got it word by word from a dictionary—I gathered that the professor was coming by way of Quebec on the 12 o'clock train, and wanted to be met at the station.

I went down myself and saw the train in. Pan Ogle was there—a private detective could not have missed him. He stood well over six feet and was broad even for his height. Despite the warmth of a summer's day he wore an immense fur lined overcoat with collar and cuffs of sable.

He spoke English rather worse than he wrote it, but fortunately understood fairly well what was said to him. He was full of questions about the series of concerts which he supposed I had already arranged for him. I avoided giving any definite replies as well as I could until we reached the house.

During luncheon I was saved any trouble by the artist's appetite, which was well sustained and did credit to my housekeeping. We retired to the music room, and I got Pan Ogle behind a big cigar before breaking to him that I had not yet arranged any concerts. I told him that many most deserving foreign artists spent their first decade in New York in playing for nothing at the functions of wealthy patrons of the art and in giving their services at charity concerts, or, in fact, wherever two or three could be gathered together to hear them. I said that was a popular error into which all Europe seemed to have fallen. I told him we were the most musical nation in the world. I sank my voice to a confidential whisper. "The real reason we cannot get audiences is that for some time past listeners have been to a man (or a woman) better performers than those on the platform."

Pan Ogle looked incredulous. It was time to lead trump. I said, "I will wager anything you like that the first tradesman who calls at this house this afternoon will play you any one of Beethoven's sonatas you choose to name."

Pan Ogle laughed aloud. "You make what you call ze fun, is it not?" he asked.

"I was never more serious in my life," I replied. I rang the bell, and the servant entered.

"Parkin," I said, "ask the first tradesman who calls to step up here."

"Mr. Blunt, the pork butcher, is downstairs now, sir," said Parkin.

"Well, ask him to spare me a moment outside."

"Yes, sir," replied the impassive Parkin and disappeared.

The door opened, and Mr. Blunt walked in. He was in his shirt sleeves and had on the blue apron which seems inseparable from the vending of pork.

"What can do for you today, sir?" he said. "I have just started a new line of sausage which I can thoroughly recommend. I call them the Distinguished brand, and they are very different. They taper to one end, you see."

"I suppose you have a connection with your father?" I asked.

"Do you play the piano?" he asked.

"Well, fact, I play the piano, but I have never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman."

"Quo?" he asked.

"Now?" he asked.

"Do you play the piano?" he asked.

"I handed him the music which I had taken from the bookcase. He laid down his bow and rubbed his hand on his trousers before turning over the leaves with a gingerly thumb and forefinger.

"It looks rather stiff, but I'll have a go at it, sir."

The technical difficulties of this romantic work of Smetana are extreme, even when they are familiar, but to render the composition at sight with the freedom and abandon which it demands might fairly be deemed impossible. Nevertheless on this occasion the astounded professor heard a performance wherein the complete mastery of the several instruments was surpassed by the unanimity and poetry of the rendering.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be quickly and permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."—Miss ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee Minneapolis Study Club.

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health. The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I doctored a great deal but received no benefit. A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found great relief.

"Menstruation is now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for sometime."

How is it possible for us to make it plainer that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women? All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low, — all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and sickly, discouraged with life and without hope for the future, when proof is so unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering — all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills peculiar to women.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

When the last chord had died away there was a hushed pause. Then the professor burst forth into a torrent of polyglot superlatives. He embraced the reluctant pork butcher. He demanded of me why such a player did not devote himself to the career of a virtuoso. I assured him that Mr. Blunt was a fair specimen of the public to whom artists had to appeal in America.

"I don't know whether you are aware of it," said Blunt, speaking to me, "but your two servants are capital hands on the violin and cello. They come around to my house for a trio sometimes when they get a Sunday off."

I rang the bell, and Parkin again appeared.

"Mr. Blunt tells me you play the violin, Parkin," I said. "Please ask William to bring his cello and let us hear a trio."

"Yes, sir," answered Parkin, as placidly as if I had ordered whisky and soda.

He returned almost immediately, bringing his violin. William followed him. Apparently disturbed in the act of blacking boots, his hands and arms bore unmistakable signs of his employment, this evidence being eked out by a large black smear down one side of his nose. He carried his violin case in one hand and his bow in the other.

"You did not tell me you played the cello," I said to William. "I want you to show this gentleman how three Americans can play this trio of Suetama. Do you think you can manage it?"

I handed him the music which I had taken from the bookcase. He laid down his bow and rubbed his hand on his trousers before turning over the leaves with a gingerly thumb and forefinger.

"It looks rather stiff, but I'll have a go at it, sir."

The technical difficulties of this romantic work of Smetana are extreme, even when they are familiar, but to render the composition at sight with the freedom and abandon which it demands might fairly be deemed impossible. Nevertheless on this occasion the astounded professor heard a performance wherein the complete mastery of the several instruments was surpassed by the unanimity and poetry of the rendering.

A Runaway Bicycle.

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer yielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c, at CHAS. STRANG'S Drug Store.

Ideals of Beauty.

Famous men and famous judges of beauty have differed very greatly in their idea of what constitutes it.

Byron liked glossy hair clustering around a white, smooth brow; delicately arched eyebrows and glowing cheeks frequently suffused with blushes.

Spenser very explicitly described his style of comeliness. It consisted in "eyes like sapphires, teeth like pearls, a forehead like ivory, hair like gold and hands of silvery whiteness."

Shakespeare's beauties always possessed a very white and alabasterlike skin.

Scott's heroines were generally soft eyed and pensive, with sweeping eyelashes and high, intellectual foreheads.

Ben Jonson preferred a face characterized by simplicity of expression, flowing hair and "a sweet neglect."

Cowper placed very high value on cheeks of damask.

Applied Dictionarists.

Mrs. Mixitt, whose husband recently achieved wealth, and as a result bought 200 feet of books for his library, found much to interest her in the volumes. Especially was she taken with the dictionary, the study of which she found to be a great help to her in conversing with the cultured people whom she met at different places.

Some friends called one evening to bid the Mixitts farewell before the latter left for their European tour.

"Now," said one of the friends, "when you go to climb those mountains you be sure that you have a good guide."

"We will," said Mrs. Mixitt. "I wrote to the landlords of all the hotels where we will stop and told them to retain us the services of their best pathologists."—Judge.

Inconsiderate Fellow.

"He said he'd die if I didn't marry him."

"And still you refused?"

"Yes, I wished to find out before promising whether he really loved me as much as that or not. Oh, Harry, I'm p-p-perfectly miserable! He seems to be wretchedly healthy, and I do love him so much!"—Chicago Record Herald.

Debts In China.

In China one can always borrow money on the strength of having a son, but nobody would advance him a cent if he had a dozen daughters. The former is responsible for the debts of his father for three generations. The latter is only responsible for the debts of her own husband.
