Nixon curiosity had good judgment. "They are coming this way."

"Hear them howl! What the devil can be the cause of this tumult?" cried the other.
At that instant a half dozen police guards appeared at the head of the stairs. Upon seeing the Americans they approached and turned as if to oppose a foe stepping from the opposite direction. Baron Dangloss separated himself from the white coats above and called to the men below. In alarm they started for the street door. He was with them in an instant, his usually red face changing from white to purple, his anxious eyes darting first toward the group above and then toward the bewildered Americans.

"What's the matter?" demanded Lorry.
"There! See!" cried Dangloss, and even as he spoke a collect began at the head of the stairs, the police, augmented by a few soldiers, struggling against a howling, enraged mass of Explainers. Dangloss dragged his reluctant charges through a small door, and they found themselves in the baggage room of the hotel. Despite their queries he offered no explanation, but rushed them along, passing out to the opposite door, down a short stairway and into a side street. A half dozen police guards were awaiting them, and before they could catch the faintest idea of what it all meant they were running with the officers through an alley as if pursued by demons.

"Now, what in thunder does this mean?" panted Lorry, attempting to slacken the pace. He and Anguish were just beginning to regain their senses.
"Do not stop! Do not stop!" wheezed Dangloss. "You must get to a place of safety. We cannot prevent something dreadful happening if you are caught!"
"If we are caught?" cried Anguish.
"Why, what have we done?"
"Unhappily, Baron Dangloss. This is an outrage!" shouted Lorry.
"For heaven's sake, be calm! We are befriending you. When we reach the tower, where you will be safe, I shall explain," gasped the panting chief of police. A few moments later they were inside the prison gates, angry, impatient, fatigued.

"Is this a plan to prevent the duel?" demanded Lorry, turning upon the chief, who had dropped limply into a chair and was mopping his brow. When he could find his breath enough to answer, Dangloss did so, and he might as well have thrown a bombshell at their feet.
"There'll be no duel. Prince Lorenz is dead!"
"Dead?" gasped the others.
"Found dead in his bed, stabbed to the heart!" exclaimed the chief. "We have saved you from his friends, gentlemen, but I must say that you are still in a tight place."

He then related to them the whole story. Just before 6 o'clock Mitrox had gone to the prince's room to prepare him for the duel. The door was closed, but unbeknownst to him he found after repeated knockings, Lorenz was lying on the bed, unresponsive and covered with blood. The terrified duke made a hasty examination and found that he was dead. A dagger had been driven to his heart as he slept. The hotel was aroused, the police were called, and the excitement was at its highest pitch when the two friends came from their room a few minutes after 6.

"But what have we to do with this dreadful affair? Why are we rushed off here like criminals?" asked Lorry, a feeling of cruel gladness growing out of the knowledge that Lorenz was dead and that the princess was freed from her compact.
"My friend," said Dangloss slowly, "you are accused of the murder."

Lorry was too much stunned to be angry, too weak to protest. For some moments after the blow fell he and Anguish were speechless. Then came the protestations, the rage and the threats, through all of which Dangloss sat calmly. Finally he sought to quiet them, partly succeeding.
"Mr. Lorry, the evidence is very strong against you, but you shall not be unjustly treated. You are not a prisoner as yet. In Graustark a man who is accused of murder and who was not seen by any one to commit the crime cannot be legally arrested until an accuser shall go before the prince, who is also high priestess, and swear on his life that he knows the guilty man. The man who so accuses another is forfeit his own life in case the other is proved innocent. If you are to be charged with the murder of the prince, some one must go before the prince and take oath—his life against yours. I am holding you here, sir, because it is the only place in which you are safe. Lorenz's friends would have torn you to pieces had we not found you first. You are not prisoners, and you may depart if you think it wise."

"But how can they accuse me? I know nothing of the murder until I reached this place," cried Lorry, stopping short in his restless walk before the little baron.
"So you say, but—"
"If you accuse me, I'll kill you!" whispered Lorry, holding himself tense. Anguish caught and held him.
"Be calm, sir," cautioned Dangloss. "I may have my views, but I am not willing to take oath before her royal highness. Listen: you were heard to say you would kill him. You began the fight. You wore the aggressor, and there is no one else on earth, it is said, who could have wished to murder him. The man who did the stabbing entered the room through the hall door and left by the same. There are drops of blood in the carpet, leading direct to your door. On your knob are the prints of bloody fingers where you—or some one else—placed his hand in opening the door. It was this discovery, made by me and my men, that fully convinced the enraged friends of the dead prince that you were guilty. When we opened the door, you were gone. Then came the search, the fight at the head of the stairs and the race to the prison. The reason I saved you from that mob should be plain to you. I love my princess, and I do not forget that you risked your life, each of you, to protect her. I have done all that I can, gentlemen, to protect you in return. It means death to you if you fall into the hands of his followers just now. A few hours will cool them off no doubt, but now—now it would be madness to face them. I know not what they have done to my men at the hotel—perhaps butchered them."

There was anxiety in Dangloss's voice, and there was honesty in his keen old eyes. His charges now saw the situation clearly and apologized warmly for the words they had uttered under the pressure of somewhat extenuating circumstances. They expressed a willingness to remain in the prison until the excitement abated or until some one swore his life against the supposed murderer. They were virtually prisoners, and they knew it well. Furthermore, they could see that Baron Dangloss believed Lorry guilty of the murder. Protestations of innocence had been politely received and politely disregarded.
"Do you expect one of his friends to take the oath?" asked Lorry.
"Yes; it is sure to come."
"But you will not do so yourself?"
"No."
"I thank you, captain, for I see that you believe me guilty."
"I do not say you are guilty, remember, but I will say that if you did murder Prince Lorenz you have made the people of Graustark rejoice from the bottoms of their hearts, and you will be exulted from one end of the land to the other."

"Hanged and eulogized," said Lorry grimly.

FINANCIERS IN CONFERENCE.

Bankers Believe the Loan to Russia Will Not Exceed $200,000,000.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—A group of international financiers, including representatives of the Credit Lyonnais, Baron Hottinguer and the Banque de Paris; the Mendelssohns of Berlin and the Barings of London began conferences yesterday with Finance Minister Kolofovoff regarding the contemplated new loan. Owing to a delayed train, George W. Perkins, representing J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., did not arrive in time to participate in the morning's conference.

The amount of the loan is not yet decided and depends on whether any international or French loan can be arranged.
At the Ministry of Finance $260,000,000 was mentioned as the sum to mind. The French bankers say that the Paris proposals fixing the probable amount at $260,000,000 are overdrawn. They expect the loan to be not over $200,000,000.

The negotiations are successful the issuance of the loan is expected to take place in the early days of November.

SAVED HIS LIFE.

W. J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 13, 1902: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two months longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first application gave me great relief; two fifty cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Strang's drug store, Medford.

Fire Fighters Turn Over a New Leaf.

Fruitvale, October 21.—The Fruitvale Fire Department has reorganized and is going to put itself upon a sound basis. The recent fire which consumed the residence of A. C. Fay has brought out the necessity for a local fire department, as help cannot be had from Oakland. The following new officers were elected: Cowan, president; vice-president, John Bridge; secretary, Norman Manning; foreman, Paul Hoffman; assistant foreman, John Higgins; steward, Mr. Perry; committee upon organization, Axel Valline and John Bridge.

Insomnia and Indigestion Cured.

"Last year I had a very severe attack of indigestion. I could not sleep at night and suffered most excruciating pains for three hours after each meal. I was troubled this way for about three months when I used Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and received immediate relief," says John Dixon, Tallamore, Ontario, Canada. For sale by Chas. Strang.

Catch Salmon During Close Season.

Red Bluff, Cal., October 21.—Fish and Game Warden T. W. Birmingham arrived here Friday night with two men from Tehama, arrested for catching salmon during the closed season. The accused men are John Dall and John Lewis and when arrested they had a large amount of salmon in their possession. At this season salmon are spawning on the upper river, and prevention is being taken to prevent illegal fishing.
Both violators are professional fishermen, and are familiar with the law.

Cures Chills and Fever.

G. W. Writ, Naugochokes, Texas, says: "His daughter had chills and fever for three years; he could not find anything that would help her till he used Herbine. His wife will not keep house without it, and cannot say too much for it." 50c. Sold by Strang's drug store, Medford.

CENSURED FOR CARELESSNESS.

Ring, Storekeeper at the Boston Navy Yard Will Not Retain Office.
Washington, October 21.—The court of inquiry in the case of Paymaster Ring, general storekeeper at the Boston navy yard, has found him to be careless and negligent in the performance of his duty, but does not impeach his integrity, and recommends no further proceedings.
While approving this finding, the Secretary of the Navy refuses the officer's request to be retained as general storekeeper at Boston.

GIRL DISGUISED AS BOY

WOMAN, UNABLE TO OBTAIN LIVING WAGES AMONG HER SEX, ATTIRES IN MALE GARB.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Attired in masculine garb Augusta Helvey, a young married woman, sought work for four days in the downtown district, mingling with scores of rival male applicants and passing unobserved in the throngs on the main streets. Yesterday she would have begun work as a male waiter in a restaurant had not an observant policeman noted a characteristically feminine move and manner in the youth. The policeman took the "suspect" to the police station, where the young woman admitted her disguise and declared that she had adopted the garb solely in order that she might obtain employment in which living wages could be obtained. In St. Louis she had worked as a waitress and had been able to earn, barely a scant living, while her clothing had been worn to shreds. Unable to replenish it she had taken a suit of clothing once worn by her husband and had determined that henceforth she would pass as a man and endeavor to earn the wages given the male worker.
The woman is 26 years of age and resides in Fairbury, Neb. When little more than a girl she came to Chicago, where she was married to Richard Vaughn, it is said, a city employe. Vaughn soon secured a divorce, it is said, and his wife, again assumed her maiden name. She was thrown upon her own resources and learned it was difficult for a woman to earn a good livelihood. She told the police that she was subjected to continual annoyances.
A speaking automobile was the cause of the failure of Miss Helvey's plans. As it flashed by a downtown corner a policeman leaned forward to catch the number. The woman, in coat and trowsers was in its path. She shrieked as she leaped aside into a mud puddle and made a motion as if to gather up her flowing skirts. Then this youth moved a hand to his hat as if to adjust it.
The policeman waited no longer. He had missed the number of the automobile, but he took the "boy" to the station.

Presidential Election Will Make No Change.

No matter which candidate is elected, Foley's Honey and Tar will remain the people's favorite remedy for coughs, colds and incipient consumption. It cures colds quickly and prevents pneumonia. A. J. Nussbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist prepared me some medicine and a physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar and eight doses cured me." Sold by Medford Pharmacy.

A Man Eating Tiger.

In 1891 one of the Haganbecks and Herman Deger, a hunter in the family's employ, went to India for tigers. Hearing of a savage man enter in a cage in a district, they organized a party and sallied forth to find him.
Crawling like a cat, with back up and whiskers bristling, it waited in danger for a spring. One of the hunters more venturesome than the rest, boldly charged it. With a sudden bound, springing from its crouching position, it was upon him and he was trampled from his horse like a man of straw. And then, thought he was a man of fully 145 pounds weight, the great beast seized him as a cat seizes a kitten and started off with him toward the jungle. It was impossible to shoot for fear of killing the man, and so we had to make the chase one of strategy. Finally, near the edge of the undergrowth, we cornered the tiger, and it dropped its useless burden. Then a bullet from an express rifle ended its days of pillage. It had carried the man half a mile, and, strange to say, he was little injured.—Leslie's.

How to Cure Corns and Bunions.

First, soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it; then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily, rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn a few days to protect it from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism Pain Balm is unequalled. For sale by Chas. Strang.

BAYS SCHOOLS RUIN GIRLS.

Dr. Freda Lankton Charges Race Suicide to Educational Methods.
Chicago, Oct. 21.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Omaha, Neb., says, "No one thing contributes so much to race suicide as our modern school system," says Dr. Freda Lankton, addressing the Missouri Valley Homeopathic Medical Association. Her subject was "The Imperfect Development of Our Girls."
She said: "One of the most grievous problems of our day is the lack of development of the girls. Our school system so crowds the child as to divert to the brain those energies which should go to his physical upbuilding. From these nervously developed mothers, the child becomes an invalid from child birth. While the body is in progress of development the brain should be rested.
"It is not possible to produce a perfectly developed body and compass an education in the short period of twenty years. Owing to the strain upon our girls during the years of physical development we are creating a race of women incapable of producing normal children.
"If you are to have a race of strong, symmetrical and capable men and women you must modify your school system. Dull children in our schools up to the age of 13 and 14 often develop into the most brilliant students after that time. Nature has been developing the body during those years of apparent intellectual dullness."

A Judicious Inquiry.

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade says he has often heard druggists inquire of customer who asked for a cough medicine, whether it was wanted for a child or for an adult, and if for a child they almost invariably recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The reason for this is that they know there is no danger from it and that it always cures. There is not the least danger in giving it, and for cough, cold and croup it is unsurpassed. For sale by Chas. Strang.

Corsten and England.

It is an almost forgotten fact that for a period of a little more than two years during the Napoleonic wars Corsica was a British possession. After the evacuation of Toulon the British government felt it necessary to take the island, and Lord Hood, with Nelson as brigadier, was sent to drive out the French. With the capture of Calvi, July 12, 1794, where Nelson lost his eye, the island fell into British hands, and George III. formally accepted the crown of Corsica, appointing Sir George Elliot as British viceroy and allowing the Corsicans to retain their legislative assembly. In 1796 the activity of the French navy in other parts of the Mediterranean resulted in a sudden decision of the British government to withdraw from the island. The evacuation was completed on Oct. 26 of that year, and Corsica reverted to France.

Consumptives Made Comfortable.

Incipient consumption is cured by Foley's Honey and Tar, but we do not hold out false hopes to consumptives by claiming that it will cure the dread disease in the advanced stages; but if the lungs are not too far gone Foley's Honey and Tar will effect a cure, as it stops the racking cough and soothes the inflamed air passages giving them a chance to heal, and even in the advanced stages it always gives comfort and relief. A. A. Heron, of Finch, Ark., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar is the best preparation for coughs and lung trouble. I know that it has cured consumption in the first stages." Sold by Medford Pharmacy.

Cooking in Naples.

In Naples cooking is done anywhere and anyhow—inside and outside, on sheet iron stoves, on tin boxes, in stone jars or in clay baked earth. Here a cobbler sits from early to late out on a corner of a sidewalk near a public "Latrina," to which he attends whenever necessary; when not, he mends; also makes shoes. Near him is a granite arrangement where he cooks his meats. It is about one foot high, square and open at the top, with space deep enough for some charcoal. Below the coal is a grate. On one side at the bottom is an opening for draft, and a savory smell always arises from a little black pot if you pass there at noon or toward the evening. I saw a stove and a woman busy cooking out on a balcony, with about six feet of stovepipe branched against the railing.—Chicago Tribune.

A PROMINENT TRAINMAN.

The many friends of G. H. Hattson, engineer L. E. & W. R. R., at present living in Lima, O., will be pleased to know of his recovery from threatened kidney disease. He says: "I was cured by using Foley's Kidney Cure, which I recommend to all especially to trainmen, who are usually indifferently afflicted." Sold by Medford Pharmacy.

A Cuckoo That Sitters.

Even the cuckoo, which has no home, is strangely faithful to locality. In an Essex district an old cuckoo, known to the whole place by a distinctive stammer in his speech, was seen and heard regularly in the same parish for seven consecutive years.—London Outlook.

Continual Opportunity.

Great opportunities seldom present themselves, but every moment of every hour of thy conscious life is an opportunity to improve thyself, which for thee is the best and most necessary thing.—Ruskin.

A Smart Woman.

"Billings' wife thinks he is the smartest man on earth."
"No," answered Miss Cayenne; "she doesn't think so. She merely makes Billings think she thinks so."

Getteness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality; they are the perfect duties.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

FIERCE STORM SWEEPS LAKE

STEAMER ON ERIE WRECKED—
TWO OF CREW DROWNED—
SCHOONER ASHORE.

Huron and Michigan Lashed by Tempest That Destroys Boats and Wharves.

Cleveland, Oct. 21.—During a fierce storm on Lake Erie early yesterday the steamer Sarah E. Sheldon went ashore east of Lorain. She carried a crew of thirteen men, two of whom jumped overboard when the vessel began to go to pieces. At least two of the crew were drowned. The Sheldon will be a total wreck.
The schooner Kingfisher, which went ashore just east of the Cleveland breaker two weeks ago, is being pounded to pieces on the beach.
The steamer F. H. Prince, a freight carrier, which left here Friday night had a narrow escape. The big vessel was thrown on her beam ends repeatedly. She finally managed to re-enter the harbor.

Detroit, Oct. 21.—The lower lakes were swept by the heaviest storm of the season. Navigation across the Lime Kilns crossing at the mouth of the Detroit river was entirely suspended.

Lake Huron was lashed by a 42-mile gale of Alpena, while reports from Lake Erie were that the wind blow thirty miles an hour.
On Lake Michigan Friday night a 60-mile gale prevailed.
Marinette, Wis., Oct. 21.—The storm Friday night did $50,000 damage along the north shore of the Menominee river. Docks have been washed away, bathhouses torn to pieces and thousands of tons of coal washed into the bay. Many boats, tugs and gasoline launches were destroyed, and quantities of logs in the storage booms were washed away.
Menominee, Mich., Oct. 21.—It is estimated that $150,000 damages were caused to docks, lumber, logs and shipping by Friday night's insubre wind.
Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 21.—Reports from the harbors along the eastern shore of Lake Michigan indicate that the storm was the most terrific known on the lake for many years. The damage to harbors, piers, etc., will amount to thousands of dollars.

FAST TRAIN WRECKED.

Engineer and Fireman of Double-Header Receive Serious Injuries.
Paola, Kans., Oct. 21.—The fast mail train from Colorado on the Missouri Pacific Railway, running as a double-header, was wrecked a few miles east of Paola Friday night, two men, one express and two baggage cars leaving the track, but remaining upright. J. B. Kohlmyer, engineer, Kansas City, Kans.; Charles Toeter, engineer, Paola, Kans.; and James Bryan, fireman, Osawatomie, were injured, but all will recover. None of the passengers were hurt.

Cures Winter Cough.

J. E. Gover, 101 N. Main St., Ottawa, Kan., writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. Last fall I got for her a bottle of Horehound Syrup. She used it and has been able to sleep soundly all night long. Whenever the cough troubles her, two or three doses stop the cough and she is able to be up and well." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Strang's drug store, Medford.

How Dew Forms.

Dew was formerly supposed to fall softly from the heavens, and to this belief may be ascribed many current and poetical phrases; but dew does not fall in the exact meaning of the term. The condensation of watery vapor follows upon the chilling of the air. This is seen as the earth cools toward night, and it takes place most rapidly near the ground. Grass and other vegetation cools more rapidly than the air above it. The air in contact with plants is thus chilled and deposits its moisture upon the leaves of the plants in dew. When the chilling of the air proceeds further, the moisture may be precipitated to a considerable height above the earth's surface, and it then becomes what we call fog.

Facts About Bananas.

Under very favorable circumstances a banana plant may give a stem of fruit in nine months, but it generally takes from fifteen to eighteen months for the average plantations to be in full bearing. The life of a plantation varies according to the fertility of its soil and topographical situation. Some soils may need a rest in six or seven years, while others may last practically forever, as in cases where periodically enriched by alluvial deposits. Sandy loam, through which water or rain will freely percolate, is the best soil for bananas. The stalk needs a large amount of rainfall for its successful development, but water must not be allowed to remain on the surface or immediately under the surface of the soil surrounding it, lest the water be heated by the tropical sun and become stagnant, in which case it will kill the plant.—Chicago Journal.

HOSPITALS CROWDED MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From This Sad and Costly Experience.

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals, and for three-fourths of the patients lying on those now white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.
Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhoea, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the trouble will make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.
The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Miss Lucille Adams, of the Colonade Hotel, Seattle, Wash., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham—
"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor ordered me and finally told me that I had a tumor on the womb and must undergo an operation if I failed to get well. I felt that this was a death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

Just as surely as Miss Adams was cured of the above trouble, so will you be cured, for you surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.
Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Everywhere along the line of the parade from the terminal station to Piedmont, where the Georgia State Fair Association is holding its annual exhibition, decorations were beautiful. Pictures of the President were seen on every side, many bearing mottoes of praise and commendation to the city's distinguished guest.

Immense Throng Cheer.

As the President arose to speak he was greeted by the immense throng rising and cheering.
President Roosevelt began by saying that the problems Americans have to face today are very serious, but, after all, they are only part of the price they have to pay for the triumph they have won for the high position they have attained. He cautioned them against displaying a foolish optimism, but warned them also to beware of drifting into blind pessimism in their view of the future. In this connection the President said:
"Undoubtedly the growth of wealth in this country has had some very unfortunate accompaniments, but it seems to me that much the worst damage that people of wealth can do the rest of us is not any actual physical harm, but the awakening in our breasts of either the mean vice of worshipping mere wealth and the man of mere wealth for the wealth's sake, or the equally mean vice of viewing with rancorous envy and hatred the man of wealth merely because they are men of wealth."

Federal Supervision Necessary.

In referring to the question of government supervision of the great corporations, the President characterized them as "the most efficient business implements," and further said:
"The corporation is the creator of the State. It should always be held accountable to some sovereign, and this accountability should be real and not sham."
The President told his audience that the South's great staple—cotton—had caused the balance of trade to be carried in favor of the United States last year.

One Minute Cough Cure For Coughs, Colds and Croup.
