If you want a representative in the legislature who will be hustling all the time in the interest of the people of Jackson county, vote for Henry D. Kubli. All his interests are here and his interests are the people's interests.

Hill is accused of trying to block the way of the Harriman line into Seattle, while on the other hand the FIRST NATIONAL BANK, MEDFORD, OREGON. Paid Up Capital, $25,000. Stockholders' Liability $50,000. FAIR DEALING, SAFETY, SECURITY.

Harriman interests are charged with trying to keep the Great Northern out of Portland. The railroads seem to agree upon only one thing—get all you can and keep all you get, supplemented by that famous observation of a great railroad magnate.

We read that during the excitement caused by the disaster in San Francisco an elderly lady was seen carrying a parrot up Market street, that the parrot frequently repeated, "This is a h-l of a fix," and as parrots repeat only what they hear, it is feared that some profane person, though surely not the lady, expressed the view of the case; and doubt the thought occurred to many.—Lakerlev Herald.

The farmer, the stockman and the miner all have a community of interest with Henry Kubli. He is more or less engaged in all these pursuits. He knows the needs of this section in the way of legislation, and he has the energy and hustling qualities to achieve results.

"Cleaning up" seems to be the order of the day in many northern Oregon cities. In a report of one of

has never mixed in politics as a candidate for office before and as a consequence was a little uncertain about what was the necessary mode of procedure at first. Finally he decided that he would be just plain Will Coleman because he couldn't be anything else. He, acquired no "candidate handshake," made no promises he wasn't certain he could perform, greeted his old friends and his new acquaintances in the same way he had been accustomed to do, and won out. His campaign for election will be made on the same lines and after he is elected he will be the same Will Coleman—honest, courteous and attentive to his duties.

Carl Schurz, revolutionist, diplomat, statesman and soldier, died at his home in New York on May 14th. The career of Carl Schurz as a public man is an unique one, from the fact that he invariably followed his own convictions of what was right and allowed no political bonds to control his actions. He successfully supported Republican and Democratic candidates for the presidency. He served in the civil war and came out as a source that E. T. Staples, candidate for state senator, had declared just after the primaries—when W. H. Gore was for a time conceded to be the victor in the three-cornered contest between Messrs. Staples, Gore and Bowers—that he (Staples) would use his efforts to defeat Gore if the latter were nominated. This statement Mr. Staples brands as absolutely false and furthermore declares that at the time when Mr. Gore was apparently the party nominee, he began to bring every effort in his power to bear upon those who had supported him during the primary fight to swing them into line for the party nominee. Just the day before the official count was made Mr. Staples said to a representative of The Mail in substance: "I may win out or not. It's close. But whichever way it goes you will find Staples with his coat out working for the party nominee, whoever he may be."

NATURE'S HOUSE CLEANING.

Rainy Season in Caracena the City's Sanitary Salvation. Just what Caracena would do without its rainy season I cannot imagine, for the city is far from being clean and sanitary. Garbage is thrown into the yards for the vultures to feed upon, dust and papers accumulate in the streets, and the visitor is about to pronounce the city the dirtiest he has ever seen when nature suddenly decides to put things to rights. An ordinary rainfall would not suffice now. A thorough flushing is needed, and nothing short of a deluge will do it.

But somewhere up in the mountain tops the deluge is forming, and presently a great black vapor overspreads the valley. It comes slowly at first, as if to warn the people to go indoors, but when it has acquired sufficient density it falls. In a moment almost the streets and courtyards are flooded, the fantastic waterspouts that overhang the sidewalks pour out their streams like gigantic kettle spouts, and loud is the noise of the splashing and spluttering. Half an hour later one tiptoes along the shiny pavements, as if over a newly scrubbed floor. Above him is a sky of spotless blue, while the only clouds to be seen are insignificant patches of white along the mountain sides. Yet in an incredibly short space of time the whole process may be repeated.—George M. L. Brown in St. Nicholas.

GOOD MUSIC.

It is Often a Tonic and Always a Character Builder. Good music is a powerful tonic to many people, especially those suffering from melancholia. It lifts them out of their gloomy moods, dispels gloom and despondency, kills discouraged feelings and gives new hope, new life and new vigor. It seems to put a great many people into proper tune. It gives them the keynote of truth and beauty, strikes the chords of harmony, dispels discord from the life, scatters clouds and brings sunshine.

All good music is a character builder because its constant suggestion of harmony, order and beauty puts the mind into a normal attitude. Music clears the cobwebs out of many minds, so that they can think better, act better and live better. Some writers are dependent upon music for their inspiration and their moods. Somehow it brings the muse to them. It adds brilliancy to the brain and facility to the pen, which they cannot seem to get in any other way.

God music seems to give us a touch of the divine and to put us in contact with divinity. It drives out evil thoughts, making us ashamed of them. It lifts us above petty annoyances and little worries of life and gives us a glimpse of the ideal which the actual is constantly obscuring.—Success.

A Convalescent's Bedtime.

A convalescent patient should never be permitted to sit up late at night. After the evening meal it is well for all visitors to be excluded from the room, and the patient's mind should be kept as free from excitement as possible. The hour for retiring should be early and such means employed for aiding sleep as may be directed by the physician. A glass of hot milk at bedtime is often a good device for promoting sleep.

London.

London was a place of importance even under the Romans and was famed for its great commerce as early as the first century of the Christian era. From the Romans it received municipal institutions which have endured in their main features to the present day. In Saxon times it was, in reality, a small independent state.

Avoiding a Sheek.

"To die," said Dr. Samuel Johnson, "is the fate of man, but to die with lingering anguish is generally his folly."

these occasions in The Dalles it is said that a half holiday having been announced by the mayor "five thousand men, women and children participated in cleaning up day. Streets, alleys and buildings are absolutely clean." It wouldn't be a bad idea for Medford to take a half day off and do some work on this line.

An emphatic denial has come from President Roosevelt of the report published in the Democratic press that he "didn't think much of the Oregon brand of Republicans," and that "the re-election of Chamberlain as governor would be a good thing for the state," and it was no less than could be expected of the president. He, perhaps, has even less confidence in the Oregon brand of Democracy, which sent a senator to Washington pledged, by his own voluntary statement, to support the administration in the rate bill fight, and who, when the test came, was whipped into the opposing line by his party managers.

When you go into the election booth on June 4th don't overlook the name of W. R. Coleman, Republican candidate for county clerk. Mr. Coleman major general of volunteers. He supported Horace Greeley in 1872, and in 1876 helped elect President Hayes and after served in his cabinet as secretary of state. In 1881 he once more switched and supported Cleveland. Of late years he has lived in retirement, devoting himself to literary work. He was seventy-six years of age and was born in Germany.

J. W. Perkins is one of the best qualified of the men who are aspirants for the office of representative. Mr. Perkins has been a resident of this county for the past several years, but he has been so busy with his orchard interests that he has had not time to make a very extended circle of acquaintances, but he is known, by reputation at least, to a large number of our citizens, as a successful orchardist and business man, and one who has the interests of the whole section at heart. Mr. Perkins doesn't do a whole lot of talking, but when he does talk his listeners find out presently that he knows what he is talking about, and that his opinions are based upon solid facts.

Residence and Business Property in Medford.

WITH the country filling up rapidly and the fact evident that Medford is going to double in population within the next three years, the sagacious among our citizens are getting hold of inside property and securing the most desirable residence property, in advance of the newcomer, and we want to call attention to the number of good business propositions which we now have on our list. Call and talk it over, and you will find some talking to interest you.

AND RESIDENCE LOTS: We have concluded to meet the demand for small lots of good rich land by dividing the large lots of the Garnett Sub-Division into average sized building lots to give the people what they want, and will give good terms and cheap prices. LOOK THIS MATTER UP and ACT at ONCE.

THERE Never was a Better Time to invest in Medford property than right now, and if you do NOT Secure a Nice Home this Spring, you will wonder in a month from now how you came to be so short-sighted as to let the opportunity go by.

HORSESHOES.

The Three Lucky Elements That Are Associated in Them.

The superstition that associates the horseshoe with good luck is very old. It is said to prevail not only among English speaking people, but in all the races of Europe and in southern Asia.

Antiquarians are undecided whether its origin has to do with the material from which the horseshoe is made or with its shape.

The ancients believed that iron as a metal had great secret powers, and they drove nails into their walls as a protection against pestilence. The Arabs when overtaken by severe storms in the desert cry out, "Iron, iron!" which they think will propitiate the evil spirits which have raised the storm.

The Scandinavians have held from time immemorial the idea that it was lucky to find a piece of iron.

As regards the form of the horseshoe, there is no doubt that among the ancients the crescent form was much favored as having lucky or preservative powers. Ornaments were shaped in this way to drive away evil spirits. The Chinese have their tombs built in a semicircular form, like a horseshoe, and the Moors use the same form in their architecture.

It may be remarked that in the mythology of Europe horses were also regarded as luck bearers, and superstition once supposed that a horse's hoof placed under the bed would cure certain complaints. The horseshoe therefore may be said to unite within itself three lucky elements—it is in the shape of a crescent, it is made of iron, and it has been taken from a horse.

Mistakes.

This old world of ours is made up of mistakes. You make them, I make them, not one, but many. Your wife makes them and so does mine, but you can see my mistakes a great deal plainer than I can. We watch for other people's mistakes, we pick them up and show them up. You laugh at mine and I at yours, and on we go making one after another as fast as we can. But the most of us think we are about the proper thing and but for the faith we have in ourselves we would soon sink into oblivion. But when we keep showing the people where we stand, that we have faith in our deeds and when a little mistake is shown us we stand ready to correct it and make good all our short comings. We still feel that the people will say well done. But while we all of us make mistakes we don't make mistakes all the time. For example when "Shortie" Garnett put in the Toledo ranges, the 1800 washers, the Nelson's pure paints and when he got that large stock of cooking vessels in dark grey and white he hit the nail square on the head. Now the proof: first, it sells, second it sells again and third it still sells and last it always will sell. Why? Because it's just what the people want, it's cheap, it's good, it's big, it's sanitary, fits the bill. I don't care how big a crank you are or how simple you be, when your optics look over his stock they are pleased. When you price it you are better pleased and the longer you have it the more you are pleased. See any woman who cooks on a Toledo range or washes on a 1800 washer or one who has some of our enameled ware and see if she ain't getting better looking and is more jolly than of old and by these signs we judge we have made no mistake by handling these goods. I keep a full line of hardware, tinware, a first-class tin shop, a first-class plumber and guarantee goods, prices and satisfaction. Try me once. All ready and see H. C. GARNETT.

The Shoos.

A friend of Maurice Barrymore related an incident of his last meeting with the brilliant actor, which occurred only a short time before his faculties began to fail. As they were parting the newspaper man asked the other, "Where are you to be found nowadays—at the Players?" "No," replied Barrymore; "I'm posted at the Players, but you can always find me at the Lambs. As a matter of fact," he added whimsically, "I'm posted at the Lambs, too, but they temper the wind there."
