

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

Even after we have government inspection from "hoof to can" it might be a good plan to occasionally inspect the inspectors.

A Chicago man, after twenty-seven years of married life, has obtained a divorce in South Dakota. Even in the matter of divorces the average Chicagoan fears to patronize home industry.

Emma Goldman says a man and woman should remain married only as long as it suits their convenience. Emma talks just like a Newport society woman at times.

Judge A. H. Fanner, law partner of the late Senator Mitchell, has received a pardon from President Roosevelt. He had pleaded guilty to perjury before the grand jury and his testimony convicted Mitchell.

If there is anybody who is happy these days, it is the fruit grower or the grain grower. Both are assured immense crops and they have every reason to feel jubilant.

The man who frets about it's being so "fearfully hot," is the very same fellow who grumbled because it was "too awfully wet." Some people would kick if they were being hung!

The action of that New York City school board sustaining a principal charged with hugging a teacher, at the same time raising the hugged girl's salary, may result in more hugging in the schools all over the country. People are so willing to take advantage of an aggressive precedent.

A mob of fifty women refugees at San Francisco angered by the slowness of the delivery supplies, descended upon the Moulder school, where the relief flour is stored, and seized a 25-pound sack apiece. They made their escape after throwing a newspaper photographer, who attempted to take a snap shot of the raid, down the steps of the building.

Since the eruption of Mount Vesuvius the Naples postoffice has had to handle over ten thousand small boxes containing ashes emitted by the volcano, which were sent by visitors to every part of the world. England and America will receive the largest share of the souvenirs. As every one of the boxes was sent by registered mail, the postoffice there profited by the eruption to the amount of nearly $10,000.

Automobiles or horseless wagons are not of so recent date as we generally think. In the Bible the prophet Job spoke of a wagon or vehicle, which undoubtedly might be termed an auto. In 1214 there were coaches run by power, and from that time one form and another of horseless vehicle has been invented until the present high point of invention has been reached and still more is yet to come.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxine, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would do. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise, instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all its remedies will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels, and has never been known to fail. For sale by Chas. Strang.

Klamath County News.
From Klamath Falls Republican:
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pierce, of Ashland, are expected here next Monday on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Joa. Pierce. They expect to take an outing on Spring creek.

Ed. Jones, an employe on the ditch had the thumb on his right hand badly smashed today by a falling rock. Another ditch employe received a three-inch scalp wound while coming out of the ditch, due to a falling timber.

Ralph Ross, of this place, who has been employed at the Odessa saw mill, had his left hand caught in the edger machine last Monday and so lacerated that it required the amputation of his little finger, also, although the doctors are putting forth their best efforts to save it.

The last of the smallpox patients will be discharged from quarantine next Sunday, and thus will a period be placed at the end of the smallpox business at Klamath Falls. As has been contended by the Republican there was no necessity for any unusual ness on the part of the residents of this city and county at any time, and the wild stories spread as to the extent of the disease were too ridiculous to receive any credence. The few cases, however, may have been a blessing in disguise, for in the future a greater degree of precaution is sure to be taken in case any contagious disease should make its appearance.

H. B. Gale, of the light, water and telephone companies, arrived in this city last Saturday for the purpose of looking after his extensive interests here. He states that five miles of water mains will be laid this year and that upwards of $25,000 will be expended on improving the water system during the present season. Never before was there such a demand for the extension of mains as at present, and the company has been taxed to its utmost capacity to meet the requirements of the occasion. He further stated that improvements in the telephone system are being made every day. A new metallic line is to be installed between here and Merrill, and the line in use at present will serve the district lying south of and midway between Merrill and this city. The proposition of extending the system to Lakeview has been abandoned because the company operating in that city is making great haste to extend their line this way, the poles for which have already been cut.

James Edward McClure, of Poe Valley, was drowned while attempting to ford Lost river, near the Fortna ranch, Sunday, June 24th. He had been to see the Horton's and left that ranch about 11 o'clock, telephoning to his father, W. H. McClure, that he would be home for dinner. Nothing was thought of his failure to reach home on time, for very often he would fall to keep such appointments, being detained by a cattle deal, or other business connected therewith, for he was a cattle buyer. When he failed to show up after a few days' absence and nothing was heard from him, search was instituted and the remains were found last Saturday, June 30th, about two hundred yards below the ford, floating on the surface of Lost river. It was fully dressed, and about $90 in gold was found in his pockets. The horses found a short distance away, bridled and bridled. The conclusion reached is that the old ford had been washed away, and as the river was much higher than usual the horse was unable to carry his rider against the swift current. Seeking to lighten the burden, McClure jumped into the river, his intention being to swim or float alongside the horse. Being encumbered with boots, traps and clothing and possibly losing his hold on the horse, he was unable to carry out his plan, and was drowned.

Prof. G. R. Carlock, of Ashland, arrived here last week and will spend the summer in Klamath county. He has been engaged as principle of the Merrill schools for the coming year. His family, now located at Ashland, will be here about the middle of August.

Mrs. F. W. Jennings arrived here Friday evening from Honolulu and will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Keames.

A small mining excitement has been started over the discovery of a ledge of ore about three-fourths of a mile north of the city. Several parties have taken up, or contemplate taking up, mining claims. A peculiar formation has been discovered on the Mitchell place, in North Klamath Falls. Digging a well, drift wood, embedded in gravel, was taken out at a depth of forty feet, indicating that this had been a lake or river bed before the volcanic eruption that buried this country under a flow of lava. Upon panning the gravel a few colors were discovered, concentrating beyond a doubt that mineral exists in this section, and only awaits discovery to make Klamath famous for gold as well as for irrigation.

Twenty Years Battle.
"I was loser in a twenty year battle with chronic piles and malignant sores, until I tried Chamberlain's Anus-Salve, which turned the tide, by curing both, will not at once remain," writes A. Bruce, of Farmville, Va. Best of all Ulcers, Cuts, Burns and Wounds. 25c at Chas. Strang, druggist.

A Bad Recovery.
Scene: Registry office. Bridgroom (to registrar)—The first time I was married was in a church, the second time in a chapel, but I like this way best. It's so plain and simple, and I should come here if ever I got married again.—(Catches sight of his bride and sees he has said the wrong thing.) That is, my dear, if ever I have the—of—misfortune to get married again, of course.—London Punch.

The Dust.
Lich Aunt—Why do you bring me this dust, Tommy? Tommy—Because I want to bite it. Rich Aunt—Why do you want me to bite it? Tommy—Because I heard papa say that when you bite the dust we shall get £20,000.—London Tit-Bits.

Rensuring.
The Lender—All right, I'll lend you $5, but don't forget that you owe it to me. The Borrower—My dear fellow, I shall never forget it as long as I live.—Brooklyn Life.

The Farmer and Bid Dubbs.

The Louisville Courier Journal, in a recent issue, had two editorials which are interesting as indicating the conditions all over the country today.

At the head of one article there appeared the following: "Bid Dubbs sat on a fence rail for three hours, Tuesday, whittling."—Leedsburg (Mo.) Light.

At the beginning of the other editorial the editor wrote: "That was an impressive plea sent to a number of railroad officers by Gov. Hook, of Kansas. Kansas, he said, needed eight thousand farm hands to harvest its great crops, and he besought the railroad men to help get them and to offer low transportation rates as extra inducement.

There are lots of Bid Dubbs in this vale of tears, and they are sitting on the fences of the country, whittling, evidences of shiftlessness, incapacity, innate laziness. They are all alike, all belong to the great army of fault finders with the conditions; all complain that others have the wealth of the world, and that they have been robbed of success by the "plutocrat." Yet the wall of the farmers of Kansas or the hop growers and fruit men of Oregon make an impression on them, other than to make them more complaining of their inability to amass wealth simply through "sitting" on the fence of a rail, whittling." They fail to recognize that the plutocrat never wasted his time sitting on a rail, whittling. If he did, there was an object in it, and something was evolved from his active brain while hands were idling.

Oregon and Kansas are only two of the forty-six states of this great nation, and there are various territories in addition, and all are echoing the wall of the Kansas farmers for aid to save their crops.

There never was a time when labor was so hard to secure for the accomplishment of the works of the world. In Klamath county, in this state, where the government recently let a contract for the construction of a great drainage and irrigating ditch, laborers are being offered two and a quarter to two and a half dollars per day, and the contractors are able to get only about two hundred men where they should have two thousand.

The same is true of the great railway enterprises in Oregon and adjoining states—where ten men should be found, but only ready to do the manual labor of the grade construction. Many a manufacturer, contractor, husbandman today would employ more men if they were to be had.

But in the face of it all Bid Dubbs sits astraddle of the rail fence, whittles, and rails at the success of energy and of steady effort. And Bid Dubbs and all the Bid Dubbs of the country will continue in this habit all through the ages of time.—Salem Statesman.

A Tragic Finish.
A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dikes, which a child's finger could have plugged, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner, Kenneth McIver, of Vancouver, Mo., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold; but Dr. King's New Discovery covey saved my life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at Chas. Strang's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

ROMAN MILLIONAIRES.
The Phenomenon of Mammoth Fortunes Not a New Thing.
While it is not a very tangible consolation to those of us who belong to the less favored class commercially, there is at least a sort of historic comfort in knowing that the phenomenon of mammoth fortunes is not a new thing.
A magazine writer goes back to ancient Rome, when there were no railroads or trusts or corporations, and gives some figures on the individual fortunes of that day which might look attractive even to some of our modern plutocrats.
Seneca, the philosopher and author, was worth $17,500,000; Lentulus, the augur, $18,000,000; Crassus, the politician who formed with Caesar and Pompey the first triumvirate, had a landed estate of more than $5,000,000; the emperor Tiberius left a fortune of $118,000,000, which the depraved Caligula got rid of in less than a year. A dozen others had possessions that ran into the millions.
It is true that these Romans did not "make" these fortunes in what we would call regular commercial operations. But they got the money, and they held on to it, which is about all that can safely be said of possessions that run into seven figures in any age or country.
And, speaking of campaign contributions and so forth, Julius Caesar once presented the consul Paulus with $200,000 merely as a token of esteem and coupled with the hope that Paulus would do the right thing in a certain political matter that was pending. The argument was effective with Paulus, and neither he nor Caesar suffered any in popularity.
There are many things under the sun that are not new.—Omaha World-Herald.

THE HUMAN BRAIN.

Undergoes Wonderful Changes During Its Growth.
The wonderful changes which the human brain undergoes from the moment when it first appears in the embryo until it becomes the perfected laboratory of thought characteristic to the matured human being has been commented upon by several of the leading writers on biology, physiology, etc. During these successive changes, or rather, transformations from the lower to the higher sphere, the human brain not only takes upon itself the general shape and form of the brains of various representatives of the lower classes of animals, but appears to have the same structural constituents, at least to a certain degree. Thus it has been found that the original germ of the brain as it appears in the human embryo has the exact outlines of a serpent's thought factory. After that the changes which take place while the brain is assuming the various shapes which it must undergo before it becomes perfect give it a decided resemblance to the brains of fishes, birds and mammiferous animals.

"Helm's "Thoughts on the Structure of the Human Brain" and Wilson's "Anatomy of the Human Body" both mention these queer transformations, as does also Hugh Miller in his famous work, "Testimony of the Rocks." Miller puts it in this way: "It has long been known that the human brain is built up by a wonderful process, during which it assumes in succession the form of the brain of a serpent, a fish, a bird, and lastly, before it assumes the characteristic human form, it takes upon itself the outline of a mammiferous quadruped's brain." Hence the remark made by scientific writers that "man is the sum total of all animals."
