A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

Chicago and Boston are now holding down both ends of the two big baseball leagues, and the game looks like a case of "pork and beans."

It seems strange that Russian military officers didn't do better against the Japanese. So far they've soundly thrashed every woman they have fought.

Newspapers when anybody starts a discussion of her bankers, Chicago tries to drown the knocking by talking loudly about her two crackerjack baseball clubs.

Any other grand jurist that may want to indict the Standard Oil Co. should act promptly, or they will be lost in the crowd.

A stroke of lightning hit a Nevada gold mine and laid bare enough gold to make a prospector rich. And yet we see often told there is no such thing as luck.

"No, my little girl, I can't lead your mother any flour or oil or butter or fatrons or lamps or potatoes or anything else that she sent you over for, but go back and tell her I have a lot of trouble she can borrow."—Baltimore American.

"I am thirty-five years old," announced a lady of fifty-six at a tea last week. "And I am twenty-six," said a woman of forty-five. Then, turning to a girl of seventeen who stood near by she asked: "How old are you, Ethel?" "Oh," replied Ethel, "I'm not born yet."—Life.

A millionaire of the olden time used to say that he made big money buying when everybody else wanted to sell, and selling when everybody else wanted to buy. This is only another way of saying that the public almost always is wrong and that it is profitable to go contrary to public opinion in financial matters than to follow it.—Boston Financial News.

A Portland drink fiend took a dose of Chinese gin and dropped dead within a few minutes. The people and officers of Portland are naturally horrified and it is said that the sale of this particular brand of hell broth will be stopped. You see it is the suddenness of the result that shocks the public. They can look on philosophically and see scores of boozers slip down through the various degrees of degradation to a drunkard's grave, but to have a man drop dead five minutes after taking a drink—that is a swirl!

WARM WEATHER WILL HELP. Now is the Time to Get rid of Your Catarrh by Using Hyomel.

Every one who is afflicted with catarrh should take advantage of the warm weather to get rid of this annoying and distressing disease, for the right treatment in August and September will give benefit much more quickly than in the winter and early spring. The germ killing and health giving Hyomel when breathed in the summer months has an even more beneficial action than when used in the colder weather. It is Nature's own remedy for the cure of catarrh. It goes to the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing and driving from the system the catarrh germs. Hyomel is the simplest, most pleasant and the only guaranteed cure for catarrh that has ever been discovered. It is sold by Chas. Strang under a guarantee to refund the money if it

John Colwell, 100 head, and R. P. Neil, of Fort Klamath, 154 head. Mr. Mitchell has made several other small purchases lately and is feeding the stock before starting them for the railroads. The price paid for cattle is about four cents for cows and heifers and five cents for steers, weighed before starting on the drive to the shipping point.

Geo. G. Tugnot, a rancher living near White Lake, put in a crop of potatoes this spring and came near having all his trouble for nothing, as earth worms attacked the crop and nearly destroyed it. Being unable to check the ravages of the worms Tugnot gave up the fight and went off harvesting. Upon his return he was surprised to find that his potato crop was in a flourishing condition. All over the ground were the tracks of the worms and Tugnot attributes the total destruction of the worms to wild geese.

Looming up on the horizon of Klamath county's future are the forms of two of America's greatest railroad engineers—J. L. Hill, who for years has been the right hand of the great George Gould, who is astonishing railroad magnates and financiers by his daring and ability as a master in railway construction and extension. Few realize how often in the past few months the finger of these men and their engineers have pointed towards the Klamath Basin; how representatives of these companies have been here and examined every section of this great basin; and how a detailed report has been made of the result of their findings. A prominent factor in this proposed line to this basin is the electric line that is contemplated to connect this city with White Lake, Merrill and Bonanza, and which is being pushed by J. D. Carroll. Its entrance into the area has been comparatively recent. So recent in fact that the proposed extension to Lakeview is not generally known and positively denied by Mr. Carroll. But the road is going to be built to Lakeview and it is this proposed extension that let the cat out of the bag, where it will connect with the N. C. & O. a Gould road.

The Breath of Life. It's a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs mean powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chief study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens of Fort Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's a gem for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by Chas. Strang, druggist. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A Sea Lullaby. THE little mermaids are blinking their eyes. The catfish is purring away. The moonfish is slowly beginning to rise. And the dogfish commencing to bay. The starfishes twinkle far down in the deep. The sea horse has gone to his stall. So sleep you, my baby, oh, stumber and sleep. For drowsiness covers us all. Oh, down in the sea all the shadows now creep. And the shadowy shad will supply us with more. And the drumfish is muffled in dream drumming deep. And the oyster reclines on his oyster-moor.

The sea cow is mooing out over the bars. The porpoise is poking itself for a drit. The skate is up north on the ice. So sleep you, my baby, while wavelids will lift Your cradle in swaying so nice. Oh, down in the sea all the haddock have had. With the herring a hair raising romp on the floor. And they sleep in the shade of the shadowy shad. While the oyster reclines on his oyster-moor!—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Judge.

At the Zoo. Mrs. Farinley (pointing to the giraffe at the zoological gardens)—Oh, just look! What animal is that? Mr. Farinley—What? That is an ostrich. Mrs. Farinley—An ostrich! Then where are its feathers? Mr. Farinley (contemptuously)—Don't betray your ignorance, Maria. Don't you know that ostriches molt at this time of the year?

Sticking to Etiquette. "At last we shall have a chance," said Mrs. Newcomb, "to get acquainted with the Snobletiens." "How?" asked her husband. "Has she finally seen fit to call on you?" "No, but they're going to build a new and bigger house across the street from the one they occupy now, and when they go there to live I can call because etiquette gives the ones that live anywhere the right to call first on others that just move in, you know."—Town and Country.

THE FACE ON THE CENT.

It is Not That of an Indian, but of a Pretty Little Girl. Mrs. Sarah Longacre Keen, who lived and died in Philadelphia, came nearer being the queen of the American mint than any woman who ever lived. With the exception of Queen Victoria, whose image was engraved on every coin of the British and Indian empires, Mrs. Keen was first in the number of her metal photographs. Her face as a girl of twelve summers is to be seen on every American cent issued since 1830 from Uncle Sam's coin factory. It is usually assumed that the face on the head side of the copper is that of an Indian, but a close look will reveal a Saxon profile. Just borrow a cent and look at it. The setting is that of an Indian.

Between 1828 and 1840 James Barton Longacre was chief engraver in the United States mint in Philadelphia. In 1835 a competition was opened for sketches and engravings for the new copper cent that was to be issued and which has since been in service. There were over a thousand designs offered. The prize was a good one. Longacre racked his brain for some original and singular design that would strike the judges, but for months he failed to satisfy himself.

One morning a number of Indians, with their chief, who had been to pay their respects to the great white chief in Washington, came to the city and were shown through the mint. They were introduced to the white chief, picture maker, who was just then showing his young daughter Sarah the great concern. The old chief was attracted by the sweet faced maiden and her interest in his feathers and paint. She childishly wondered how she would look in the feathered headdress. This was told the chief, who solemnly divested himself of his feathers and had them placed on the girl's head. The effect was so striking that the father took time to make a sketch of the picture, finishing it afterward for his own amusement.

At the last moment of the period given for sending in engravings he thought himself of the possibility of the combination of Indian feathers and Saxon sweetness. He got it in, and much sport was made of the child at the time in the city because of the incident. The sketch passed through the seventh sifting and finally reached the last round. By one vote it won, and ever since Sarah Longacre's young face has served for the humblest of coins, than which no single coin in the world has such tremendous circulation.—Detroit News-Tribune.
