TIMBER LAND, ACT JUNE 3, 1878.—NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

United States Land Office, Roseburg, Oregon, December 18, 1907. Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada, and Washington Territory," as extended to all the Public Land States by act of August 4, 1892.

FRANK E. REDDEN, of Medford, county of Jackson, State of Oregon, has this day filed in this office his sworn statement No. 528, for the purchase of the S 1/2 of Sec No. 19, in Twp No. 22 S., Range No. 22 W., and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for agriculture than for agricultural purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before A. S. Hilton, U. S. Commissioner, at his office at Medford, Oregon, on Tuesday, the 30th day of March, 1908.

He names as witnesses: Luther East, George Daniel, Edward F. Graham and William T. Greive, all of Prospect, Oregon.

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before said 30th day of March, 1908.

BENJAMIN L. EDDY, Register.

Klamath County News.

Klamath Falls Express: Representatives of the Hodson Auto Co., of Medford, are here looking over the field with a view to establishing an auto line between the Falls and Bray the coming season.

Mrs. Ziepporah Hunsaker, mother of K. E. Hunsaker of this city, died at her home at Myrtle Creek January 26, at the age of 81. The body arrived here last evening and will be buried in the city cemetery.

Miss Jessie Arnett, one of the Express force who was forced to give up her position last week, will leave on tomorrow morning's boat for Redlands, Cal., in the hopes of regaining her health. If she derives no benefit there she will go to Needles, Calif., and possibly to Arizona. She will be accompanied by her mother.

The first work to be done this year toward the completion of the big Klamath irrigation project is the construction of the south branch flume across Lost river at the Gap, the bids for construction with plans and specifications for which are advertised. While not officially announced it is expected that in addition to the construction of this flume bids will soon be called for the digging of six or more miles of main canal to be completed this year. This is in addition to completion of the Kenai canal, begun last year, on which work will begin as early in the spring as the weather will permit. Regarding the Clear lake dam there is nothing definite though Project Engineer Murphy says that if the signing up of certain lands is secured work will be commenced on this dam this year. From all indications it would now appear that all branches of the Klamath project is to be crowded to completion just as rapidly in the future as is possible.

If there is an underground outlet for the waters of Tule lake sufficient to lower the lake that fact will soon be known. With J. Frank Adams as master of ceremonies, a crew of eight or ten men with dynamite, drills, and machinery capable of removing large boulders, went to the scene of the recently discovered hole, near Scorpion Point, into which a small quantity of water has been disappearing and will enlarge the mouth of the opening. If, as Mr. Adams and many others believe, this hole in the ground will swallow sufficient water to materially lower the lake, those having land around the shore are determined to know it. A dam will first be built around the opening. This done it will be enlarged as much as is possible when the temporary dam will be removed and the result watched with much interest.

Klamath Falls Republican: Private owners of about 10,000,000 feet of timber in the vicinity of Keno, have been on a deal with capital of this city for the establishment of a mill at that place. It is reported that negotiations have not yet been closed although it is possible that the deal may be put through later.

H. S. Sims, the oil expert, returned after several weeks' absence in Lake county. Mr. Sims spent most of the time with prospectors out on the desert. It is reported that with the assistance of one of the old timers, he found the famous old "blue mine" which many an old prospector has wasted much time hunting for. It is said to be rich in blue mica, or what is known as "fool gold."

Neglected Colds Threaten Life.

(From the Chicago Tribune.)

"Don't trifle with a cold" is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the winter weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chances of a surprise from an ordinary cold will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established rule is to get the germs of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life in this season of the year is the neglected cold. Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and successful sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by Charles Strang.

Prize Money in 1762.

To the English victors of Havana belonged the spoils, and very rich and important these were.

Besides the nine Spanish men-of-war found intact in the harbor, which added to the three sunk at the entrance and to one or two others captured outside in the course of the operations formed about one-fifth of the naval power of Spain, and seriously crippled her for the rest of the war. One less an amount than $2,000,000 was realized in prize money by the capture of this wealthy city. Of this great sum we are told that Albenmarie and Pocock are commanding respectively the land and sea forces received no less than $122,297 each, while Commodore Keppel's share amounted to as much as $24,523, and doubtless his brother, Major General Keppel, received an almost equal sum. Thus the Keppel family benefited by this expedition to the tune of considerably over $150,000, and it is recorded that General Elliott with his share of the prize money purchased the estate of Heathfield, in Sussex, from which he afterward took his title. Such were the solid rewards obtainable in war in the eighteenth century, when the profession of arms was for the successful soldier considerably more lucrative than it is today.

His White Hair.

(Original.)

After leaving school I studied law and went to Colorado to practice. I know enough of "Farnin" and law to inspire confidence in a mining people and was eventually elected judge. My principal duties were to settle such disputes as were not settled by the revolver.

One morning a man was brought before me on a charge of attempted murder. He was a trim built fellow of twenty-five, of refined appearance, and what surprised me beyond measure was that his hair was white as snow. There were three witnesses against him—a miner, Tom Mason, and his two assistants, Pete Galloway and Steve Tucker. Mason was a pitiful sight to behold. His left arm was in a sling. His right leg, in a splint, was supported by a crutch. A bandage covered an eye. Whatever of his face was not covered with patches was of many hues. The condition of his two assistants was not much better.

The prisoner gave his name as Albert Parkinson. After hearing a statement from his accusers I called upon him for his story.

"Judge," he said, "I'm a mining engineer. I spent four years at college in the scientific department, then went to Germany to study my profession. From there I returned last month and came out here to get some practical experience. This man Mason accepted an offer from me to work in the shaft where he is drilling and blasting without pay, and the day before yesterday I went down with him, watched him drill, put in his charge of dynamite and light the fuse. Then we were hauled up in the bucket by these two men, got as far from the hole as possible and waited for the explosion.

"After learning the process of setting the blast yesterday I offered to set and fire it myself. Mason consented, and when the hole was drilled he came up, gave me the charge, and I went down in the bucket. As soon as I had lighted the fuse I called out to be drawn up. The winchlass creaked, and I felt myself rising. When I was hauled halfway something above seemed to be caught, and everything stood stock still. Mason called down in a frightened voice that the winchlass had broken, and he must go some distance to get a man to come and repair it. I called to him to pull me up by hand, but there was no response. I could hear him and one of his men discussing in loud voices what it was best to do.

"There I was, midway between the surface and the bottom, with the fuse sputtering below. I started to climb up hand over hand, but one of the men who had been left behind let me down as fast as I climbed up. I got back to the bucket exhausted and concluded to drop and put out the fuse. The man looking from above drew me up far enough to make my drop certain death. I looked over at the fuse and saw that it was within an inch of the charge. I shut my eyes and waited to be blown into the air.

"I fainted, and when I came to was lying on the ground beside the winchlass. Mason and his two men were standing over me laughing.

"Your foot tenderfoot," he said, "there wasn't no charge in the shell. I tuk it out and put in dirt."

"I saw it all—a huge joke to initiate a beginner into the mysteries of mining. It was some time before I felt like rising. I was dazed. Then I began to realize the enormity of these men's treatment. After that I began to get mad. The madder I got the stronger I got. Presently I got up and made a dive for Mason. His two men came upon me, but I seemed to have the strength of Hercules. After beating Mason while I carried him to the shaft and threw him down. The two men by this time were frightened and ran. I ran after them, caught one, gave him a drubbing, then caught the other and did the same by him.

"When I came to myself I feared that I had killed Mason. I went to the shaft and heard him groaning at the bottom. I put one of his men in the bucket and lowered him. He got Mason in it, and I hauled him up, then hauled the other up. That's all I have to say, judge. If it is murder, 'make the most of it.'"

"Mr. Parkinson," I said, "you seem to be a very young man. How is it that your hair is prematurely white?"

"White?" he said. "It's black."

I called for a small mirror hanging outside in the washroom and handed it to him. He looked at his hair with astonishment; then his anger returned, and I saw that he was about to spring upon Mason anew.

"Hold!" I cried. "I will give your tormentor the rest of his punishment. Thomas Mason stand up. The decision of the court is that, while harmless practical jokes have such a hold on the people of this country that they can't be weeded out, such a joke as you perpetrated on this gentleman is attempted homicide. You go to state prison for three years, and you, Peter Galloway and Stephen Tucker, for one year each. The prisoner is discharged, with the thanks of the court on behalf of the community for whatever of punishment he has meted out to the perpetrators of this unbecoming cruelty, and the court only regrets that he didn't finish the job and save the state further expense."

Mr. Parkinson afterward became interested in various mining companies and got rich. Several times he came to me asking me to sign a petition for a pardon for the men who had maltreated him, but every time I looked at his white hair and refused.

When You Have a Bad Cold

You want a remedy that will not only give quick relief but effect a permanent cure.

You want a remedy that will relieve the lungs and keep expectorations easy.

You want a remedy that will counteract any tendency toward pneumonia.

You want a remedy that is pleasant and safe to take.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these requirements, and for the speedy and permanent cure of bad colds stands without a peer.

A Severe Cold Quickly Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Last winter I caught a very severe cold which lingered for weeks," says J. Urquhart, of Zephyr, Ontario. "My cough was very dry and harsh. The local dealer recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and guaranteed it, so I gave it a trial. One small bottle of it cured me. I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have ever used."
