HOBSON PREDICTS TAFT'S ELECTION

"I firmly believe that President Roosevelt regrets now the statement made by him that he would not accept a second elective term as President of the United States. But I do not believe that he regretted it until Congress recently turned down his request for four new battleships and gave him only two. That he will not consent to run as he has pledged his word.

"It is practically settled that Taft and Bryan will be the candidates this year for presidential honors.

"I believe that Taft will be elected as President in the next campaign. His election will prove to be the best thing for the Pacific coast because of his comprehensive knowledge of the commercial and naval needs of this coast.

"The successful cruise made by the great battleship fleet did not surprise me in the least. I knew what our ships could do and they did it well.

"As is well known, I am doing all I can to have the fleet remain in Pacific waters or to have the government build a fleet that will adequately protect our interests on the Pacific. This coast will come more and more into prominence and the government will soon get into the habit of caring more for the interests of the West."

Such in substance was the interview granted to a representative of The Mail by Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson while in this city on Monday in order to fill his engagement at the Opera House under the auspices of the High school.

Since his previous trip to this city Captain Hobson has been elected to Congress from his district in the state of Alabama. He has added fame to achievements during the Spanish-American war by the way he has appeared in Congress as the exponent for large and more powerful navy. His words in regard to national affairs are of more than passing interest owing to his knowledge of those affairs.

"I believe," said Captain Hobson, "that the entire United States is awakening to the fact that this country needs a better and a larger navy. I have been ridiculed to a considerable extent on account of my persistency in this connection, but I am acting as I see the right. My lecture on 'National Defence' is my endeavor to state what my views on this matter are.

'Too Much Watchdog.'

This is the subject of a leading editorial by the Morning Astorian of recent date, wherein that paper takes a subtle fling at the State grange and pleads for support of the two deservingly measures that are to be voted on under the referendum at the June election. The measures referred to are the Army bill and the State University bill.

"It is all very well to be careful of the public funds in this day of extravagance and public graft," says the Astorian, "but legitimate ends must be served with a liberality that at least will not cripple necessary functions of the common good, or deprive them at the crucial moment of their highest faculty for the public service.

"Both the institutions to be benefited, the National Guard and the State University, are valuable and necessary agencies of the state's enlightenment," the Astorian continues. "They are indispensable to its growth, culture and protection. Both are necessary features of every state government and all through the land, the states have seen fit to endow them more liberally than has Oregon.

"Watchdogs" have been known to overdo the thing time and again to the utter negation of the real good and we feel that the Oregon grange is working its stunt in these two cases to a degree that will leave the State of Oregon cheapened and disgraced if it is to have its way in these two appropriations.

"Oregon grows space," the Astorian concludes. "Her people and her amplified future demand more of her than in the early days when essentials were fewer. On these essential lines she must range along with the states of her class and do her best and full duty by her sons and daughters as well as by the country at large. It will not do to stop at the dollar mark every time it is hoisted by some narrow prejudice or chill conservatism."

That the state University has been a great factor in the up building of the state cannot be denied. Many of our best and most prominent citizens—both in business and professional lines are graduates of the U. of O., some of them even when it required but one small tultling to accommodate the students. Every man who has received the benefit of the tutelage of the U. of O. should use his every effort to see that it is properly supported and enabled to increase its scope and consequent benefits to the rising generation. It is a penny-wise, pound-foolish proposition to curtail the possibilities for good of a school like this, by denying to it the support it deserves.

Up To Date Store.

Medford is indeed fortunate in having as fine a display of electrical fixtures as are shown by Arthur B. Davis in his new establishment on Seventh street near the Hotel Moore. Here one can find a large assortment of all kinds of electrical fixtures and it will well repay any person to drop in on Mr. Davis and have him show them over his store.

Mr. Davis is an expert electrician and has been in Medford but a year, but in that time he has thoroughly demonstrated ability in his profession. He has wired some of the largest business blocks and residences in the city and there is yet to be registered a complaint regarding any of his work. Among the buildings wired by him is the Jackson County Bank, the Moore Hotel and Vawter's new residence on West Seventh street.

The line of goods that Mr. Davis has installed are up to date as are to be found in any large city on the coast or in the East, for that matter. The assortment is such as to surprise any one who has not visited the store. Mr. Davis reports that he is doing a splendid business which shows that Medford residents appreciate an institution like the one conducted by him.

Dedicatory Services.

HAPPENINGS IN OREGON

Man Mourned as Dead Home Again
Medford—In May, 1906, Henry Jones, a young farmer living in the north end of this county, suddenly disappeared, leaving a young wife and infant son. Early one morning that year he left for Grants Pass with a sum of money to deposit in the bank there. That same night he was seen in a saloon in Grants Pass and that was the last heard of him in this part of the country.

As his family relations had always been pleasant and he left home bright and happy, his disappearance remained a mystery until two years later, when one Ingram, who was tried in the Circuit Court in Josephine County, convicted, and sent to the penitentiary at Salem, made an affidavit that Jones was murdered for his money and his body cut up and placed in a sack and disposed of. Several months later a sack containing human bones, which were supposed to be those of Jones, was found in the lower Rogue River.

Oral Jones, his wife, was appointed administrator of his property. Early this month Jones surprised his wife by writing from Kamloops to meet him in British Columbia. She did not make the trip, and he came to her and the two are now in this city.

Why he left home Jones refuses to say.

First Regular Train From Dorris.

Klamath Falls—The completion of the California & Northwestern Railway to Dorris within 11 miles of navigable water in the Klamath River, has not only caused a readjustment of passenger and freight schedules, but has made it possible to give Klamath Falls by all odds the most favorable service her citizens have ever enjoyed. Friday the first regular train left Dorris and connected with No. 16 at Weed, en route north. On the arrival of No. 16 at Weed, the Dorris train will return, thus inaugurating the regular daily service between Dorris and Weed, and connecting with the San Francisco and Portland trains. Passengers can leave here in the morning at 4 a. m. by boat, go from Bldel to Dorris by stage 11 miles, take the train at Dorris, and reach Portland the next morning, just 24 hours from Klamath Falls.

—Dr. Goble, the optician, has put in the past 10 years in the practice of his profession, 10 years of that time in Medford and Rogue River Valley. During that time he has fitted hundreds of people with glasses. If you are interested in your eyes, and think of having glasses made, ask some of those who have had their eyes fitted by him about his ability as an optician. He has no other business. He will positively guarantee to fit your eyes correctly. Office in Perry's Ware House.
