where we going and on reaching Mr. Kelso's at the Big Butte bridge where I expected to get directions as to the route I found that Mr. Kelso was out hunting his horses. He has hunted now for three weeks without any success, and there was no one there who could give the desired information, so I drove on to Hawk's mill and there learned that I was to go up the hill, up, up, and when I got to the top, about six miles, and began to go down I would come to Jones, and there get further directions, but when I reached Jones there was no one there and there the roads forked, so I yelled and hollered, but could raise no one and there I was on top of the mountain and it raining, so I decided to follow the plainest road and so started on down the hill or rather down into a canyon and down, down I went until I finally reached the bottom of the canyon and then started up again, had gone about a mile up the hill and there the roads forked again, again I decided to follow the plainest road so went on and lo! came to a pile placed across the road and a new road cut out at right angles and there I was up against it. It was then about five o'clock p. m. and we without grub, or horse feed or blankets and it raining to beat the band, so I began to use my voice again and in a few minutes I saw a man and two women coming in sight and it proved to be Mr. Fletcher himself and his two daughters so I stopped for the night, found Mrs. Fletcher quite sick but improving some. While I had a hard trip I rather enjoyed it for I passed through one of the finest bodies of timber I have ever seen in Oregon. Mr. Fletcher has been doing consid-

 Mr. and Mrs. Lem Hughes were down from the Weeks ranch Sunday. Several new mail boxes have been put up on the rural route between here and Talent.
 Dr. Swendenburg, of Ashland, was called here in consultation with Dr. Fort of Talent, in the case of Mrs. Helms, who was so unfortunate as to break her left leg in a fall last Wednesday.
 The many friends here of C. Kleinhammer were sorry to hear of his death which occurred at his home in Ashland. Quite a number from this part of the valley attended the funeral Sunday at two o'clock.
 E. Gibbs is the proud possessor of a very fine colt. The dam is one of the very best of travelers and is the sire in the one owned by J. W. Lawton, of Medford. Mr. Gibbs is already promising his friends a spin in a rubber tire buggy.

Valley, spent Saturday and Sunday as guests of Anna Higginbotham. Mrs. Hoggie, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Mardon. Mrs. Barneburg, of California who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stallworth left on Sunday's train for her home. Mrs. Pope, of the Braden mine, left Monday for Medford and Jacksonville on business. Ada Swinden was visiting Miss Mattie Stallworth last Sunday. Ray Biakely, of the Laues creek saw mill, spent Sunday with home folks and attended the speaking and dance in Gold Hill Saturday night. Mr. Higginbotham and son, George, are doing some carpenter work on the Darnall school house and grounds, a much needed improvement. School still continues to progress nicely under Miss Newton's charge. The late frost has done quite an amount of damage to the early gardens and fruit throughout this section of the country. Mrs. Perry Knotts, formerly of this place but now a resident of Gold Hill spent a day recently here as the guest of friends and relatives.

There are a few fine trout in Bear creek, but they dare not venture from their secluded nooks. There is more fishing tackle carried along the creek than is good for them every bug or fly is a hidden hook. There is some lively discussion as to the leasing of bonds with which to build a school house in Phoenix. The movement is not a popular one as most people favor keeping the money at home—instead of perhaps selling bonds in New York.

We sometimes hear it said that certain things go in waves, well Phoenix and vicinity must have had a wave of accidents last week. Five persons sustained severe injuries of the limbs, four from runaway horses and the fifth the aged mother of Mrs. E. Gibbs and John Helms, was knocked down by a large dog, and her left limb broken in the hip joint. The others were J. O. Henry, Frank Town and Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cowry. James Allen, who accompanied by his daughter, Miss Clara, who went to San Francisco to see the fleet returned home a few days since ill with grippe. Dr. Fort of Talent was called and at the writing Mr. Allen is much improved.

 BY A. C. HOWLETT.
 SS Aiken and Irvin McCall, of Prospect, stopped here over night the latter part of last week on their way home with a load of supplies. They were detained here a part of a day on account of the rain, but thought that they could well afford to lay over as long as the rain was so much needed as what they loose on account of the rain will be made up in the good the snow did. Since my last George Brown has sold the house and lot known as the kiddie property to John Watkins, consideration $3.00. Mr. Watkins has torn away the old fence and replaced it with a new wire fence, and as soon as he can set the lumber intends to build an addition to the house. Rudolph Left, of Round Top mill, was down last week buying hay and grain for the Rogue River Lumber Company and storing it in the Sunny Side feed barn to be hauled to the saw mill when they can do so, the late rains having made the roads so bad that it is difficult to haul a load at the present time. The carpenters here had to suspend work on the new sunny side hotel at present on account of remaining out of lumber. We thought that we had enough lumber out last fall to complete the building, but it is the same old story, changes in the price called for more lumber but the work will be resumed in a few days and carried on to completion. J. E. Stepp, of Round Top, came out a few days ago to get some new belting for the Round Top mill. They have a force of men employed cutting and hauling logs and getting ready for a big summer run. Miss Bertha Peasey, who taught the primary department of our school the latter part of the term has been engaged to teach the rest of the term in the Lake creek district as Prof. A. L. Heselton is unable to teach on account of poor health. Last Monday a message came over the phone for Rev. John Fletcher, of the Unserviced region, that his son-in-law, Mr. Vaughn, of Roseburg, had died Sunday night and A. U. Howlett was called on to take the message to him. So about nine o'clock a. m. stated not knowing
