This has been another one of our jolly good-time weeks. The regular meeting of Oak Circle, No. 242 was held Thursday evening. They initiated one candidate, after which they served strawberries, cake and cream.

C. Corey, one of the most experienced gardeners of the valley, has made a discovery of how to rid his potato field of gophers. And he wants to tell every reader of The Morning Mail. At this time of the year the young ones are just beginning to carry and store away everything they can find. When you see a potato vine begin to wilt pull it up easily, carefully scrape away the dirt and you will find an open run—clean it out and with an old tablespoon put in about 20 grains of prepared squirrel poison and carefully close up the opening with a clod covered with dirt, so as not to fill up the open run inside. Noon is the best time of the day to find their runs open, as they often close them tightly at night. Use Booth's sure-death brand of poison.

Among the many pleasant events that occur in Phoenix, the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Furry in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Colver on the evening of June 26 will be one long to be remembered. There were about 100 guests, who came to offer their congratulations to the happy young couple, both of whom have grown to manhood and womanhood in our midst and who are loved by all who know them. The decorations were exceedingly beautiful. Many costly and beautiful presents were presented to the young couple on their wedding day and were shown to those who wished to see them. After congratulations were offered the bride and groom and friendly greetings were indulged in, partners escorted the lady friends or wives to the beautifully decorated dining-room, where ice cream and cake were served. Thus the pleasant moments were passed and guests took their departure informally, carrying pleasant memories with them.

LUMBER TRADE PROSPECTS.

The president of a Seattle lumber company has just returned from a tour of the Eastern markets, bringing the cheering news that the retail lumber dealers in the East and Middle West have smaller stocks on hand than for twenty years past. He also expresses the belief that if the Pacific coast lumber manufacturers do not force lumber on the market now, the retailers will buy heavily at good prices in the fall. To facilitate the prospective increased movement and higher prices, the Seattle man advocates curtailment of the output of the coast mills. It would seem from this report that it was not the competition of Southern pine, nor the threatened advance in railroad rates that demoralized the Pacific coast lumber trade. Instead, the lumber consumers ceased buying and the retailers permitted their stocks to dwindle to meager proportions.

Under such conditions a revival in the business will be dependent more on the crop conditions throughout the Middle West than on the curtailment of the output on the Pacific coast. If there is no deterioration in the grain crop, which is now nearly ready for the sickle, the lumber consumers will have plenty of money with which to build new barns, houses and fences, and there will be a sudden revival in the Pacific coast lumber trade. Not all of the big volume of business that was causing such a serious car shortage a year ago came from the farming community. The railroads were all buying heavily of ties, bridge material and smaller stock needed in car construction and repair. This business ceased before the consumers caught the panic fever last fall, and it, of course, will not move again until prosperity returns to the people who supply business for the railroads.

A year ago the lumber business in Oregon, Washington and Idaho was, in many localities, the most important factor in our industrial life, and the enormous profits that were made in the business attracted so many mill builders that the business was actually overdone before the panic occurred. Since then there has been a steady dwindling in the amount of timber available in the formerly great "pineries" of the Northwestern states, and when the expected revival in trade takes place the demand, which was formerly satisfied in part by the near-by mills, must turn to the Pacific coast for supplies and there will be plenty of business for all of the mills now built, as well as for many others yet to be constructed. The return of better times in the lumber business may not be hastened by the curtailment of the output, but it will certainly be in evidence as soon as the crops of 1908 are turned into cash and the railroads again get their idle cars in motion.—Oregonian.

TWO CHERRY FAIRS.

Salem and The Dalles Are Preparing for a Splendid Exhibition.

Cherry fairs are in preparation at The Dalles and at Salem for next month, the fete at The Dalles being scheduled for July 1, and that of Salem, July 9, 10, 11. In each case Portland people are invited, and an attempt is being made to have the railroads grant a round-trip rate of one and one-third the regular fare.

Members of the Portland Chamber of Commerce are invited by the Business Men's association of The Dalles, and a big feast of luscious cherries is promised all visitors from this city. J. M. Patterson, secretary of the cherry fair, is busy, with the preliminaries and promises visitors a grand time while the fair is in progress.

At Salem silver cups to the number of 31 are to be awarded exhibitors from all over the state. Exhibits must weigh at least a pound, and the manner of packing for market will constitute an important point in the contest. F. W. Power, chairman of the cherry fair committee, has notified the Portland chamber of commerce of the preparations, and is having one day set aside as "Portland day," when citizens of this city and their families will be expected in goodly numbers. The fair at Salem will be under the auspices of the Marion County Horticultural society.

"This may be considered an off year for cherries all over the Pacific coast and the exhibits cannot be expected to compare with those of former years," said Secretary Williamson of the State Horticultural society, in connection with the proposed cherry exhibits. "California is no better off in respect to cherries than Oregon or Washington, as chilly rains and late frosts have cut the yield down, as well as the size of those cherries which have managed to live through the untoward conditions."—Telegram.

THE MEXICO UPRISING.

But a Band of Brigands—No Political Significance.

MEXICO CITY, June 27.—In a statement to the Associated Press, Vice-President Correl declares that the uprising in the northern part of the country was inspired by three irresponsible men at present residing on American territory and claiming American protection.

These men are: Enrique Flores Magon, Los Angeles; Thomas Sarabia, San Antonia, and Anion Parrujo, Austin. They appealed to the criminal and ignorant element on the border of the states of Mexico to raid certain towns and rob banks and government offices under the pretense of raising funds for an alleged revolution. The plan contemplated raids on Ciudad Juarez, Ciudad Diaz, Las Vacas and Viesca. Except on the latter two, the attempts have miscarried, and the would-be raiders are now in jail. The vicepresident says the affair has absolutely no political significance, merely being participated in by criminals and the lowest class who have been preyed on by designing charlatans.

EL PASO, Tex., June 27.—El Correo, a conservative paper at Chihuahua, says today the army is variously estimated from 400 to 7000 men marching on Torreon, one of the richest cities in the state of Cohuila. The story says the country is swarming with armed men and bridges have been burned with the possible object of impeding the passage of troops.

It is generally supposed that the movement is not against the state of Coahuila, but against the federal government. One version, however, has it that it is wholly against the state and that it grows out of the fact that the governor is objectionable to the people.

LIMITED WRECKED.

Two Trainmen and a Passenger Are Killed.

WINSLOW, Ark., June 27.—Two trainmen and a passenger were killed and a score of persons more or less injured and a portion of the California limited, the Santa Fe's fast overland train derailed and wrecked last night when the train was running 50 miles an hour. It struck a wide gap in the track, caused by a burning bridge near Hardy, 12 miles east of here. The best information says that 30 were injured, but only a dozen seriously. The Pullmans did not leave the track. The bridge which caused the wreck is believed to have caught fire from a passing engine.

BUY COOS COAL MINES.

Chicago Firm Sail to Have Paid $500,000 for Property.

MARSHFIELD, Or., June 26.—According to unofficial advices received here, Ware & Leland, a big commission firm of Chicago, have practically concluded a deal for the purchase of the property of the Oregon Coal & Navigation company. The property includes large tracts of land in Coos county, the Libby coal mine and the steamer M. F. Plant, which plies between this place and San Francisco. It is said that the consideration was approximately $500,000 and that the new owners will greatly develop the coal interests.

Sherman Better.

CLEVELAND, O., June 26.—Mr. Sherman passed a fine day. He is expected to leave the hospital Wednesday to spend a few days with Governor Herrick and family.

HAWAIIANS PLAN HOOKUPU FOR FLEET

Royal Honors to Be Paid Blue Jackets by Natives.

HONOLULU, T. H., June 27.—The bluejackets of the great American fleet are to be accorded a welcome by the native Hawaiians such as no one has received at their hands in recent years. It will be through an institution known as a "hookupu" (pronounced "ho-o-koo-poo," accent on next to last syllable) and means "the bearing of gifts," and was an honor generally accorded to none but royal personages, or others who by some act had won the gratitude of the nation.

The consummation of this hookupu, which is already well under way in preparation, is likely to be rather startling to our sailor boys, and something which none of them will ever forget. Before it is over every man in the fleet will probably find himself overwhelmed with a burden of fruit and other things Hawaiian in bewildering profusion.

The whole territory, including every district of every island of the group, is to have a part in the great demonstration and will furnish its quota of "gifts" in accordance with its ability.

Like all Hawaiian customs the hookupu is one which is soon to drop back into the realm of memory, if not of things forgotten. It was an institution, however, than which there was never anything more characteristic of the absolute generosity and hospitality of a noble, if primitive, race. It consisted in the bringing as gifts to the person whom it was desired to honor, all manner of things according to the ability of the giver, but of the best that he had. In olden days when the king or other person of high rank paid a visit in a distant part of the islands he was certain to be showered with immense amounts of practically everything the country produced. Everybody brought something, and none was so humble or so poor that he might not show his respect by some kind of a gift. The result of a big hookupu was the collection of tons on tons of every variety of things known to the simple-minded natives, and the gifts would range from great and costly calabashes or highly polished eating bowls of hard and beautiful woods, and representing infinite labor and pains in the making on the part of the humble artisan with his stone tools, to a few pieces of taro or sugar cane stalks. There would be pigs and chickens and fat pol dogs and fish, and cocoanuts and bananas and other fruits, and tapa cloths of finest quality, and woven mats, and hat, and fans and leis, or necklaces of polished seeds or nuts or shells of rare feathers.

All of these gifts would be brought to some appointed place and there deposited on the ground, and it was no uncommon thing for several acres of space to be required to accommodate the entire amount. Of course, the recipient of such a collection of stuff could not possibly use it all himself, and in turn was usually as generous in its distribution as were the original donors.

The last hookupu of consequence in which a stranger was honored took place in Honolulu in 1892; the recipient being Admiral Brown of the United States navy, who had just arrived bringing with him the body of Hawaii's king, Kalakaua, who had died while on a visit to the United States. The affair took place on one of the largest wharves of the waterfront, which had been cleared for the occasion, and the crowd which sought to show their regard for the American officer formed a line four blocks long and simply overwhelmed the object of their attentions with every variety of product of hand or soil.

—For Sale—80 acres level land. Sauergated, 40 acres partially cleared. Small orchard, 6 room plastered house, good barn, farm implements, good fence. Within a few rods of store and postoffice. Price $2000. E. Vroman, Wimer, Oregon. 2o-tff.

MAYBE YES; MAYBE NO.

Secretary Ryan Knows of No Chamberlain Boom.

PORTLAND, Or., June 29.—Secretary Ryan of the Democratic state central committee says that there is no intention, so far as he is aware, among the Oregon delegation to the National Democratic convention at Denver to put forward the name of Governor George E. Chamberlain of Oregon, the popular nominee for the United States senate from this state, for the vice-presidential nomination. Ryan says he believes the Oregon delegates will support Lieutenant-Governor Chanler of New York for that office, though possibly one or two will case their votes for John W. Kern of Indiana.

Belmont's Horse Wins.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, L. I., June 27.—Before a crowd of 10,000 persons, August Belmont's Fair Play, carrying 126 pounds, won the $25,000 Coney Island Jockey club stakes today. Hessian was second, King James third; time, 2:31 1-5. The distance was one mile and a half.

Fast Trip.

W. M. Hodson made a trip to Grants Pass and return yesterday. As usual, Mr. Hodson was a trifle rapid, going by the way of Jacksonville and stopping at Central Point, Gold Hill, Rock Point and Woodville. He made the round trip in eight hours and 30 minutes.

MEXICAN SITUATION.

Reports Show That All Is Quiet in Mexico.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—Thet war department tonight ordered troops sent to the Mexican border to prevent violation of the neutrality laws.

EL PASO, Tex., June 29.—According to information from a reliable source, official advices have been received in Juarez that 2500 federal troops will be sent to Torreon. Juarez officials are positive that the revolution has been squelched by the prompt dispatch of troops. They declare the last of the revolutionists will be taken within ten days and that the government will be able to keep the situation well in hand.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 29.—Orders are had at Fort Sam Houston calling out the troops.

MEXICO CITY, June 29.—Up to this evening no news of any sort had been received indicating a repetition of disorders similar to those at Viesca and Las Vacas. On the contrary, the reports were to the effect that absolute quiet reigns. Through private sources it was ascertained that the sensational reports in circulation throughout the United States are false.

There has been no assault on Jimenez and Torreon is as quiet as any well-organized place in the United States.

Postoffice Robbed.

PORTLAND, Or., June 29.—A special to the Oregonian from Kelso, Wash., received tonight, says that robbers blew open a safe at Kelso early Sunday morning, secured $165 in cash and escaped to the woods before the citizens who were attracted to the scene by the noise of the explosion could interfere. The explosion demolished a steel safe and did $75 damage to office fixtures owned by Postmaster Ely. So far no clew has been obtained. Nothing but the money was taken.

Educators Meet.

CLEVELAND, O., June 29.—The largest and most varied program in the history of the National Education association marked the opening of the 46th annual convention here today. The active delegates met this afternoon and selected candidates for the nominating committee, which will on Wednesday nominate the board of directors for the ensuing year.

An Electric Line?

Colonel Ray of New York and Dr. Ray, Dr. Reddy and Attorney Reames of Medford came over Friday from the latter place in an automobile and were viewing the right of way for the railroad that has so long been promised. These gentlemen were an optimistic lot as one ever saw and the air begins to have a fragrance hereabouts, that greatly resembles an electric railway. Funny, if Medford steals the sausage from under Grants Pass' very nose.—Courier.
